Brezhnev arrives!

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With a "good omen" rain falling but security very tight, Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev arrived Saturday to talk disarmament and trade with President Nixon in a week-long summit meeting.

It was the Russian Communist party chief's first visit to the United States and he was accompanied by several top Soviet government officials for his second face-to-face meeting with the President, who was in Florida preparing for the start of their negotiations Monday.

As he alighted from the giant Ilyushin-62 jet that flew him from Moscow, a rain squall wetted down Andrews Air Force Base outside the capital and the small crowd of American officials and Soviet citizens gathered to welcome the 66-year-old Russian.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers, leading the U.S. greeters, recalled to Brezhnev that it had also rained when Nixon arrived in Moscow last year for their first summit, and that the Russians had called it a "mushroom rain" —an omen of peace.

For security reasons, the base, which normally allows free access by the public, was closed to all except Soviet diplomats, their wives and children and a pool of three news reporters. All commercial photographic and television coverage was barred.

Shortly after leanding, Brezhnev boarded a U. S. Marine helicopter for a 30-minute flight to Camp David, the presidential retreat in Maryland's Catoctin mountains where he was to rest and confer with his top aides until Monday morning.

Among those with the 66-year-old bushy-browed Brezhnev were Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko and Foreign Trade Minster Nikolai S. Patolichev.

Brezhnev's plane landed precisely on schedule at 4:30 p.m. edt, about an hour after another Soviet aircraft carrying some 50 or 60 Russian journalists.

Henry A. Kissinger, the President's top adviser on foreign policy, was expected to visit Brezhnev at Camp David on Sunday — persumeably extend Nixon's greetings and possibly to go over some of the subjects to be discussed at next week's conferences.

Plans called for Nixon to receive Brezhnev's party with full honors on the south lawn of the White House at 10:30 a.m. (EDT) Monday and to get down to business a half hour later — barely more than a year after Nixon invited Brezhnev to visit Washington during their first summit meeting in Moscow.

Welcome by Nixon; readies for summit

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI) — From his bayside villa, President Nixon extended a quick welcome to Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev "on behalf of the American people" Saturday and worked to prepare for their summit meeting next week.

Nixon, spending the weekend at the Florida White House on Biscayne Bay, telephoned Brezhnev about 30 minutes after the Communist party chief arrived at Camp David, the presidential retreat in Maryland, and told him he was looking forward to the start of their talks Monday.

Nixon told Brezhnev he hoped he would "have a good rest after his long trip and that he and his party would be comfortable," Press Secretary Ronald L. Zeigler told reporters after the call, adding that Brezhnev assured the President he was comfortable and that he, too, looked forward to their conference.

Zeigler said the two leaders spoke for "five to 10 minutes."

Nixon earlier met with Henry A. Kissinger, his national security adviser, to complete U.S. strategy for the summit meeting.

The White House said the President also pored over six diplomatic briefing books, cramming for the week-long talks which begin in Washington Monday.

Nixon has predicted his meetings with the general secretary of the Soviet Communist Party will "produce significant agreements." In a speech Friday in Pekin, Ill., he explained:

"There will be some hard bargaining and we are not making any easy predictions, but based on the attitude of Mr. Brezhnev and my attitude . . . you have great hope that as a result of this meeting, the two great superpowers of the world will make progress toward reducing the danger of war, and also progress toward limiting that deadly burden of nuclear arms which weighs us down, and them, and other nations as well."

U. S. officials said the new talks probably would focus on:

—A joint statement setting out guidelines for further progress in Soviet-American negotiations to limit offensive nuclear weapons.

—A European Security Conference this fall at which the United States, Canada, and 32 European countries will seek a formula to reduce military forces in Europe.

—An endorsement by President Nixon of some huge business deals reached recently by several U.S. companies and Soviet agencies as well as a full discussion of prospects for future trade, including the possible granting to Russia of "most favored nation" trade status.

—A review of international conditions, with special attention on the Middle East and Indochina.

—Conclusion of a series of agreements on transportation, agricultural and oceanographic research, and an accord to avoid double taxation of U.S. citizens in the Soviet Union and Soviet citizens in the United States.

Cop slayer kills hostage, 4, dies by police bullets

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — An ex-convict killed a police sergeant who tried to handcuff him as a suspected prowler Saturday, then fatally shot one of three hostages—a 4-year-old girl—before walking into a volley of bullets from a waiting police sharpshooter.

The gunman died several hours later in a hospital.

Dozens of police officers surrounded a two-story frame house while the suspect, identified as Ernest M. Silas, 34, held his captives. He emerged shortly after a single shot was fired inside, apparently killing the little girl, and was wounded in the head and shoulder.

Witnesses gave conflicting accounts of whether Silas was trying to escape or surrender. A neighbor who knew Silas said the whole episode "should never have happened."

The confusing chain of events in the quiet, residential neighborhood a mile from the University of California campus began about 5 a.m. when police received a report of a prowler. Sgt. Jimmie H. Rutledge, 49, a 22-year veteran of the Berkeley force, stopped Silas for questioning.

During an ensuing scuffle, while Rutledge tried to handcuff him, Silas got hold of Rutledge's gun and shot him fatally. He also wounded a neighbor, Stephen Levine, who tried to aid the officer by hitting Silas with an ax handle.

Police said Silas was wearing black clothes, gloves and a black cap. But Insp. Earl Bergfeld also said the department was proceeding on the basis of information from witnesses and one of the hostages, Richard Priddy, who said they knew Silas, a black, and thought he was coming to visit.

Priddy said Silas, who has convictions for burglary, robbery and narcotics violations in the Midwest, told him later he had come to his door. Finding it locked, Priddy quoted Silas as saying, he left and was confronted by Rutledge on the sidewalk, and the scuffle and shooting followed.

Priddy said that after the shooting, Silas ran to his house, broke a window, and went in. Five adults and 4-year-old Magic Wolff, Priddy's daughter, were inside.

Nelson Inman and Ruth Gill, who were upstairs in the two-story frame house, managed to escape to the roof and Silas did not know they were there. Another man, John Hill, ran out of the house after Silas hit him with a gun butt.

Priddy said Silas repeatedly said, "You're trying to set me up," during the time he held Priddy, his daughter, and Diane Linkus hostage.

About 8:30 a.m., Silas's wife, Martha, who works as a private nurse in nearby Piedmont, was brought to the house. She talked to Silas through a window, then went inside.

Moments later, one shot was fired, and Priddy and Miss Linkus ran out, the woman screaming, "He shot the little girl!"

Shortly after, police said Silas came out carrying a gun, and he was immediately shot four times by an officer with a rifle stationed in the window of a neighboring house about 15 feet away.

"I saw him come out of the house," said Bantonio Bosch, 28, an economics professor at Western Ontario University who was visiting in the neighborhood. "I saw him kind of lurch."

"I saw his head explode in red," said another witness, Martha Williams, 22. She said she did not see Silas holding a gun.

An officer ran inside and found the child dead in her crib. The girl and Silas were taken by ambulances to a hospital. Police said Priddy and Miss Linkus were not harmed.

"It should never have happened," said Lorna Gross, 20, who lived across the street and knew Silas. "I don't think he came to do anything bad. I think he came as a friend."

Priddy told police he thought Silas, a parttime trumpet player, may have wanted to come to his house to play music.

Protesters march in capital

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More than 1,000 protesters marched through the capital Saturday in what was intended to be the first major anti-administration demonstration by leftist groups since President Nixon's second inauguration.

Sponsored by the Peoples Coalition for Peace and Justice, the march was billed as a protest against cuts in domestic social spending and the bombing of Cambodia. But the title was "March from Watergate to Justice" and the speakers concentrated on the bugging scandal.

The march began directly across the street from the Watergate offices where the notorious break-in occurred a year ago. It ended at the Justice Department building, about a mile away.

Anthony Russo, a former defendant in the Pentagon Papers case, told the crowd that recent disclosures indicate the President's re-election committee resorted to illegal activities because of pressure from anti-war activists.

"We now know how uptight they were about us," Russo said. "We had no money, no guns, but we have soul power . . ."

Most of the marchers wore buttons saying "Impeach Nixon" and many of their banners carried the same message. One banner, carried by representatives of the American Communist party, said "Welcome Brezhnev."

At a stop near the White House, comedian Dick Gregory said the scandal "goes beyond Dick Nixon . . . to the sick, slimy CIA that won't be satisfied until they overthrow this country."

Israel in biggest troop buildup yet, Arabs claim

BEIRUT (UPI) — The Palestinian guerrilla news agency said Saturday that Israel is massing the largest troop buildup in its history along the entire length of its border with Syria and Lebanon.

The agency WAFA said the troop concentrations were larger than the buildup that preceded the Arab-Israeli war of June, 1967.

The agency said it expected a massive Israeli attack against both Syria and Lebanon within 48 hours.

Beirut newspapers said Israeli patrols from the occupied Golan Heights made brief forays into Lebanon Friday.

The French language newspaper L'Orient-Le Jour said the incursions took place near Chebaa, at the foot of Mount Hermon, in southeast Lebanon. It said the patrols penetrated about 300 yards inside Lebanese territory.

Press reports from the border area said local residents noticed increased Israeli patroling and signs of a military buildup on the souther borders of Lebanon and Syria Thursday and Friday.

The reports said the Lebanese army and guerrilla units were "on full alert" in the region. They feared an Israeli reprisal attack following a clash Wednesday between an Israeli patrol and guerrillas near the border of South Lebanon, the reports said.

Lebanese Socialist leader Kamal Jumblatt had said Thursday the Soviet ambassador to Lebanon, Sarvar Azimov, told him he thought an Israeli attack on Lebanon was "imminent." Jumblatt said he had received reports that the Syrians also were expecting an attack.

However, newspaper commentators said Saturday an Israeli attack appeared unlikely at this stage because of the impending meeting between President Nixon and Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev and because of the current United Nations debate on the Middle East.

Dean testimony 'differs from any given so far'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate investigators questioned ousted White House Counsel John W. Dean privately for 5½ hours Saturday, focusing almost certainly on reports that he talked more than 35 times with President Nixon about a Watergate cover-up.

Dean, fired by Nixon April 30 and the first scheduled witness when the Senate Watergate hearings resume Tuesday, refused to answer reporters' questions before or after the interrogation.

Lawyers for the Senate Watergate Committee also refused to elaborate on what Dean had said, including whether he could offer documentary evidence of his meetings with Nixon.

Sam Dash, chief counsel for the committee, said Dean refused to answer one question early during the session on grounds that it was incriminating.

But deputy counsel Rufus L. Edmisten said Dean answered that question and all others after Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., the committee vice chairman, read a judge's order granting Dean immunity for what he told the investigators.

"His testimony was quite different from any other public testimony given so far," Edmisten said without elaborating.

On the eve of the first anniversary of the Watergate arrests, the New York Daily News said Dean was prepared to swear that Nixon had "no prior knowledge" of the May-June 1972 break ins at the Democratic National Committee in the Watergate complex, but that the President was "knee deep" in the cover-up plot.

Quoting unidentified sources, the Daily News said Dean would testify he had 35 to 40 discussions with Nixon between last January and April 30, when Nixon dismissed him. It said Dean would claim that "virtually" all of the conversations dealt with White House efforts to cover up involvement of high officials in the administration and the Committee for the Reelection of the President.

The Daily News quoted its sources as saying that Dean planned to charge that Nixon agreed to make up to $1 million available in "hush money" to keep the Watergate conspirators from talking to government prosecutors. The newspaper did not provide any details.

School is burglarized, two offices ransacked

POMONA — Burglars broke into Westmont Elementary School here Saturday, taking a movie projector and change from a Coke machine and leaving a principal's office and teacher work room in "total disarray," according to police.

Entrance to the administration office at the 1780 W. 9th St. school was made by breaking a window and reaching in to unlock the door, sometime between 4 p.m. and 9:30 p.m.

The burglars scattered papers and files throughout school principal Rudolfo Flores' office and that of a secretary, police officers said.

The Coke machine was pryed opened, as was a door to a storage room containing the movie projector, the only missing item. There are no suspects.

LBJ thought Kennedy slain in retaliation

NEW YORK (UPI) — The late President Lyndon Johnson believed that President Kennedy was slain in retaliation for a thwarted assassination attempt by a CIA-backed team in Havana, according to a former Johnson aide.

In an article published today in the Atlantic Monthly, Leo Janos, now a Time Magazine correspondent, said that Johnson told him in a conversation at the LBJ ranch a few months before he died, "I never believed Oswald acted alone, although I can accept that he pulled the trigger."

Janos quoted Johnson as saying that when he took office after the assassination he found "we had been operating a damned Murder Inc. in the Carribbean."

Janos did not quote the late President as to the specifics of the alleged CIA assassination plot in Havana, nor the target of such a plot.

Janos added, however, "A year before Kennedy's death a CIA-backed assassination team had been picked up in Havana."

"Johnson speculated that Dallas had been a retaliation for this thwarted attempt, although he could not prove it," Janos said.

He said Johnson told him, "After the Warren Commission reported in, I asked (then attorney general) Ramsey Clark to quietly look into the whole thing. Only two weeks later he reported back that he couldn't find anything new."

Janos said, "Disgust tinged Johnson's voice as the conversation came to an end. 'I thought I had appointed Tom Clark's son—I was wrong.' "

In his reminiscence of Johnson in retirement, Janos said the late President once described the advice he gave his outgoing cabinet members:

"Each of you had better leave this town clean as Eisenhower's hound's tooth. The first thing Democrats do when they take power is find where the control levers are. But the first thing Republicans do is investigate Democrats. I don't know why they do it — but you can count on it."

Janos said that the reason Johnson did not run for reelection in 1968 was that he believed he would not live through his term, and in 1967 had launched a secret actuarial study on his life expectancy.

" 'The men in the Johnson family have a history of dying young,' " Johnson told Janos in 1971. " 'My daddy was only 62 when he died, and I figured that with my history of heart trouble I'd never live through another four years. The American people had enough of Presidents dying in office.' "

Added Janos: "The prediction handed to Johnson was that he would die at the age of 64. He did."

Nixon has secret CIA dossier on Russ leader

NEW YORK (UP) — When Leonid Brezhnev sits down to talk with President Nixon Monday the President will have enough CIA-supplied facts about the Soviet Communist party leader "to write a biography," according to columnist Jack Anderson.

Writing in the Sunday issue of Parade Magazine, Anderson said the CIA file on Brezhnev contains a complete medical report, a psychological profile, and an idea of his beliefs from transcripts of private Kremlin conversations. "Nixon even has the name of Brezhnev's favorite masseuse," Anderson said.

"In the rarefied atmoshere of international power politics, such intimate information can be a powerful bargaining chip. Thick dossiers on world leaders are compiled by the Central Intelligence Agency, which gathers its information by every method from electronic eavesdropping to routine reasearch," Anderson said.

"The secret profile of Leonid Brezhnev, according to those who have seen it, portrays him as an amiable, robust, harddrinking outdoorsman. He like to gossip about his colleagues in the Kremlin, and he engages in the constant bickering and backbiting that goes on behind those Byzantine walls. His private conversations are heavily laced with locker room language."

According to Anderson, the Brezhnev profile also reports that during the 1968 viet premier Nikita Krushchev showed up at the Kremlin and demanded to see Brezhnev.

"Khrushchev loudly warned that the Czech invasion could turn into a disaster unless Soviet troops were pulled out at once. Brezhnev gruffly refused to see Khrushchev and ignored his advice," Anderson said.

The CIA keeps dossiers on friendly leaders as well as not-so-friendly ones, the columnist said.

"The world's two most celebrated women leaders, Israel's Golda Meir and India's Indira Gandhi, are reported by the CIA to have a long-distance feud brewing . . . Mrs. Meir regards Mrs. Gandhi as 'neutral . . . on the side of Israel,' while Mrs. Gandhi sees Israel as a 'warmonger.' " Anderson said.

The CIA also directs its agents to dredge up all possible medical information for medical researchers to diagnose, he said.

Phone Co. records show:

Mom more popular than dad

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Dad isn't as popular on Father's Day as Mom is on Mother's Day, at least when it comes to making phone calls.

The utilities' records of last year showed that for every four fathers who got a call on their day from their children, five mothers did on their day.

Dr. William Faust, head of the psychology department at Pomona College, offered a reason.

"Mothers are more apt to expect to hear from their children on Mother's Day — and may, in fact, complain if they don't," he said. "On the other hand, fathers probably are less likely to expect the attention, especially from sons.

"And of course, women outlive men so there are more years of Mother's Days to keep in touch."

Antiwar leaders rap Magruder Watergate testimony

By LUCINDA FRANKS

". . . We saw continuing violations of the law done by men like William Sloane Coffin . . . he recommended that students burn their draft cards and that we have mass demonstrations. "So consequently, when these subjects of bugging came up although I was aware they were illegal we had become somewhat inured to using some activities . . ."

—Jeb Stuart Magruder at the Senate Watergate hearings, June 14, 1973.

NEW YORK (UPI) — A number of prominent Americans who were opposed to the Vietnam War, including Dr. Benjamin Spock and William Sloane Coffin, have strongly decried the suggestion that the Watergate bugging was justified by antiwar demonstrations and protests against the Nixon administration.

The reaction among liberal circles to Jeb Stuart Magruder's testimony in front of the Senate Watergate hearings Thursday ranged from amusement to outrage. Leading peace activists said the claims of the former deputy director of President Nixon's re-election committee — that widespread protest activities helped create an "atmosphere" for Watergate —was a pathetic attempt to direct blame away from the committee.

"It's as though Magruder were saying that he learned to be naughty by paying attention to draft-card burners," Spock said.

"It looks like Jeb flunked again," said Coffin, who had Magruder in an ethics course at Yale University years ago. Both Spock and Coffin, chaplain of Yale, had their convictions for urging draft evasion overturned in a federal appeals court in 1969.

Ramsey Clark, attorney general in the Johnson administration who has turned to anti-war activities in recent years, called Magruder's statements "frightening and pathetic, an attempt to cover up more sinister motivations. I do not believe Nixon's men ever saw the protesters as a real threat to national security."

Henry Steele Commager, political writer and professor of history at Amherst University, said the climate of fear which Magruder referred to had been caused not by protesters but by the administration.

"Nixon had a history of seeing Communists under the bed and of crying treason when he came to office and he has not changed," Commager said. "His men instilled political fear inside people by declaring the dissenters dangerous. Such tactics help win elections."

Coffin and Spock made sharp distinctions between the kind of civil disobedience which they engaged in and the undercover activities of the burglars and buggers in the White House "plumbers" group.

"We were not trying to get anything for ourselves or for a crooked leader," Spock said. "We were trying to call attention legally to the immorality and brutality and illegality of the war. We were seeking public attention, not trying to hide from it."

"There's a big difference between civil disobedience taken in the name of conscience which is not interfering with the private lives of anybody else and this type of criminal activity which is a distinct invasion of other people's privacy simply in order to secure the power of the President," Coffin said.

"In everything that I did, it never infringed on the civil liberties of anybody else," he said. "It was open and above board and we were willing to take the consequences."

Commager said he believed that the Nixon Administration itself had engendered much of the violence which has marred the history of the nation in the last four years.

"There is considerable evidence that there were agents provocateurs in almost every major antiwar group—the Vietnam Veterans Against the War, the Weathermen, The Berrigans — urging demonstrators on to violence and in some cases teaching them how to make bombs," he said.

OIA environment study to be released this week

ONTARIO — The long awaited environmental impact study being made of Ontario International Airport is expected to be released Wednesday.

The study is needed to meet a federal requirement before a second runway can be constructed.

"We expect to receive 100 copies of the study, with some distributed for the public's review at area libraries, city halls and chambers of commerce," said Robert Hamilton, airport manager.

Release of the study was reported by officials at the Los Angeles Department of Airport which operates the local facility, he added.

The Northup Corp. of Beverly Hills had been awarded a $49,919 contract in May of 1972 to make the study. The report was first set for completion that August.

Completion, however, was delayed pending acceptance of the Federal Aviation Administration of an airport sound evaluation system.

Airport officials later approved an amended contract with Northrup for additional noise analysis necessary to complete the report.

Following release of the report, a 90 day waiting period will be observed to allow all interested persons time to study its findings.

This will then be followed by a public hearing, with testimony presented to FAA officials.

The report's five major areas include: environmental impact on the proposed construction; identification of adverse effects which can't be avoided; alternatives to the proposed action; relationship between local, short term uses by man and long range productivity; and any irreversible and irretrievable commitment of resources required for the project.

The study will also include a noise exposure level to be used for landing planning purposes, officials indicated.

The second main runway being proposed is to be located 800 feet south of the existing runway, with the threshhold moved to the east 2,000 feet.

Copies for all six volumes of the Northrup study will be sold "at cost" of $25 each, said Hamilton. He estimated the cost for the entire study at about $90,000.

CSEA official cites laxity by state in mental health cases

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — In the past three months, 69 persons have been killed by former mental patients who are being turned loose by a program put into practice by the Reagan administration, a representative of state mental hospital workers charged.

The administration has a "head in the sand" attitude, said Richard G. Funderburg of the California State Employes Association.

The administration is trying to phase out state mental hospitals by transferring patients to county-level clinic programs that in most cases send the patient home to live, he said.

It's Jesus, or Nixon . . . or somebody

Mysterious vision appears on sign

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — An unexplained vision has a number of suburban Orleanians believing they saw a vision of Jesus Christ, or maybe Richard Nixon, on a stop sign.

The apparition appeared on the traffic sign in the Algiers section of the city when car lights hit it at a certain angle.

The sign attracted hundreds of spectators and caused a traffic jam. Police eventually came and took it away and told the crowd to go home.

Mrs. Childs E. Dunbar Jr. said she had heard about the sign for several days and thought it was a joke.

"Two nights ago I went out and I saw it," she said. "I was very skeptical, but I saw it and I can't explain it. The children right away said it was the face of Christ, and it did look like it."

She said the face would appear when car lights shone on it at a distance, then fade as they came closer.

"It was not an outline," she said. "It was extremely detailed."

A photographer who took pictures of the sign said it was not the face of Christ.

"It was Richard Nixon with his arms outstretched," he said.

Guy F. Lemieux, president of the Orleans Levee Board, said he saw a faint outline on the sign. He said his wife saw it too, and was sure it was Ulysses S. Grant.

The Rev. Tom Quinlavin of Our Lady of Guadalupe R.C. Church, said there was certainly an image on the sign, but he didn't know of what.

"People saw something, and they were looking for Christ," he said.

"I don't know how Jesus came into it," said 19-year-old Jeff Aiple. "It looked like Captain Zig Zag."

Policeman Dwight Dean, who had to cope with the crowd of 1,000 or more gathered at the site, said the stop sign looked like a stop sign to him.

Executive sets guidelines of success for graduates

By MAE TATE
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — Roark V. Moudy, executive vice president of Fleetwood Industries and distinguished alumnus, indicated "Which Way Success" during commencement exercises Saturday afternoon at Cal Poly.

Moudy, chief administrative officer for the multi-million dollar firm, outlined three objectives with which the more than 2,000 graduates could discover success.

"Today concludes many years of hard work . . . You ought to be saluted; it is a time to be excited and proud," began Moudy.

Most of the graduates, however, will soon forget today and their "thoughts and energies will be concentrated on the future."

The three objectives for him Moudy said, were personal guidelines as he left college and entered the business world:

"First, strive to gain as much and as broad an experience as you can in early endeavors . . . Be responsive to all around you, absorb and learn from contacts . . . Regardless of your assignment do your best. The result will be better understanding of yourself and others.

"Secondly, one must be brave enough to change careers if the first chance doesn't prove fruitful or satisfying.

"You must look up to the fact that it will take a sincere effort to change your original endeavor. It will require great faith in your own ability to be successfull," he said.

In the final objective, Moudy called for patience.

"The knowledge that others have acquired through years of interaction cannot be passed along to you in a few short months," he said.

Whatever the graduates do it is "worthy of the best effort. Whether a man thinks he can or can't, he will. I know it to be a truism in my life. Let it be such in yours," Moudy concluded.

Millionaire arrested by W. German police

FRANKFURT, Germany (UPI) — Glenn W. Turner, the flamboyant Florida instant millionaire, was arrested and jailed here Saturday pending action on an extradition warrant from Britain, police said.

Turner, 38, of Orlando, Fla., already has been indicted on mail fraud charges in the United States and his "Dare to Be Great" enterprises have been under investigation or banned in dozens of states in America.

A West German judge ordered Turner placed under formal arrest Saturday and sent to jail until a hearing Monday on the British extradition request.

According to a police spokesman, the British document accused Turner of business malpractices in Britain.

"Turner will remain temporarily in custody at least until Monday," investigating magistrate Rolf Schwalbe said. "I just told him he is under arrest and according to the regulations he cannot be released on bail."

Police said they took Turner into custody Friday at the Frankfurt airport in response to the British extradition request and in response to an advisory from the International Criminal Police Organization, Interpol.

Citrus senior class urged to stress critical thought

AZUSA — The importance of critical thinking in a world of constant change was emphasized by Dr. Eugene E. Dawson, president of the University of Redlands, in his commencement address before 691 Citrus College graduates Friday night in the college stadium.

Speaking on the subject "Education In A World That Won't Stand Still," Dr. Dawson commented that "our generation has seen more change than all previous generations combined. At such a time we need to remain sensitive to ignorant change and ignorant opposition to change."

Citrus graduates, he said, have the tools necessary to cope with rapid social change. Chief among those tools, he said, is the facility for critical thinking.

Noting that "very few of us do much of our own thinking," he suggested that the graduates should constantly be asking the question, "Where is the evidence?" in trying to assess what they see and hear.

"Not to do so," he said, "supports scapegoating and stereotypical behavior which leads to extremism and hysteria. But we won't have to settle for either extreme if we keep our cool and engage in dialogue of integrity."

Their education, he reminded the graduates, should stimulate them to become more deeply involved in the unfinished business of society" because we shall be faced with greater social chaos and we can't withdraw into a shell since the positions of power may be assumed by unqualified people."

Following Dawson's address, the 1973 graduating class was presented by Dr. Leo M. Thomas, college vice president and assistant superintendent for instruction.

A large audience of families and friends filled the bleachers of the stadium as associate degrees were awarded by Dr. Robert D. Haugh, college president, and Glenn H. Bashore, president of the college's board of trustees.

Ring lost in D.C. returned from Honolulu

HONOLULU (UPI) — A Virginia man lost his 1963 class ring in Washington, D.C., three years ago.

It was found recently, wedged in coral off Waikiki Beach. Gordon Battey of Fort Worth, Tex., found the ring and gave it to his niece, Mrs. Charles M. Seeley of Honolulu.

Mrs. Seeley wrote to the registrar of Jacksonville University in Florida, and it was determined from the ring's four initials, J.F.V.O., that it belonged to John F. Van Ogtrop of Alexandria, Va.

Last week, Mrs. Seeley mailed Van Ogtrop the ring. He was astonished, because he's never been to Hawaii.

No let up in fighting

SAIGON (UPI) — Fighting continued across much of South Vietnam Saturday despite the newly declared ceasefire. The South Vietnamese and the Viet Cong accused each other of wholesale violations in the first 24 hours of the new truce.

The Saigon command reported 119 persons on both sides were killed in the first 24 hours of the renewed truce, including 74 Communist troops, 37 government soldiers and eight civilians.

The Viet Cong's Liberation Press Agency, quoted by Hanoi's Vietnam News Agency, cited no figures but accused Saigon of using heavy artillery and infantry near Cu Chi, 25 miles northwest of Saigon, "causing heavy losses to the population."

Keeping your head above water is easier now that the lake bottom has all that junk to stand on.

1,500 receive diplomas in MSAC event

WALNUT — Mt. San Antonio College graduated a class of nearly 1,500 students during commencement ceremonies in the college stadium Friday evening.

Guest speaker was Stary Gange, special consultant to the Southern California Gas Co.

Gange's humorous address of personal experiences and changes in American society during his 70-plus years kept the graduates and audience in laughter throughout his speech.

"I believe that graduation should be a happy thing," said Gange. In a more serious vein he noted that "your education is never completed until you take your final breath."

Music for the ceremony was provided by the college band under the direction of J. David Wiggins.

THE LIGHTER SIDE

Ambassadorial price tag at rock bottom

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It has long been part of the American dream that any citizen, no matter how lowly born, can grow up to buy an ambassadorship.

I remember once when I was but a lad, my old grandfather took me upon his knee, gave my tousled head a pat and asked what I wanted to be when I grew up.

"Shucks, Gramps, I really haven't given it much thought," I replied, "but I reckon as how one day I would like to be ambassador to Luxembourg."

The old man's eyes lit up. "And you can do it, too, by cracky," he cried. "You might have been born on the wrong side of the tracks, but in a democracy like ours that doesn't bar anybody.

"As long as you're honest and diligent and intelligent and energetic and make a big campaign contribution to the right presidential candidate, you've got as much chance as anyone."

Just how deeply these inspiring words were graven upon my brain may be seen in the fact that as recently as last April 15, I was still striving to carry out my grandfather's game plan.

While preparing my income tax return, I magnanimously checked the box authorizing $1 of my taxes to be channeled into a presidential campaign kitty.

Admittedly, this gesture was somewhat overshadowed by the $300,000 that Ruth Farkas, the present ambassador to Luxembourg, contributed to President Nixon's campaign last year. But we all have to start somewhere.

It now appears, however, that those of us hoping for a fire sale of diplomatic posts may have our ambitions thwarted in Congress.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee is said to be drafting new policy rules that would deny confirmation, except in special cases, to ambassadorial appointees who also happened to be big campaign contributors.

Under this proposal, $5,000 would be the cutoff point.

At present rates, $5,000 wouldn't even get you a job as a diplomatic courier.

The committee move smacks of discrimination and is certain to have a depressing effect on the national economy by destroying yet another incentive.

I mean, what's the point of working hard all your life to amass a huge fortune if you can't spend it on an ambassadorship?

What's money for anyway, if not to buy the things you want?

Beyond that, it could lead to a nonstitutional crisis over filling a White House vacancy. For if the ambassadorial carrot is removed, campaign contributions may diminish to the point where neither candidate will have enough funds to win the election.

Journalists plead for shield law in worsening situation

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California journalists have called for passage of a "shield bill" to protect newsmen from being forced to divulge confidential sources of information.

Six bills and three proposed state constitutional amendments were considered for three hours by the Assembly Judiciary Committee Thursday and taken under submission for future action. Committee members indicated they planned to merge the various measures into one bill.

Proponents, including broadcast industry executives, told the committee that the free flow of information necessary for a democratic society is being jeopardized by judges who order reporters to disclose their news sources and turn over unpublished material or be sentenced to jail for contempt.

One of the bills' authors, Assemblyman Walter Karabian, D-Monterey Park, said: "What President Nixon may some day write in his memoirs as to how troublesome the press was to him is irrelevant to the fact that this nation has a right to know and only a free press can guarantee that right."

William F. Thomas, executive vice president and editor of the Los Angeles Times, said: "We've become a lawyers' grab bag. We have been under constant siege."

He said The Times has spent $200,000 in recent years to successfully fight 30 subpoenas and the threats of 50 others. "Thats a lot of money even for a wealthy newspaper," he said.

Thomas said confidential sources are dwindling and some of the media "is become gun shy" about publishing information which may result in costly court action.

Ernest Long, editor of the Calaveras Enterprise weekly newspaper in the Sierra foothill community of San Andreas, said the problem is especially acute for small papers in rural areas where there are limited news sources.

"If you have to face contempt charges because you're telling the truth, it is a form of censorship," he said.

Mark Hurwitz, attorney for Los Angeles Times reporter William Farr who was jailed for refusing to answer Grand Jury questions about the source of information, said, "the situation has reached catastrophic proportions."

William Eames, news director of KNXT-TV in Los Angeles; Paul Dallas, editorial director of KABC radio in Los Angeles, and J. Paul Huddleston, president of the Radio and Television News Association of Southern California, all urged enactment of "a full shield law."

Richard Fogel, assistant managing editor of the Oakland Tribune, said immunity should apply to raw material data gathered for production and to search warrants.

The committee considered measures by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael; Edwin L. Z'berg, D-Sacramento; Jerry Lewis, R-Highland, and Daniel E. Boatwright, D-Concord, in addition to Karabian.

Monokini suntanning

NICE, France (UPI) — The saucy monokini is the rage on the private beaches of Nice, the aristocratic citadel of European tourism, but police do not like it.

After ignoring the spread of topless tanning, police invaded private beaches Thursday and took identifications of a number of the sunbathers protected only by the bottom half of a bikini.

The fad has not reached public beaches.

Beach managers did not share the police objections.

"To my knowledge," said Jo Burdin, president of the Beach Owners Union, "the only problem is of an aesthetic nature, since there are breasts which would gain from being hidden.

"But of course gallantry prepents us from making even the slightest remark on such a subject."

Wild turkey Alabama state bird

MONTGOMERY, Alabama (UPI) — State Rep. Phil Smith convinced the Alabama House to name the wild turkey as the state game bird Thursday, but it wasn't easy.

When Smith introduced his bill, Rep. Don Stewart quickly offered an amendment to give that honor to the Dominique breed of chicken.

"When I was a boy of about three or four years old, I used to have a "dominicker pullet' and I know about their fighting spirit," he said.

This brought Rep. Sam Taylor to his feet.

"Mr. Speaker," he said. "I move we lay the pullet on the plate."

On Taylor's motion, Stewart's proposed amendment was defeated.

Then Rep. Bob Hill suggested an amendment to make Wild Turkey, a bonded whisky, the state drink. That was downed.

Rep. Pete Turnham was equally unsuccessful in trying to get the War Eagle, mascot of Auburn University, on the bill.

Finally, the House heeded Smiths plea that this is "serious legislation" and passed the measure.

High on beer, low in spirits

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Two young men who climbed a 100-foot high microwave tower to perch in the fog and drink beer found trouble when they came back down to earth.

Jonathan R. Avignon, 19, and Melville A. Cottle, 20, both of Oakland, were charged with trespassing.

Chess

Rook pawn is chronic disease

As chess is rapidly absorbed into the cultural mainstream of America, it is finding a natural home in the educational curriculum. Courses in chess are being offered for academic credit in many universities and secondary schools.

Looking ahead, one of my "colleagues" announced that the subject of his P.H.D. dissertation would be "The Queen Rook Pawn." He was immediately warned that his chosen subject was too broad for appropriate academic investigation. After some thought, he presented his revised topic: "The Queen Rook Pawn at Rook Two for Black in the Context of Russian National Character after the Fischer-Spassky Match."

Along with its other implications, this anecdote is illustrative of the fact that rook pawns are low in merit in the value hiearchies of chess players. An extra rook pawn by itself is usually insufficient material advantage for a win.

(See Diagram 1)

Doubtlessly, a substantial number of our readers are acquainted with the positions given in diagram one. In section I, the white king cannot escape from the corner, since his only try, 1) K-R8, K-B1 2) P-N7 is obviously a stalemate. In section II, although white has not been cornered, black has just as effectively blocked the advance of the pawn with his own king. Again, attempts to exploit the extra rook pawn end in stalemate, i.e., 1) K-N6, K-N1; 2) P-R7 check, K-R1; 3) K-R6 stalemate.

(See Diagram 2)

White would have cause for special frustration, if we added a bishop to either one of our two positions. In diagram two white is a bishop and pawn ahead and cannot win, because the bishop is of the color opposite to the queening square, QR8. The only way for white to force the black king from the corner is to knock it off the board.

(See Diagram 3)

Conditioned to expect a draw by previous experiences with king and rook pawn endgames, white routinely aceded to the draw in the position (Slage - Ayers, Berlin 1921; given in diagram three. He unimaginatively marched his king along the second rank and captured black's rook pawn. His opponent, following the path indicated in the diagram, arrived at B2 in time to achieve the drawn position of diagram one, Section 1.

White could have won, if instead he had marched toward the center (with no loss of time) as he moved toward the RP. The correct path would have been K6, Q5, B6, N7. The arrival of the white king at Q5 on move two would shoulder the black king out (he would lose a move in his progress toward B7) and the drawn position of diagram one would not be reached. Play through the position until you understand it "in your fingers." As in our last column, the white king demonstrates a prowess in moving in two directions at once.

Mother of 18 says last boy will be last

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — It was a healthy, seven-pound baby boy and Mrs. Samuel Martin says it will round out her family.

"This is going to be the last one," the 41-year-old wife and now mother of 18 said Thursday from her hospital bed.

"I never planned to have any of them," she laughed. "They just sort of happened along the way."

Mrs. Martin, who got married at 15, said she didn't recall ever deciding "how many children we wanted to have."

The mother of 10 boys and eight girls, all but three of whom are at home, said she has "gotten used" to being pregnant.

"I just try to keep on being myself and going on like I wasn't pregnant," she said. "The main thing is not to let it bother you or upset you."

No census form

CHICHESTER, England (UPI) — James Ashton went to jail Thursday for refusing to fill in a census form in 1971.

Ashton, a 73-year-old World War I pilot, refused to fill out the form because three successive governments had refused to set up a tribunal to examine his plan for reforming the United Nations.

'California Here I Come'

Golden State loses glitter

By JACK V. FOX

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A few days after news stories and pictures of the February, 1971, earthquake in Los Angeles were printed on front pages around the world, a native Angeleno remarked:

"Well, thank God for an earthquake now and then. Otherwise everybody in the country would be out here."

The man could remember back to the 1920s when the mountains glistened in the clear air, the big red trolleys and not the freeways ran to the beaches, the tallest building was the 27-story City Hall and Beverly Hills was ranch country.

Then, over 50 years, over five decades, he watched the outsiders tumble in—the Okies from the dust bowl, the wildcatters smelling oil, the GIs who got a taste of the land of milk and honey in World War II and never forgot sailing to the Pacific under the Golden Gate.

The girls drawn by the myth of Lana Turner at Schwab's Drug Store, the farm workers flocking to the lush San Joaquin Valley, the men and women at the Monterey canneries, the land developers.

Most populous state

The old folks—from Nebraska or Iowa or Missouri or Kansas —hunting a serene place in the sun, the religious fanatics and just plain nuts. The hippies.

And finally the horde of aerospace workers attracted to high pay and glamor jobs until at the peak, one out of every 20 adults in California was tuned in on that one industry.

In 1920, California had 3.4 million people.

The climax came in 1970 when the census showed that California had gone over the 20 million mark and replaced New York State as the most populous in the nation.

Even as that dubious eminence was reached, statistics showed that actually California had been undergoing a steady decline in migration into the state.

"In-migrant" Rate Drops

The total of "in-migrants" over those departing stood at 338,854 in the year 1962. But by 1970 it had shrunk to 40,430—a ratio of 1 to 8.

The capper came this year when Conrad Jamison, a population expert with the Security Pacific National Bank, released figures showing that Los Angeles County—the center of it all—was losing population at the rate of 64,000 a year.

So it finally became evident that some of the glitter is going out of the Golden State.

The man who blessed an occasional earthquake as a deterrent may be getting his wish that outsiders stay out.

Why the tarnish in California's allure? Is it a temporary phenomenon or is it permanent?

Reasons are myriad

The answers to "why" are myriad. Earthquakes, smog, bumper to bumper traffic, a drug-crazed Manson "family", campus violence, the Watts riots, Yosemite fouled with campers.

No doubt they all enter in.

But take earthquakes. The 1971 quake took 64 lives. And while being in the epicenter of a quake can be terrifying, logic dictates that the probability of death is far greater every year in a flood, tornado, hurricane or other disaster.

Take smog. New York's grit is far worse. Take Yosemite. California still is a land of unbelievable gratification in ocean, mountain and desert.

The almost inescapable conclusion is that the principal reason is economic. Jobs.

Aerospace recession

The aerospace industry is a prime example. In December, 1967, with the Apollo man-to-the-moon program at full blast, employment in ordnance, electronics, aircraft and instruments totaled 616,200 men and women—many of them with jobs paying $25,000 a year and more.

Then came a recession which particularly affected aerospace. Total employment in May, 1971, was down to 443,800. This past March it showed a resurgence to 471,200.

Agriculture is another case in point. Although California is one of the biggest agricultural states and its gross output increases yearly, farm employment has dropped because of mechanization. It was 287,100 in 1971 and 279,300 in 1972.

Jamison is one of those who think the economic factor is paramount. He points a finger specifically at "fanatic and militant environmentalists" while acknowledging the part played by those who would protect resources and natural beauty.

"California is getting a reputation of being an area where you can't do anything in new business or industry or get a job because the militant environmentalists will clobber you," he said.

Jamison says he believes "environmentalism" may have reached its high tide.

"I think people are beginning to realize that for most the quality of life begins with the job," he said. "Perhaps when we start having electricity brownouts people will think again about banning power plants in coastal areas."

There are many who take exception to that viewpoint and one is Michael McCloskey, executive director of the Sierra Club which is California's most powerful environmental group.

"We are in favor of zero population at the earliest feasible time," McCloskey said.

He looks on California's reduced population as a "hopeful sign."

"The state which has led the nation in so many things destructive to the environment may be showing signs now of leading the way to a more stable population," McCloskey said.

N. and S. California?

"What's happening is that environmentalists are no longer on the outside looking in and resorting to lawsuits to stop things. Voters are beginning to take the initiative. Business and industry will come to realize that a well planned community is a good climate for business."

The question of whether "bigness" is goodness has brought such conflict that there is discussion of dividing California into two states — North and South.

There were calls for halting the $2 billion California water project, which brings water from the rainy north more than 500 miles to the parched south via a canal-like viaduct.

Some northern Californians opposed the project because it would permit the 7 million population of the Los Angeles metropolitan area to be increased by 2 million more.

Pizazz fizzles

Aside from the falloff of migrants, the dramatic drop in the birth rate is even more significant in the levelling off of population.

The number of births in California dropped from 378,347 in 1962 to 306,600 in 1972 although the state's population rose by more than 3 million. That, of course, is a national trend.

Latest figures show that immigration has turned up slightly since the 40,430 rate in 1960. In 1971 it went up to 89,023 and last year to 103,600.

But one thing's for sure. There's not so much pizazz any more in the song, "California Here I Come."

Adequate nutrition stops brain damage

By Dr. Frank Miller

DEAR DR. MILLER: We took Felina in off the street as a terribly pitiful, big-eyed bag of bones and, amazingly, very pregnant. It is incredible that she kept her babies and delivered them, skinny as she was, but she did it. She couldn't nurse them, though. She didn't have any milk. We tried to hand-raise them and did save one. Felix, now six months, looks perfectly normal, has had his shots, eats well, in fact doesn't appear sick in any way except that he acts rather strangely. Sometimes he seems to be off in a world by himself. Even when we or his mother are around him, he goes into these sort of trances which seem to last a while and then he snaps out of it and appears reasonably normal again. When the veterinarian checked him a couple of times, he didn't go into any of these trances so he doesn't know what to make of it. Felix has been on vitamins and everything since he was very young and on good food. Do you have any idea what his strange behavior could be due to? If you do would you know whether he would grow out of it or whether it would get worse? — V. T.

Dear V. T.: Felix's fleeting flights from reality might be related to malnutrition in spite of his "nutritious" upbringing. If during fetal development the brain is deprived of adequate nutrition (some of the amino acids, protein, for example) permanent damage may result. In fact, this could be the most common cause of obscure brain damage in the newborn puppy (or kitten). Such damage, if slight, might be undetectable in the young and only occasionally observed in the older animal — but it can be a factor in behavorial peculiarities or maladjustments in later life. Other causes for similar damage in the unborn could range from chemical pollutants in the bloodstream of the mother due to viral infections.

In most cases, such damage would not be progressive as the animal matures. If, however, the pet suffered psychological trauma in addition to his initial problem, perhaps by being handled severely for an odd behavior pattern, then the unfortunate combination could cause a further mental imbalance and could lead, finally, to the animal's complete inability to cope. In less hostile surroundings and with an understanding owner, such an animal might do quite well and lead a reasonably normal and happy life.

McGovern: voters wanted to believe in President

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. George S. McGovern feels American voters did not accept his charge last year that the Nixon administration was "the most corrupt in history" because they want to believe in the President.

"They want to believe in the White House," McGovern said recently. "They want to believe in our government. They were reluctant to accept the indications of moral breakdown and corruption in this administration."

McGovern said in a television interview he did not think the Republicans' tactics of the Watergate type had much effect on the election. But he said if the voters had known about the coverup the results would have been different.

"I have no doubt in my mind that if the people of this country knew in October of last year, or November last year, what they know now about this administration, the election results would have been vastly different," McGovern said.

"But I don't think either in the primaries or in the general election that what they were actually doing in the way of bugging and burglarizing and wiretapping and the misuse of campaign funds, that those were the things that decided the election. It was the coverup that hurt us."

He got longer employment: jail extension

GLOUCESTER, England (UPI) — Ronald Aplin, 61, smashed a window in protest against being unemployed, then elected to go for trial before a higher court.

He told the judge he was tired of the magistrates court, where sentences were limited to only six months, and that unless he could get a job he wanted to go to prison for a longer time.

Judge Anthony Bulger then jailed him for nine months.

Boo on people who ignore double dates

Dear Ele and Walt: I would like to say something in your column in the hope that some of my friends would read it and take it to heart. It is that I think it is rude for two people to say they'll double date with you, which you think means that all four of you will have a good time together.

But then the two of them spend the whole evening practically having sex in the back seat, or doing nothing but giggling and whispering and talking together so you can't quite hear them but you can't ignore them either. This has just happened to me once too often. — JB

Dear JB: OK, henceforth establish ground rules when you propose a foursome. Be specific. "I'm looking for good company to interact with Nancy and I, not a pair who will make us feel left out or embarrassed."

If things get out of hand on the night of your joint date, take your friend in the other couple aside and pinpoint your grievence. If the passion or soto-voiced conferences must continue, arrange for the nondriving couple to taxi or bus home. — Ele and Walt

Dear Ele: I have very, very fine eyebrows and super-pale lashes. Because of this I always use an eyebrow pencil and light msascara, even when I'm going on a hike in the country. Lately, however, I have been evaluating this and trying to decide if it is right. If I were really liberated maybe I'd find this unnecessary. What is your opinion — "Paleface"

Dear "Paleface": If you couldn't find your makeup kit one day and consequently remained home from an event you really were anticipating, particularly something as casual as a country hike, I'd say you needed some consciousness raising to free yourself.

Such behavior would suggest you felt unworthy of other's company without your makeup. That obviously is a misassumption.

If however your makeup is readily available and you're not delaying the start of an excursion, I see no reason why you shouldn't employ some subtle eyebrow pencil and mascara to underscore the impact of your eyes. — Ele

Dear Walt: I have a friend who is always clowning around imitating movie stars and famous singers. When he tries to do the men stars, it doesn't work. But when he imitates the women, he is very accurate. Some of the guys have been saying behind his back that this means he is pretty feminine himself. Yet he acts masculine when he is not doing his act. What is your opinion — Jody

Dear Jody As a man, he's already got a very established set of responses. In short his own style makes it rough to carbon another male. But women are an entirely different canvas and he has no mannerisms or gestures of his own to overcome when he mimics a woman. He may or may not be potentially tranvestite or gay, but I'd say that has nothing to do with his ability to do a "Jim Bailey." — Walt

Nobel winner still nuclear plant foe

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — As Nobel Prize winning chemist Dr. Harold Urey sees his career nearing an end, the problems of nuclear energy and formation of the universe still drive him.

"I think the only thing to do when you get to be my age is retire gracefully and pleasantly and not worry too much about it," the University of California at San Diego professor emeritus said after celebrating his 80th birthday earlier this year.

But his actions belie the words. He still makes numerous speaking engagements to urge a moratorium on construction of nuclear power plants and has developed a new theory of formation of the universe.

Urey was awarded the Nobel Prize in 1934 for the discovery of deuterium or heavy hydrogen. It subsequently became an integral part of the hydrogen bomb.

"I'm sorry for this," Urey said. "I wish they (hydrogen bombs) didn't exist. We are in more danger from this growing buildup of bigger and bigger bombs than we would be if the Russians took over our government.

"If we shot all the bombs we have it would make the entire continent of Asia uninhabitable. No one knows the maximum effect on the world of all that radiation."

Of more concern recently, however, is construction of nuclear power plants.

Urey is one of 31 scientists who last year issued a statementurging a moratorium on their construction.

"Nuclear power plants present a safety hazard because of their very nature," he said. "In case of an accident, radiation could escape which could threaten the health of thousands."

He feels those building the plants are doing an excellent job of considering safety but there are some things safety devices cannot control.

"A reactor has to be cooled so it will operate safely," he said. "In case something would go wrong with the cooling system, the reactor would melt, and this meltdown would result in the release of radiation which could harm thousands."

He said there is nothing in the plants that could control such a meltdown after it began.

Strangely enough, the deuterium he discovered could solve the problem but its use has not been worked out.

"If we could get fusion of deuterium," he said, "the deuterium of the ocean would supply enough power in the world for the next five billion years."

The Atomic Energy Commission plant at Livermore and General Atomic in San Diego are among those working on the fusion aspect, and the Soviet Union is believed to have amny plants doing similar research.

But the key to the present Urey is his philosophy.

"Science is a wonderful, intellectual thing," he said. "I think from the beginning of time men wanted to understand the universe around them, just understand it."

His theory of the formation of the solar system represents such a search. It was presented to the annual meeting of the American Chemical Society last year as Urey was awarded that society's highest honor, the ACS Priestly Medal, for distinguished service in chemistry.

Urey nixed theories that the planets were formed by an explosion of the sun. Rather, he said, the sun originally was larger than the orbit of Neptune but gradually contracted to its present size.

As it contracted, it threw off excess gases and solids which formed into moon-sized objects which eventually collided to form planets.

The sun eventually exploded, but the result was to blow out most of the free gas and excess solid matter from the solar system.

The theory explains why the the axes of most planets are tilted rather than straight up and down and why the objects farthest from the sun still are surrounded by thick gas masses.

Urey may feel he is becoming old and retirement is near, but the poor boy from a Walkerton, Ind., farm is not ready to vegetate.

Wharf needs anglers back

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — What Fisherman's Wharf needs, says a mayor's committee hoping to preserve the waterfront district, is more fishermen.

The Citizens Committee for the Preservation and Beautification of Fishermen's Wharf reported that only 5 per cent of San Francisco Bay area's fish catch is now handled at the wharf.

They urged a study of how to bring the fishermen and their "character and atmosphere," back to the tourist district.

Erma Bombeck

When the good Lord was creating Fathers he started with a tall frame.

And a female angel nearby said, "What kind of Father is that? If you're going to make children so close to the ground, why have you put Fathers up so high? He won't be able to shoot marbles without kneeling, tuck a child in bed without bending, or even kiss a child without a lot of stooping."

And God smiled and said, "Yes, but if I make him child-size, who would children have to look up to?"

And when God made a Father's hands, they were large and sinewy.

And the angel shook her head sadly and said, "Do you know what you're doing? Large hands are clumsy. They can't manage diaper pins, small buttons, rubber bands on pony tails or even remove splinters caused by baseball bats."

And God smiled and said, "I know, but they're large enough to hold everything a small boy empties from his pockets at the end of a day . . . yet small enough to cup a child's face in his hands."

And then God molded long, slim legs and broad shoulders.

And the angel nearby had a heart attack. "Boy, this is the end of the week, all right," she clucked. "Do you realize you just made a Father without a lap? How is he going to pull a child close to him without the kid falling between his legs?"

And God smiled and said, "A Mother needs a lap. A Father needs strong shoulders to pull a sled, balance a boy on a bicycle, or hold a sleepy head on the way home from the circus."

God was in the middle of creating two of the largest feet anyone had ever seen when the angel could contain herself no longer. "That's not fair. Do you honestly think those large boats are going to dig out of bed early in the morning when the baby cries? Or walk through a small birthday party without crushing at least three quarters of the guests?"

And God smiled and said, "They'll work. You'll see. They'll support a small child who wants to 'ride a horse to Banbury Cross,' or scare off mice at the summer cabin, or display shoes that will be a challenge to fill."

God worked throughout the night, giving the Father few words, but a firm, authoritative voice; eyes that saw everything, but remained calm and tolerant.

Finally, almost as an afterthought, he added — tears. Then he turned to the angel and said, "Now, are you satisfied that he can love as much as a Mother?"

The angel shutteth up.

Can you expand intimate eatery?

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The problem is the same whether you run Harry's Hamburger Heaven, Dan's Dandy Delicatessen or Charles Chevillot's "La Petite Ferme."

How do you expand an intimate eatery which owes its success to the personality and culinary skills of its owner chef without losing your loyal customers?

If you're Chevillot and those customers include Jacqueline Onassis, Truman Capote and other so-called "beautiful people," you spend a lot of time on airplanes between your popular "hole-in-the-wall" in New York and your unheralded San Francisco replica.

You listen to some of your better known patrons asking, "Why don't you spend more time here?"

And worry about what they're going to say when you open the third version of your small French restaurant in the Hilton Hotel in Teheran in the fall.

Lots of restaurant owners, of course, would like to have worries and problems like those.

Chevillot, 39, who founded his first "La Petite Ferme" —the small farm—in a Greenwich Village bakery two years ago, is a casual-dressing Frenchman who drops names and chats about cooking and the changing restaurant scene with equal facility.

"I only paid $250 a month rent and I got my pots and pans from home," said Chevillot, whose family has operated a hotel-restaurant at Beune in the Burgundy district of France for three generations.

"I had six tables, seating 22 people, so I cooked what I liked... simple things like poached bass and calves liver. I didn't worry that if it wasn't fancy and didn't have the heavy sauces that French restaurants feel they have to serve."

Chevillot's previous post as manager of a huge restaurant in the CBS Building in New York and his acquaintance with the William Paleys eventually brought some of the city's famous to his eatery, which now has a two-to-three week waiting list for reservations.

"If I had planned it that way, it wouldn't have worked," he said. "They never would have come."

That may be part of Chevillot's problem in San Francisco, where he expected a similar response to his 40-seat, white walled and rough wooded restaurant.

"I don't want to be known as someone who caters to 'the beautiful people,'" he said over lunch on the back porch of his storefront restaurant in San Francisco's residential Richmond District. "It helps business and makes the phone ring, but I want people to come for the food and not just in hope of seeing someone."

"Fancy, expensive restaurants are in a decline for economic reasons and because of changing life styles. The time of captains and head waiters is over."

He said people are becoming unhappy about spending $50 for a dinner for two—even those who can easily afford it. "They object to that style of life, to wearing a coat and tie just for dinner."

Chevillot, who bicycles around town to buy meats and vegetables in the morning, said one answer is a limited menu and table-by-table cooking of simple fare.

"The most difficult thing to teach people in kitchens is to throw away things. We can throw out our leftovers, but big restaurants can't."

The owner-chef, who tried unsuccessfully recently to apply his cooking theories to airline fare and gave up when he found out most Americans seemed to prefer steaks to casseroles while flying, said the Teheran Hilton "La Petite Ferme" will determine whether "multiplication" is possible for his type of restaurant.

"If it won't work, I'll just stop," he said. "But mother always told me I was an optimist. I think if I spend 10 days a month at each one, I'll catch anything that's starting to go wrong."

Snake cuts off power and dies

LANCASTER, Pa. (UPI) — A foot-long black snake slithered into a Pennsylvania Power and Light Co. generating station Thursday and became wedged between two switches causing a short circuit which cut off power to 2,000 customers.

Oceania is for real but not its borders

CHICAGO (UPI) — Oceania, now in the midst of a cultural revolution, definitely is a place — one of the largest areas on earth. But its boundaries are a matter of opinion.

There is no question as to where it is. Oceania, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica, comprises the islands scattered throughout most of the Pacific ocean. The problem comes in establishing where it begins and ends.

The most comprehensive, though least useful, concept of Oceania is that it embraces all of the insular region between Asia and the Americas. A more common definition excludes nontropical areas, such as the Aleutians and the Japanese archipelago.

Specialists on Oceania further define the area by eliminating Indonesia, Formosa, and the Phillipines. This leaves a sort of geographical miscellany bordered by New Guinea, Palau, and the Marianas on the west, Hawaii on the north, Easter Island on the east, and New Zealand and Australia on the south.

Even in its most restricted meaning, Oceania comprises several million square miles of the earth's surface. In this vast watery area are mmre than 10,000 islands, consisting of about 500,000 square miles of land, with a population totaling more than 2.5 million islanders.

Scientists for decades have heatedly debated the origins of these islanders, but it has been established that this was one of the last regions on earth to be settled. No human beings lived in Oceania until about 20,000 years ago.

When the settlers arrived they brought along centuries-old social, economic and religious customs from their Indonesian and Asian homelands. While the "Civilized' world seethed in strife, generations of islanders lived in beauty and tranquility.

Each island became, in a sense, a laboratory in which a small community experimented while adapting its heritage to the new environment. This existence perhaps offered one of the world's best opportunities for individuality, for in the typically small settlement any islander had a chance to influence change in his own culture.

By the time Europeans began exploring the Pacific in the 16th Century there was an apparently unlimited variety of customs evolved by local groups to meet the problems of living in their own one-island worlds. For several centuries the area generally resisted pressures to change.

But by the end of World War II the multitudes of cultures were undergoing revolution through intensive contact with other groups from scattered parts of the world. The revolution has escalated and an entirely new society has begun to emerge.

Nixon not fussing with Watergate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House reports that President Nixon is spending "a very small percentage" of his time on following Watergate developments.

Gerald L. Warren, the deputy White House press secretary, said that Nixon receives summaries of the Senate Watergate hearings and other matters relating to the scandal. Warren said most of Nixon's working hours recently have been devoted to decisionmaking on inflation and the visit of Soviet Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev, which starts this weekend.

Says Bert DeMeter, printer, 2619 Alvira St., L.A., "I have been suffering from an ulcer for many years and spent lots of money for treatments and all kinds of diets but it keeps coming back. In 5 weeks under Dr. Wing I felt like a new person. I did not lose any time from work. No more poached eggs and milk, and I can eat all my meals in restaurants. It is a blessing to order regular meals again. It has been over 6 years and I am still feeling fine."

IT'S UNDERGROUND — The noise and rush of the city above are lost in the streets and cobblestone walkways which connect the shops, arcades, restaurants and lounges in Underground Atlanta — formed by a canopy of railroad passes built in the early part of the century over the original downtown section of the city.

Atlanta goes underground, beats noise of city above

ATLANTA (UPI) — In an era of topless dancers and risque comedians, Underground Atlanta remains a living memory of what entertainment used to be.

Lounges and restaurants book only clean, family-style acts and most waitresses are conservatively dressed. Tourists bring their children into the entertainment spots, even on busy weekends.

While the crime rate in center city Atlanta is among the highest in the nation, Underground has relatively little crime. Streets are tidy and shopkeepers are friendly.

The noise and rush of the city above are lost in the wide streets and cobblestone walkways which connect the shops, arcades, restaurants and lounges.

"Life is slow down here," said Epworth Smith, a 40-year veteran of the shoeshine business. "People aren't just walking slow, they're living slow. They come here to forget about life up above."

Underground Atlanta is the original downtown section of the city which thrived in the 19th Century. A series of railroad passes built in the early part of the century formed a canopy over the old area, and by 1929 it was sealed over.

The sub-city came to life again in 1967 when two bachelor graduates of Georgia Tech established the Underground Atlanta Corp., and began restoring the old buildings. The Underground now is strictly big business, with annual gross receipts from all the establishments topping $15 million.

A visitor can take his choice of 20 restaurants with food ranging from prime steaks to Mexican dishes to old fashioned chicken and biscuits.

The shops cater to tourists with ample supplies of inexpensive souvenirs. Nowhere are the shoppers more eager to buy than at the tiny shop run by former Gov Lester Madox and his wife, Virginia.

Maddox is in the shop nearly every night, autographing T-shirts and posters and promoting his famous "Pickrick drumstick" —ax handles reminiscent of his confrontation with civil rights activists in 1964.

Managers of nearby shops appreciate the business Maddox draws. Their only complaint is that the crowds waiting to see him often block their entrances.

"People, particularly country people, adore him," one shopkeeper said. "They feel if Lester is here, it must be a nice place to be. They say, 'It's okay down there'."

Spain's cafes succumb to modern life

MADRID (UPI) — It used to be said that Spanish intellectuals owed their longevity to the cafes where they met after siesta to sit and talk over coffee.

But Spain has changed. Traffic jams have made the siesta shorter and shorter. And there are only four of the oldstyle cafes left—in Madrid, Barcelona, Zaragoza and Almeria.

"The pace of life today is what killed the others," said Jose Lopez de Brito, part-owner and manager of Madrid's Cafe Gijon.

"People worked less before, There's no time in the day now to sit and think. The car has been a big factor—now people want to drive into the country to get away from it all."

But despite the disappearance or conversion of 20 to 25 Madrid cafes since the war, Gijon— where Ernest Hemingway and matador Antonio Ordonez talked bulls, where Pio Baroja wrote some of his novels, and where poets Antonio and Manuel Machado held court—is still very much in business.

It has become newly fashionable among young radicals, and a group of 20 to 25 young academics and journalists poets meet there nearly every afternoon between 3:30 and 5:45— keeping alive the tertulia (discussion group) tradition of pre-war decades.

The cafe's cultural committee still awards annually a presitious literary prize—a reminder that Gijon mostly drew poets and writers as its regulars.

Other cafes catered to artists, politicians, academics or bullfighters—though Manolete, Ordonez and Antonio Bienvenida were seen often at Gijon.

Amid the explosion of cafeterias, American bars, lounge bars and English pubs in Madrid, clients have come to prize the decor common to most of the old-style cafes—marble-topped tables or stout iron columns, low-slung creamcolored velvet divans, black and white checkerboard tiled floors.

There was no bar—just waiters cruising with coffee-pot in one hand and milk jug in the other or pouring "copas" of cognac or anisette, the only liquor served in the house.

Normally clouded with tobacco smoke, the atmosphere in the cafes was like that of a gentlemen's club. Women were hardly ever seen and never unaccompanied.

Today a few concessions have been made. One of Gijon's resident "tertulias" is a group of poetesses and there is a wider variety of drinks available.

Claim thin smoker in more danger than fat nonsmoker

BERLIN (UPI) — A fat nonsmoker is less likely to have a heart attack than a thin cigarette smoker, a German doctors' congress here was told.

Prof. Siegfried Heyden of Sankt Gallen, Switzerland, said that persons who stop smoking will gain an average of 10 pounds in the five years after they stop. He said the more they had smoked, the more they would gain.

But he said this is no reason to keep on smoking, because even the thinnest cigarette smoker is in more danger of a heart attack than the fattest nonsmoker.

He said more cigarette smokers die of heart attacks than lung cancer.

Prof. Frederick Epstein of the University of Michigan told the congress that the danger of a heart attack for cigarette smokers is three times as great as for non-smok-

Rome issue dedicated to Venice

By GUSTAV DETJEN, JR.

On March 5 and April 10 Italy issued a set of five stamps dedicated to Venice and to its art and culture. The values and designs are:

20 lire — Riva debli Schiavoni, a famous spot in Venice during high water;

25 lire — The Tetrarchs group, an Egyptian sculpture dating back to the fourth century, representing warriors embracing each other;

50 lire — the central part of a painting "The Triumph of Venice," by Vittore Carpaccio. On the right side the Lion of St. Marks is shown, with the Doge's Palace in the background;

90 lire — four gilded bronze horses that adorn the front of St. Mark's Basilica;

300 Lire — Piazzetta S. Marco, as it is seen from St. Mark's Square during high-water, the flood phenomenon which distresses and threatens Venice.

On May 24 a set of six multi-colored stamps was released by Liberia to mark the 10th anniversary of the Organization of African Unity. Liberia was one of the founding nations in 1963. Its current membership consists of 41 African states. Single sets at $1.16 may be ordered from Liberian Philatelic Agency, 261 Broadway, Room 702-D, New York, N.Y. 10007. Certified mail 30c.

From July 1 on the Isle of Man will become postallym independent and will issue its own postage stamps recognized internationally under the auspices of the Universal Postal Union. On July 5 the 16 stamp definitive series will be released, a colorful set, which doubtless will attract many new collectors to our hobby. Information available from Isle of Man Post Office Authority, P.O. Box 10.M, Douglas, Isle of Man, via United Kingdom.

The National Association of Precancel Collectors will hold its 24th annual convention from Aug. 15 to 19 at the Recreation Center, 243 E. Rio Grande Ave., Wildwood, N. J. and there is no admission. Collecting pre-cancelled stamps is another interesting facet of Philately. If you are interested in a Precancel Type Chart, it will be sent free of charge. Send a stamped addressed envelope to the Secretary, N.A.P.C., Box 121-D, Wildwood, N.J. 08260.

The June issue of the German Postal Specialist also contains some interesting information on the value of the expertizing Service of the Germany Philatelic Society. Illustrated are various covers declared genuine by various "experts" but actually fraudulent. Information on membership available from Mrs. Johanna Schaefer, P.O. Box 88-D, Valparaiso, Ind. 46383.

The Hardware City Stamp Club of New Britain, P.O. Box 707-D, New Britain, CT 065050 has issued a commemorative cover in honor of the return of New Britain's native son, John T. Downey, the country's longest-held prisoner of war. He was released on March 10 after more than 20 years in captivity. The covers are postmarked March 12, when he reached New Britain. Two covers $1 plus large stamped addressed envelope; a part of each dollar will be donated to the N.B. Memorial Hospital.

Spotted bass had a hangup on hookups

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UQI) — Yo-Yo, a spotted sand bass that didn't get any smarter as it got older, "has been reeled in for the last time."

That announcement came recently from the California Department of Fish and Game, which said the fish was caught four different times in 18 months at the same spot at Newport Harbor on the Pacific Ocean.

The fish was tagged and tossed back the first three times as too small. The fourth fisherman ended Yo-Yo's career.

Objects of criticism by Via Verde homeowners

S.D. planners to visit proposed condominium sites

By LENORE WALLACE
P-B Staff Writer

SAN DIMAS — The San Dimas Planning Commission will visit the site of two controversial condominium developments proposed for the Via Verde area Wednesday to determine among other things if these will have a detrimental effect on the area.

Some residents of Via Verde don't want the condominiums constructed and expressed their feelings to planners at a public hearing June 5. They will also appear Wednesday night. The commission will meet in Via Verde at 6 p.m. and conduct the public hearings at 8 p.m. at city hall.

The case involves requests for conditional use permits to construct a 63-unit condominium on the east side of Via Verde between Camino Del Sur and the proposed street Camino Del Cerritos. The other case is also for a conditional use permit to construct a 55-unit condominium development in the Via Verde golf course area northerly of the clubhouse and southerly of West Avenida Loma Vista.

Crow Pacific Development Co. of Newport Beach is the applicant for both projects. The developments are less than a mile apart in the Via Verde development.

Dr. Marvin Ersher, president and spokesman for the Via Verde Homeowners Association, said he feels the city should deny all permits on developments until there are hearings on the new general plan which will include the Via Verde area. The general plan hearings will be conducted in September.

Ersher said the association feels that the city should consider all aspects of the general plan and not deal with what he called "piece meal" development.

The commission on June 5 heard testimony from nine residents of Via Verde, including Ersher, who opposed the 63-unit development. Residents object to a proposed vehicle storage lot for recreational vehicles which they stated would create a nuisance to other residents living on the bluff above the development.

They also testified there would be traffic problems because of the development and that the general development would be a noise problem to residents living above it.

Ersher said the association opposes the 55-unit development on the grounds that the general plan isn't completed but he said he doesn't know enough about the specifics of the project to speak about the case.

Commissioner David Brode stated at the meeting that in his opinion the proposed development is "deficient in a number of ways." He cited that there is no real buffer between the subject property and the area to the north; that there will be some detrimental effect on adjoining properties; that the recreational storage lot is at the lowest elevation point; that no tot lots (children play areas) are provided; and that the open space provided is only minimal.

Commissioner Robert Sturrock objected to the lack of sufficient on-site parking and that the applicant proposed to furnish off-street visitor parking on Via Verde.

The commission decided to visit both sites where the proposed developments would be constructed to familiarize themselves with the area and to try to visualize where the units will be constructed.

Chino attorney in line for Justice Court post

CHINO — Philip Schaefer, a Chino attorney, may become the new judge of the Chino Justice Court.

County Supervisor Ruben S. Ayala of Chino will nominate him Monday to other supervisors to replace Judge Ben Burrell who will resign July 1 to become a traffic referee.

Schaefer was recommended for the post by Municipal Court Judges Roy Chapman, Kenneth Ziebarth and David Merriam. They met Friday with Ayala.

The supervisor said the appointment may involve some legal clarifications. Ayala will ask the county counsel to rule on possible requirements of the State Judicial Council selecting the top three candidates and the need to advertise the position. The need for a council screening came to light with the recent resignation of another Justice Court judge in a desert community.

Ayala said he believed the council was only an advisory group. During the past several years, he noted, Justice Court judges had been appointed in Trona, Big Bear and Twnety-nine Palms without council screening.

He also reported that Superior Court judges in San Bernardino County had ignored the council's recommendation in seeking two additional judgeships. "If the Superior Court judges can ignore the council, then so can I."

Ayala stressed a need of selecting a new judge prior to July 1.

Schaefer is expected to be promoted to Municipal Court judge status when the Chino Judicial District becomes a municipal court district late this year or early next year.

"A municipal court district will be required when the district's population reaches 40,000," said Ayala. "We now have around 38,000 people, with 1,200 homes now under construction.

"When these homes are completed and occupied, then we will have that number."

The change from judicial to municipal court status will increase the judge's salary from about $16,000 to about $33,000 a year, noted the supervisor.

Ayala also reported on plans to enlarge the present justice court in the county building located on Central and Chino avenues, adjacent to the Chino civic complex.

With the library moving into its new building at Central Avenue and D Street, this room can be used to enlarge the courtroom and enlarge the clerks' area, he added.

This will be used on an interim basis until a proposed municipal court structure in the new county-city complex is completed, said Ayala.

Powerful California congressional delegation walks lightly---Pettis

By RICK GOTCHER
P-B Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Fear that a display of unity might give the impression of "muscling" Congress has kept the California delegation anxious to maintain a low profile, says Rep. Jerry Pettis.

Responding to a report that the California representative (43) and senators (2) have failed to exert the kind of influence expected from the nation's largest congressional contingent, Pettis said it is wise "to be very careful not to have a high leadership profile."

Pettis said 43-votes in the House is a "massive bloc" for any one state to control.

"If you don't watch out, that kind of organization can become kind of muscle-bound," he said. "Some other congressmen are already afraid and chary of that kind of bigness."

But despite the desire to low-key its size, Pettis said there is no reason to believe the delegation is unable to make an impact when the occasion warrants.

"We haven't had too many issues where California was a factor all by itself," the congressman said. "The last one was the Clean Air Act. In that instance, Republicans and Democrats stood together to uphold our own, more stringent state law."

Pettis criticized bureaucracy for making California automobile drivers "guinea pigs for the rest of the nation." Referring to a recent Environmental Protection Agency decision to use the state as a national testing ground for a catalytic converter to reduce pollution, Pettis said California legislators banded to oppose the decision.

"We stood together, but we lost that one," he said. "California drivers will have to pay 2-or-3 hundred bucks extra for cars while the rest of the country gets off."

Closer to home, Pettis said that despite the obvious philosophical differences between himself and Rep. George Brown of the neighboring 38th District, they are able to operate smoothly.

One item Pettis feels he and Brown have moved closer to agreement on is expansion of Ontario International Airport. When the airport was part of Pettis district he was an active supporter of expansion. He says he still is "foursquare for it."

Pettis said the basic difference between him and Brown is that Brown approaches the expansion "negatively," while he speaks of it "positively." The congressman said there is no doubt the Ontario airport will be a tremendous asset to California—and will be so while adhering to the environmental criteria demanded by Brown.

"Ontario is the logical place for expansion, and it just has to be," said Pettis. "I think when George first came to the new district for election he was looking for a place to plant himself. One of the most vocal groups around was the anti-expansion group. He supported their cause.

"I can't disagree with George's stance to protect the environment. But we are already two year's behind on the project because we've been so supercautious."

HAPPINESS IS . . .

Put a 3-year-old boy like Chris Richards and a puppy together and the result can be an affectionate scene like this. The puppy is from the Humane Society of Pomona Valley's animal shelter which will give away a puppy and a kitten to winning entries in a pet essay contest for children 6 to 12 years. This is being co-sponsored by the society and the Pomona Public Library.

Essay contest opens

Want pet?—start writing

POMONA — The Humane Society of Pomona Valley and the Pomona Public Library are co-sponsoring a pet essay contest for children 6 to 12 years.

First prize will be a puppy, with a kitten going to the sefond-place winner. Third prize will be a free dog license.

To enter, children should obtain their parents' permission and in 25 words or less complete the sentence, "I can make a good home for a pet because. . ."

Pets to be given away as prizes by the society will have received all required immunizations. Winning children are required to have a parent or relative over 21 when they receive the pets.

Bruce Richards, executive director of the society, will present a "safety with animals" program at the library July 12, at 11 a.m.

He will talk about the do's and don'ts of dealing with different kinds of animals, from the dogs and cats at home to the rabbits and squirrels found in the wilderness areas.

After his presentation, Richards will present the prizes to the pet contest winners.

On July 13, the library will sponsor a children's pet show in front of the library on the Civic Center Palaza.

The show will be open to children 6 to 12 but each child will be permitted to enter only one pet. All participants will receive a prize.

Pets entered must be on a leash or string or in a safe cage.

INDEPENDENCE DAY CELEBRATION

Pam Lambine, Miss Pomona Valley, receives another title—that as promoter for Pomona Fireman's Association's annual July 4th fireworks show at the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds in Pomona. With her are Firemen Mario Citro, left, and Dave Spencer. Miss Lambine will compete in the Miss California-Miss America beauty pageant June 24-30 at Santa Cruz. Tickets for the fifth annual fireworks show, at $2 each for adults and $1 for children, are on sale at all city fire stations.

MSAC dilemma

Teacher law prevents hiring of layoffs for night session

WALNUT — The very laws which have been passed to protect them apparently are preventing daytime teachers who have recently been laid off by Mt. San Antonio College from going to work in the evening division.

Nine probationary and temporary teachers were laid off by the district two months ago when it became clear that the college's daytime average daily attendance would drop.

Some of the teachers had been assigned to both the day and evening division, working toward improvement of their standing among the faculty.

When they were laid off, their assignments were terminated as of July 1, at both the day and evening divisions.

Larry Parker, an official of the MSAC faculty association, presented the plight of these teachers to the trustees last week and urged the board to let them work in the evening division which, he said, had shown an increase of 900 in enrollment during the spring.

But Charles Buie, director of the evening division, informed the board that if the teachers were reassigned, under the present laws the action would reinstate them to their former positions.

A check with the county counsel's office backed up Buie's contention that the reassignment of the teachers would invalidate the board's "lay-off action" of two months ago.

"It's unfortuante that under the present law we can't rehire the teachers," Eldon Pearce, president of the college, said, "because they're all very capable people. If any money becomes available, we will certainly recommend that the board rehire them."

Board President William B. Temple said the board already had considered the possibility of transferring the teachers to the evening division but had decided against it because of "legal implications."

The law provides that a daytime teacher who is assigned to the evening division will continue to earn seniority. In the case of MSAC the teachers, had they been transferred to the evening divisions, would have qualified for tenure at the end of next year.

"It's regretful," Buie said. "But it seems the teachers have become victims of the very law that was passed to protect them."

The board agreed and reaffirmed its action to drop the teachers.

Montclair to mull saving minibike park

MONTCLAIR — An interim report on the feasibility of relocating the city's minibike park will be delivered to the City Council Monday during a 7:30 p.m. meeting in the council chambers.

The park was originally scheduled to be closed permanently with the beginning of work on Montclair Parkway, but community interest prompted the council to seek an alternate location at the last council meeting two weeks ago.

Opinion

Change for change not always good

Life in California's capitol is quietly and significantly changing.

The same number of bills are going into the Sacramento legislative hopper. There is more and better paid staffing. Offices are reasonable and conducive to the production of a day's work. Legislative salaries, per diem and other fringe benefits are the best in the country. In short the physical functioning of the state legislature is a model for the country and the envy of state legislators almost everywhere.

But this isn't the new ingredient.

The refurbishing, the staffing, the decent salaries and working conditions are the result of the work of a state constitutional revision committee under the chairmanship of Judge Bruce Sumner, himself a former legislator. This work was embodied in a constitutional amendment. Former Speaker of the Assembly Jess Unruh and then Minority Leader Robert Monagan persuaded business and labor to get behind the measure and give it a push for ballot approval. And it was to the credit of all concerned.

The new ingredient is another bit of constitutional revision which places the California Legislature on the same two year session basis as the United States Congress. Formerly, each year the California legislature started and finished that year's work and anything left undone had to be recommended the next year.

Now the rules have changed. Any measure introduced in the first year of a session and not acted upon by the annual deadline for moving measures of one house to the other remains alive and well when the legislature reconvenes for the second year of the session. The argument for this approach was that it would make for more orderly legislative process, fewer bills being jammed in at deadline time, and provide more time for interim committee hearings so that complex measures could be given proper thought and attention and not be dealt with summarily.

The fact seems to be that it just hasn't worked out this way.

There are still just as many bills going in. There is not any more orderly or more thoughtful committee process evolving. All of the old problems, or most all, remain. On the negative side, every turkey of a bill, the legislature couldn't care less about sits around for two years, not one, before it is dispatched, which requires a far more wary outlook on the part of legislators and unsuspecting citizens than previously was the case.

As some wise man once remarked, change for the sake of change is not necessarily good.

New light on auto safety

A significant step toward greater safety on our streets and highways was taken when the Department of the California Highway Patrol reported to the Legislature its approval of legislation previously passed and signed which is aimed at reducing rear-end automobile collisions.

CHP approval is required for all new automotive signal lights and safety devices before such enabling legislation can become effective.

The legislation amending the State Vehicle Code was authored by Assemblyman Ken Cory of Garden Grove. It permits installation of a new deceleration warning system called Cyberlite by its inventor, Dr. John Voevodsky of Portola Valley.

Cyberlite is basically a pulsing amber light activated by braking action but scientifically controlled by the car's deceleration. As deceleration increases, so does the rate of pulsation. In this way, Dr. Voevodsky has explained, the following driver is instantly informed of what the car ahead is doing and instinctively takes appropriate braking action. By too-often fatal contrast, the usual static red stop light merely indicates that the driver has his brakes on, and leaves dangerously time-consuming judgment-making up to the following driver.

Dr. Voevodsky compares this reaction contrast to that created by touching a warm or a hot stove.

Cyberlite was given an extensive test last year by the Yellow Cab Company of San Francisco under actual traffic conditions. The result was a remarkable 60 percent decrease in rear-end collisions from the Company's 1917 record. A special CHP permit and San Francisco Police department cooperation made the important test possible.

California drivers can well applaud Dr. Voevodsky, Assemblyman Cory and the governmental agencies involved for making possible a new and proven means of cutting down significantly our much too high rate of traffic accidents.

Watergate wry

A Hearst columnist recently added a touch of wry to the Watergate situation by quoting John Roosevelt's reaction to the developments.

"I can't understand all the commotion in this case," the son of FDR was quoted as saying. "Hell, my father just about invented bugging. Had them spread all over, and thought nothing of it."

Indiscreet actions at Bureau of Mines

WASHINGTON — Two top Bureau of Mines officials have accepted free air travel from the coal companies they regulate or from contractors doing business with the government.

Both the director, Dr. Elburt Osborn, and a deputy director, Donald Schlick, appear to have violated a regulation, which expressly forbids employes from accepting gifts and gratuities from companies under their jurisdiction.

Here are the details:

— On March 19, 1971, Osborn was asked to address a mine safety meeting in Indiana, Pa. When he declined because of poor airline connections, an executive with the Florence Mining Company, James Hurley, offered to charter a plane. Osborn flew the chartered aircraft to the meeting and flew the same company plane back to Washington the next day.

Missed flight

— On Sept. 18, 1971, Osborn missed a commercial flight which would have taken him from Charleston, W. Va., to Johnstown, Pa. the president of the giant Consolidation Coal Company, John Corcoran, offered a ride in the firm's plane. Osborn accepted.

— Three weeks later, on Oct. 7, 1971, Osborn rode in a Pittston Company helicopter from Charleston, W. Va., to Lexington, Ky., where he addressed the Kentucky Coal Association. To the coal operators' surprise, Osborn lambasted them for their high fatality rate.

— On May 24, 1972, another Pittston helicopter ferried the Bureau of Mines director over Buffalo Creek, W. Va., the area that was devastated three months earlier when a Pittston dam broke and coal waste poured down the valley.

Donald Schlick and three of his aides managed to obtain some hard-to-get tickets to the 1973 superbowl game in Los Angeles. While they were on the West Coast, they rode in a Food Machinery Corporation plane from Los Angeles to a mine site in Wyoming where the three Bureau of Mines officials were headed. FMC corporation happens to hold a multi-million-dollar research contract with the Bureau of Mines. For this indiscretion, Schlick was officially warned that his conduct henceforth must be "beyond reproach."

White House favorite

— Nevertheless, Schlick allegedly has been involved in at least two other conflicts of interest, involving football tickets and corporate plane rides, with organizations doing business with the Bureau of Mines. Neither of these, however, were investigated. The reason, according to insiders, is that Schlick is considered a White House favorite.

Footnote: Director Osborn explained that when he accepted the free plane rides, there was no policy forbidding them. It "never occurred" to him at the time, he told us, that he was doing wrong. "But I wouldn't do it again," he promised. We were unable to reach Schlick for comment.

Who's Lying: Rep. Roger Zion, R-Ind., is sputtering over our report that he pressured Washington lobbyists into donating prizes for the annual Congressional Golf Tournament. A "perverted exaggeration of the truth," he called our story.

PAUL HARVEY

What are fathers made of?

A father is a thing that is forced to endure childbirth without an anesthetic. A father is a thing that growls when it feels good — and laughs very loud when it's scared half to death.

A father is sometimes accused of giving too much time to his business when the little ones are growing up. That's partly fear, too. Fathers are much more easily frightened than mothers.

A father never feels entirely worthy of the worship in a child's eyes. He's never quite the hero his daughter thinks: never quite the man his son believes him to be, and this worries him, sometimes.

So he works too hard trying to smooth the rough places in the road for those of his own who will follow him. A father is a thing that gets very angry when the first school grades aren't as good as he thinks they should be. He scolds his son, though he knows it's the teacher's fault.

A father is a thing that goes away to war, sometimes. And learns to swear and shoot and spit through his teeth and would run the other way except that this war is part of his only important job in life — which is making the world better for his child than it has been for him.

Fathers grow old faster than people because they, in other wars, have to stand at the station and wave goodby to the uniform that climbs aboard. Mothers can cry where it shows. Fathers have to stand there and beam outside — and die inside.

Fathers have very stout hearts, so they have to be broken sometimes or no one would know what's inside. Fathers are what give daughters away to other men who aren't nearly good enough so they can have grandchildren that are smarter than anybody's.

Fathers fight dragons — almost daily. They hurry away from the breakfast table, off to the arena which is sometimes called an office or a workshop. There, with calloused, practiced hands, they tackle the dragon with three heads: weariness, work and monotony. And they never quite win the fight but they never give up.

Knights in shining armor or fathers in shiny trousers — there's little difference. Fathers make bets with insurance companies about who'll live the longest. Though they know the odds they keep right on betting. Even as the odds get higher and higher, they keep right on betting, more and more. And one day they lose.

But fathers enjoy an earthly immortality, and the bet's paid off to the part of him he leaves behind. I don't know where fathers go when they die. But I've an idea that after a good rest — wherever it is — a father won't be happy unless there's work to do.

He won't just sit on a cloud and wait for the girl he's loved and the children she bore. He'll be busy there, too, repairing the stairs, oiling the gates, improving the streets — smoothing the way.

Makes it all worthwhile

Gossip for today

It happened in 1865! —That was the year the first Health and Diet book was published in America. It proved so popular that thousands of diet "authorities" decided to get into the act, many of them becoming almost overnight millionaires from the sale of their literary efforts.

And ever since that first eat-and-grow-thin masterpiece appeared, women throughout America have been comparing notes, discussing the relative merits of the diet programs outlined by the various authors, and talking a blue streak about the intriguing subject. Which in most instances, is about ALL they ever do about it. However, in all fairness, it must be admitted that some of the more faithful dieters DO switch from one plan to another but they do it with such rapidity that nothing has much of a chance to really work.

In either case though, while they have done little about their avoirdupois, the gals have succeeded in achieving a feeling of mental well being and a sense of righteousness which makes it possible for them to grow fat gracefully while blaming their failure to reduce on the incompetence of the diet book authors.

Jaycees to spread message of success

By RICK GOTCHER
P-B Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — A key failure of Great Society poverty programs has been the inability to actively involve local business in the "war on poverty."

This was immediately apparent from a report issued in March that criticized Community Action Agencies for failing to "mobilize" outside resources.

Sprung as part of the administration's combat plan to discredit CAA's, the report makes a valid point—CAA's have been able to change only one of every 3,000 businessees' hiring habits during the last 7-to-8-years. As the report said, that is "truly terrible performance;" especially since the prime goal of the poverty war was to bring poor people into the mainstream where they could really help themselves.

Now, with the Office of Economic Opportunity facing extinction by month's end unless Congress acts to reprieve it, someone has come up with the idea to give a $3-million grant to the U.S. Jaycees to spread the good word about poverty programs.

Identifying self-help groups

Should the money materialize, a special Jaycee unit would identify 500 successful self-help groups and tell the poor about them. The purpose if obvious—to encourage similar results among those who have seen nothing but discouragement.

The major yardstick for gauging success of spotlighted programs will be the actual impact made by poor people. Ideally the Jaycees will zero in on self-help programs such as economic development; housing; employment; adult education; health; recreation and child care.

When a successful program is found, the Jaycees will write up its merits for publicizing. Hopefully, other areas will be able to adopt workable programs.

The Jaycees, according to Morgan Doughton, assistant director for OEO evaluation, will bear all indirect costs of the spotlight program. That is, the Jaycees will not charge the government for use of their regular facilities, as other applicants usually do.

In the Jaycee's grant propoasal to OEO, the program is described as a "national competition to award 'tell it like it is' grants for study and communication" of success. The objectivities to provide self-help guides and a "library of relevant 'can-do' self-help literature" spread by "self-help Johnny Appleseeds."

Funds not guarantee of success

Just because the government approves a program for funding does not mean that program will work. But there is much about the Jaycee plan that is intriguing, and worthy of consideration.

First, Jaycees in any community readily accept civic responsibility. They know their locale and the people in it. Perhaps more importantly, they are known by the people they live and work with as a group always willing to improve the community.

Second, Jaycees have already established a national network of communication based on leadership and service.

Most important, Jaycees have no ax to grind. They are a credible link within the community between divergent interests. They know the value of private enterprise and work within business confines.

And for those who criticize that Jaycees are just another part of the establishment, it's well to reflect that they are part of the establishment that succeeds. Even a brief acquaintanceship with success would do wonders for people who don't know what the word means.

Pomona council will hold public hearing on budget

POMONA — A public hearing on the proposed city budget for 1973-74 will be held by the City Council at the beginning of its regular Monday 8 p.m. meeting.

City Administrator Ora E. Lampman on May 7 proposed a work program for the new fiscal year that included a municipal budget at $14,401,494 and a budget of $1,980,500 for the self-supporting water department.

Since that time, however, the council at work sessions has leaned toward cutting expenditures by $275,710. No action has been taken by the council on these proposed cuts.

In addition, Lampman is recommending that the budget be modified to reflect the promotion of Clarence Webb, administrative aide in the community relations office, to the position of community relations coordinator.

Lampman in May submitted a balanced budget that calls for no city tax increase. It does not include cost of living salary increases for employes, for which negotiations have been going on.

The proposed $16,381,994 budget for 1973-74 compares with $15,244,076 budget adopted a year ago. The 1972-73 total included $119,795 for a few months' operation of the Pomona Valley Municipal Transit System, which the city no longer owns.

Other matters scheduled for the evening meeting include:

—Second reading of an ordinance adopting the public health code.

—First reading of an ordinance, previously held over twice, increasing the speed limit on La Verne Avenue, from Garey to Mountain avenues, from 25 to 35 miles per hour. Some residents have opposed the increase.

—Resolution authorizing the purchase from Darwin J. Tuttle of 328 Pomona Mall East by Vehicle Parking District No. 2.

—Resolution awarding the contract for street and storm drain improvements in Palomares Street from First Street to Holt Avenue.

—Resolution adopting plans and specifications for street and storm drain improvements in Bonita Avenue from Towne Avenue to the easterly city limits and Towne from the Santa Fe railway to Bonita.

— Resolution confirming summary abatement taken at 2126 W. Orange Grove Ave.

—Resolution determining public necessity for acquisition in fee simple of certain property for widening of Philadelphia Street at 865 E. Philadelphia.

—Report on the intersection of Valley Boulevard and Norton Street where one child recently was struck by a car and killed and another injured.

—Notices of application for alcoholic beverage licenses for Brunswick Pom Lanes, Fire House Inn and Papa Bill's.

—Recommendation for drafting of simplified election code for use in future council elections.

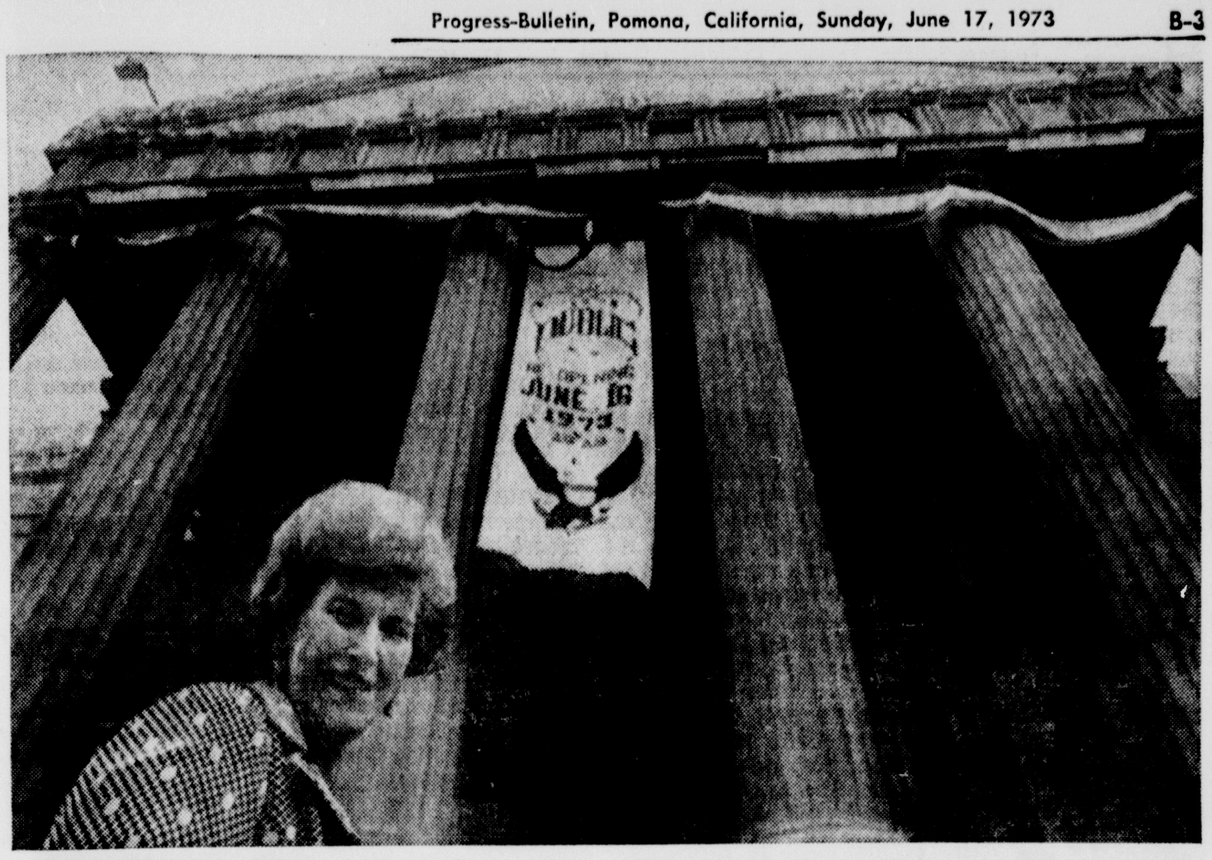
—Request of Friends of Ontario International Airport that Mayor Ray J. Lepire sign a request urging withdrawal of a Civil Aeronautics Board restraining convenant with World Airways.

Items scheduled for the informal, 4 p.m. session include:

—Joint meeting of the council with the board of parking place commissioners.

—Report on the assignment of 217 summer job positions for youths, created under the federal Emergency Employment Act summer youth program, to various city departments and seven other agencies and organizations.

—Discussion on the modification of a redevelopment agreement with the Pomona Development Co.



NEW GLINT FOR MINT — The Old Mint in San Francisco is again accessible to the public. Opened originally in 1874, the mint was vacated in 1937 for general government offices, then closed in 1968 because of deterioriation. Mrs. Mary Brooks, director of the mint, stands in front of the building. First floor rooms have been restored to their original appearance. The renovation of the exterior, considered one of the finest examples of federal classic revival architecture in the nation, is expected next year. It reopened as a museum Saturday and contains historical exhibits.

CHINO — The queen contest for the Chino Junior Fair and Dairy Festival will end Monday.

John Yuhas, field representative for County Supervisor Ruben Ayala, is chairman of the event to select a young girl to reign over the annual festival.

A candidate must be a junior or senior high school student during the upcoming fall semester or be a 1973 graduate. Candidates cannot be married.

Candidates sponsored by various community organizations are welcomed, said Yuhas, but a sponsor is not necessary for participation.

Candidates will be judged on personality, poise and the number of tickets sold for the festival. Results of the judging will be announced during the festival to be held July 26 through 29.

"Where Everything Grows" was the theme of the first fair held in November 1921. Organizers of the event, which was originally held on Seventh Street just below D Street, were J. J. Brinderson, John Young, Carl Anderson, Jess Sholander and Richard Metzner.

The festival which features the participation of service clubs and agriucltural and dairy associations is designed to display 4-H and Future Farmers of America agricultural projects.

The festival is held at Central and Edison avenues on grounds acquired by a lease-purchase agreement with the state.

Einar Knudsen is chairman of the 1973 event with John Vander Schaaf and Lou Wynia serving as assistants.

Other committee chairmen are Price Hall, publicity; Yuhas, kick-off luncheon; Charles Dirkse, calf age and weight guessing contest; Henry Vander Poel, hay judging; Wynja, straw; Art Rowe, George Borba, booths; Yuhas, Ben Burrell, Helen Boer, queen contest and ticket sales; Burrell, television and radio; Knudsen, beef; Rowe, ribbons and trophies.

NFS grant for grad student

CLAREMONT — A botany student at Claremont Graduate School will leave June 20 for a six-week, plant-searching trip in Mexico financed by the National Science Foundation.

David A. Young, 26, of Upland, is doing research on plants of the genus Rhus. He hopes to find about 20 species and bring back leaf and wood samples.

Ron Scogin, assistant professor of botany at Claremont Graduate School, will accompany Young on part of the trip.

The foundation awarded $3,300 to support the research this summer and next summer under Scogin's direction.

Young will base his doctoral dissertation on his findings.

His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Richard T. Young of Chino. He is a 1964 graduate of Chino High School.

Claremont sister-city unit picks princess-delegate to Guanajuato

CLAREMONT — Elaine Nesbit, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Nesbit, 1654 Woodbend Drive, and a junior at Claremont High, has been selected as the princess-delegate from Claremont to the annual Fiesta of San Juan at Guanajuato, Mexico, during this week.

The announcement was made by Fred Josselyn, president of the Claremont Sister-City Committee on Guanajuato.

Miss Nesbit will receive transportation from the local committee, and will be the guest of a Guanajuato family during the festivities.

This will be the first trip to Guanajuato for Miss Nesbit. Her older brother had visited there with a student group, and her family had hosted a Guanajuato student.

Alternates are Pam Braswell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Braswell of 1861 Mountain Ave., also a junior at Claremont High; and Lisa Young, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Young, 316 Villanova Ave., a senior.

The trio will be chaperoned by Mrs. Jackie Jacobsen, Mountain View Elementary School teacher. Alternates and chaperone will pay their own transportation.

The girls were chosen from among applicants by a committee composed of Gerald E. Brown, Claremont High Spanish teacher; City Councilman Frank Hungerford; Fred Josselyn for the sister city committee; Mmes. Ann Glaser and Jerry Thompson, committee board members; and Joyce Glaser and Kathy Joselyn, 1972 princess delegates.

The delegates were selected on the basis of residence in Claremont, age, poise, fluency in Spanish, interest and need.

The sister city association also plans to welcome to Claremont this year the biennial student group from Guanajuato, invited especially for the Fourth of July instead of the usual August visit.

Tentatively there will be a group of 15 or more young Guanajuantans who will need a place to stay in local homes.

All interested citizens are urged to join in the cultural exchange, said Mrs. Marie Ohman, 4510 Rhodelia Ave.

Mrs. Ohman may be contacted at 626-8228 for information on the Mexican visitors.

County residents change mind on annexation

CLAREMONT — An attempt by Lewis Homes, Inc., to obtain 8,000-square-foot lots to the north has prompted 14 couples on Claremont Heights Drive and four couples on Base Line Road to petition the city for talks about possible annexation.

The City Council Tuesday night on a motion by Councilman Bertye Smith ordered that the city staff pursue negotiations and that Councilman Gene Block represent the City Council in meetings with residents.

Werner Warmbrunn, 3003 Claremont Heights Drive, told the council that "the last thing we want is to be brought up to standards. We find ourselves in agreement with the city master plan. We would like to bring as much territory into the city with us."

City Manager Keith Mulrooney and city Planning Director Sharon Hightower were invited recently to a meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Creighton Barnes, 2936 Claremont Heights Drive, where residents asked the officials questions concerning annexation.

The lots on Claremont Heights Drive, surrounded on the north, east and south by Claremont, are large—80 by 220 to 120 by 220 feet, adequate for horses.

Mrs. Charles W. Gates, 2921 Claremont Heights Drive, who has lived there since 1960, said she wants to retain the "rural feeling."

"We bought the land knowing there would be plenty of rocks, but here we can keep horses and, if we annexed to the city, we would want to continue having them," she said.

Mrs. Gates believes the city would be willing to meet "us halfway on street lights, sidewalks and hooking up to sewers."

She said that the Claremont Heights Drive area is not the place for smaller lots as Lewis Homes, Inc., is attempting to get rezoned to the north.

Mrs. Werner Warmbrunn, 3003 Claremont Heights Drive, said that she is considering annexation because of the "potential development all around us, and that is the only reason."

Warmbrunn, who has lived at his present address for eight or nine years, noted that when he moved in there was a strong feeling against annexation.

"Claremont has some kind of concept of good development. The city is doing its best with its general plan," he said. "The county Board of Supervisors is controlled by the builders, and has decreased lot sizes to 10,000 square feet."

As to street lights, sidewalks and hooking up to city sewers, Warmbrunn said that "these are things that we can resolve."

He called Claremont Heights Drive "a children's street."

He said the time when the area is going to annex to the city is moving closer. "We like the idea of open space," he said.

Those families who own horses would be able to be put in a horse overlay district.

Warmbrunn, Barnes and Lee Bashore, 3006 Claremont Heights Drive, spoke against the Lewis proposal during a Planning Commission public hearing April 3.

John Geerken, 2955 Claremont Heights Drive, contested an assumption by Lewis Homes that the development of smaller lots would not lower values.

Bashore in a phone conversation said that he felt that there are certain advantages to being in the city, that owners would have better police and fire protection.

"At one time we were wholly in the county, but now the city surrounds us on three sides," Bashore said.

Bashore cautioned that the residents only signed a letter of intent, not a petition for annexation.

"This is strictly exploratory," he said. "The residents want to get more information before they proceed further."

'Dames at Sea' a winner at VCT

By VONNE ROBERTSON

Tired of hearing about Watergate and the high cost of living? Wishing for the "good old days" and seeking the nostalgia of "remember when?"

Then take an evening off and go see Valley Community Theater's newest production which opened Thursday, it's "Dames at Sea."

The cast, while small, is not at sea. They are in complete control and shipshape from beginning to end.

A rollicking musical set in the depression days of the '30s, the story is the typical girl-makes-good-when-star-fails line, so old it's refreshing in today's world of disillusion.

I didn't even know they will made patent-leather tap dancing shoes, but sure enough they do. And the shoes get a workout in this production.

Lynda Hershey, as the star of a Broadway show, has a terrific voice. She opens the show with a rousing "Wall Street" and continues to show her ability in other songs like "That Mister Man of Mine" and "Beguine," where she sings a duet with Bruce Wilkerson, as the captain of a Navy ship.

As Ruby, the starstruck novice from the Midwest, Donna McCormick is well cast. Her voice is very light but ample for the small auditorium. It's her tap dancing and acting that carry her well in the show.

Julie Carroll, as Joan, the good-hearted chorus girl who befriends Ruby, is a delightful comedienne with a good voice and a perfect sense of timing.

As two sailors who are romantically interested in the girls, Mike Smith and Chuck Neal are both excellent. They combine their singing and dancing talent with just the right amount of parody.

Bruck Wilkerson, who doubles as the captain and as the frustrated play director, also performs well.

Since the cast is very limited and the show constantly in motion, each of the members has a great responsibility and a taxing physical load. But they seemed as fresh at the conclusion as at the opening.

Tying the entire show together is a hard-working VCTer, Jackie Fisher, the pianist. She has the enthusiasm and the talent to keep the cast in time and in tune and her keyboard ability enhances the production.

John Rice as musical director coordinates the orchestra comprised also of Danny Garcia on the bass and Jimmy Rogers, the drummer.

The sets are simple, yet effective and the costumes are truely from the 30s, right down to the calf-length satin skirts and the net stockings.

Among the better musical numbers are "It's You," "Choo Choo Honeymoon," and "Raining in My Heart."

The musical opened Saturday night. It will continue for the next seven weekends. Reservations may be made by calling the theater.

One of the hardest things to take is one of the eaisest to give-criticism.

Rather good love comedy

By SARAH SMILEY

"Love, Pain, and the Wole Damn Thing" is a rather cliched, rather predictable, rather sentimental, rather pat romantic comedy which happens also to be rather good.

Most of the credit for what's good about it goes to Maggie Smith and Timothy Bottoms, both marvelous as two of life's more obscure losers who meet on a bus tour of Spain and fall in love, in the process helping one another to feel free and alive for the first time. Their transformations from mousey nothings to three-dimensional human beings are strikingly credible and moving, even if a ot of other details about the movie are not.

At Cinema I, Montclair Plaza, with "Big Fauss and Little Halsey."

"Trader Horn" will, I'm certain, qualify for the worst movie of the year award and very probably win it hands down. It's a cheaply done remake of a 1930 white hunter thing, filmed mostly at the arboretum in Arcadia, and it abounds in stock African footage that contrasts jarringly with the rest of the film (conspicuous changes in terrain, mysteriously expanding and contracting numbers of native bearers).

The script is nothing more than a series of safari movie cliches strung together with cloddish predictability. The actors (Rod Taylor, Anne Heywood, Jean Sorel) either stand around pointing at wild animals (switch to stock footage) or crash through the jungle, breathing hard and looking back over their shoulders at boa constrictors, cheetahs, or the British (it's 1916 and British subject Rod Taylor has refused to fight the Germans).

Nothing makes sense, looks real, or has enough life in it to qualify even as campy fun, let alone absorbing entertainment.

At Cinema II, Montclair Plaza.

"Theatre of Blood" is a horror movie with class. It stars Vincent Price (at top form here) as an aging Shakespearean actor out to wreak revenge on his critics by murdering each of them by a method from a Shakespearean play. The murder scenes, all bits from Shakespeare, are done with just the right touch of gleeful, cornball villainy, and Diana Rigg, as Prices daughter-accomplice, provides a lovely foil for his ham. Even in this put-on of a movie her reading of Shakespeare emerges as moving and skillful. At the Village, Claremont, with "The Mephisto Waltz."

Pen of murdered officer used to sign death bill

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) -- Gov. Dolph Briscoe used the pen of a murdered deputy sheriff to sign into a law a bill restoring the death penalty in Texas.

Under the new law, replacing one declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court last year, prosecutors can seek the death penalty for persons accused of killing a policeman, fireman or prison guard, for a murder committed during the course of a kidnaping, burglary, robbery, forcible rape, arson or prison escape, and persons who hire killers and killers who are hired.

Briscoe signed the bill Thursday with a pen that belonged to a Bexar County deputy sheriff who was shot to death Feb. 2 in San Antonio.

Millinery stressed for winter

NEW YORK (UPI) — The millinery industry starts the fall season on the optimistic note that the bareheaded look is out, the hatted look is back in.

If you're a sweater girl, wear a sweater knit hat. If you're hearkening back, grab one of the flapper revivals of the 1920s era. If fur is your fancy, the new ones are fabulous head coverings.

The new clothes from the most casual sportswear to the most elegant of evening apparel call for hats, say the milliners. So does the trend back to the "small head," hair neatly cropped, uncurled and already adopted by many New York models.

Industry sources already see the beginnings of a new prosperity — in the summer business the hat bars and boutiques are doing.

As the Millinery Institute of America, the trade organization, yesterday presented highlights of the new collections, it also presented some statistics.

Last year, it said, sales moved up to 14 million units, from 12 million in 1971. And a 20 per cent increase is expected in 1973.

The institute's show for visiting fashion editors, in New York for their semiannual review of new ready-to-wear collections, took the fall hats from the sweater knits to the furs and dressy evening boas.

The sweatered look runs throughout ready-to-wear. So do the hats to go with it. New shapes range all the way from oversize tam-o-shanters to caps to the sailor-on-watch copies.

In furs, both the fake and the real thing go from sportswear on into the afternoon. One of the most fabulous in the collection shown was designed by Bob Green for Irene of New York —it was a big bundle of pale gray fox covering all the hair and paired with a bulky boa of the same fur.

Wrapped looks were another big trend for fall —the institute show commentator called the hats "bandages of beauty." They were turbans in luxurious angor, soft felt, jersey, and for late day satins, velvets and lames.

DAD'S KING TODAY

The family of Don (Zeke) Rees, 2351 Bonita Ave., La Verne, has gone all out to make sure Dad has a day dedicated to his happiness. His wishes are about to be carried out by, from left, his daughter, Sheryl, 16; sons, Don Jr., 18; Bob, 17, ready for a game of bandminton; Mrs. Rees, and son, Chuck, 14. The family enjoys doing things together and will make Dad king today.

TODAY'S Women

FOR FALL — The millinery industry starts the fall season on optimistic note that bareheaded look is out, hatted look is back in. For those wanting to relive the 1920s era, at left is crushable brown felt which fastens to throat with huge safety pin from Mr. John. Jack McConnell's dull gold felt cloche with tri mof natural pheasant is shown at right.

It's Father's Day

Fathers are special people!

And today Americans from coast to coast have set about to honor the men of the family.

Father's Day originated in 1910, when a Spokane, Wash., housewife, Mrs. John Bruce Dodd, was determined to find a way to honor her own father, William Smart.

He was a Civil War veteran and had reared six motherless children.

Mrs. Dodd contacted the Spokane Ministerial Alliance and appealed to them to recognize all fathers in a formal manner.

With the assistance of the alliance and Spokane YMCA the third Sunday in June was set aside for sermons to be delivered as a salute to fathers of that city.

President Calvin Coolidge recommended national observance of the day in 1924.

In 1936, a national Father's Day Committee was formed, with headquarters in New York City.

Among the outstanding men who were chosen Father of the Year were Douglas MacArthur, Ralph J. Bunche, Dwight D. Eisenhower and Harry S. Truman.

Residents of Pomona Valley join families across the nation to honor their fathers, for fathers are something special.

American woman has image idea

NEW YORK (UPI) — Designers put together their clothes collections, but it is the American woman who's designing her own fashion image.

"We're not the authorities. You are. You're shaping fashion," says Vincent Monte-Sano, a manufacturer for four decades and president of New York Couture Business Council.

"The woman makes the decision at the store level," he said. "If she rejects something, the buyer is not going to be caught dead repeating that order. That's what happened to the maxi. Women turned it down."

Monte-Sano told the editors that the "threat" of longer skirts was "rearing its ugly head" again but it was mostly reaction to the extremely short miniskirts "which almost became jerkins."

Several Paris firms dropped hems to well below the knees and Halston and Oscar de la Renta were among New York firms to lower skirts below the knees, whereas most other fashion leaders leave the hemline at the middle of the kneecap.

But Monte-Sano said few women would go for the "longette—most will not." As for the industry, he said, it "has never recovered from (failure of) the midiskirt." That was the midcalf length which came along in 1970.

The council president said the fashion business, like any other creative field, "is not a stable business. We're always looking, always reaching, always hoping. It's like a hydra. Chop off one problem and another grows in its place. Every collection, we're laying it on the line."

"I don't think, though, that we've stepped into the 1970s," he said. "We haven't developed a look yet. We should make more functional clothes, search out the new fibers for weightlessness."

He talked of the past few seasons "when everyone went for the knits," the easy-care and wrinkle-free synthetics.

"Now," he said, "the pendulum has swung. We scramble for the natural fibers and where are we going to get them"

He chastized many in the industry for turning back the clock to the 1940s and 1950s looks. London, for instance, is on a '50s kick.

"I go back through old sketch books at the office," he said, "and I say we don't have to recreate horrors."

He talked of other areas in the industry:

—"Anyone who says American designers are not creative are out of their cotton picking minds." That was his putdown of the theory that Paris couture houses are the world's fashion innovators.

—Prices are on the increase and new contracts have been signed with most of the unions involved in ready-to-wear. A dress or suit that would cost $69.95 in, say, 1960, would be about double that now.

—Pants and the pantsuits have become a staple —"I think we'll always have them" although women tell him that ever so often they get into a skirt "and it looks good."

Fashions predicted

Luxury look is new

NEW YORK (UPI) — The luxury look takes over from the robbed-the-attic look in the new fall and winter fashions.

It spells handsome clothes in the New York manufacturer designer collections. It also bodes higher price tags.

As Vincent Monte-Sano, a manufacturer and president of the New York Couture Group puts it, women's ready-to-wear prices have just about doubled since 1960.

To show what's happened through the years, designer manufacturer Vera Maxwell again includes an updated version of a deep gray flannel skirt topped with handwoven Donegal tweed jacket. It was first in her 1936 collection.

"When I first offered that suit, the wholesale price was $32," she said. "Today, its wholesale tag is $169." Double the wholsale figures to get an idea of the markup to you the customer.

"Yet," she said, "It's the same mill, same designer, same building."

Bill Blass introduced his new, fur-bearing collection with the comment that the prices weren't exactly low. A spokesman for the firm said later the retail range was from $300 to $1,500.

So it goes, as the ready-to-wear industry unveils its fall and winter apparel in two busy weeks for benefit of visiting fashion editors. This week's sponsor is Sano's council. Next week, the participants will be the American Designers Group.

One thing that steps up prices is the opulence of the new clothes. Blass used lynx to collar and cuff simply cut suits in his blonde rib knit group. Or he used a blonde fox coat over a beige suit.

He also showed such combinations as black broadtail velvet with the model draping her shoulders with two fox furs, heads, tails and all, one in white the other black. Or gray fox draped a one-button, fitted jacket of a gray flannel suit.

Slinky shaped long dinner dresses in silk jersey were cuffed with wide bands of sable or fox and many strands of pearls in assorted lengths.

Mrs. Maxwell more often put her luxury in fabrics than in fur trims.

For instance, she used a nubby wild silk handwoven in small rural areas of India. She said she'd been buyng it since 1951.

But if there were any one fabric on which she went all out, it was wool jersey. She made a very strong statement in this material, using it for dress-coat combinations, dresses and jackets and simply-styled evening dresses.

For added luxury, Mrs. Maxwell showed several of the jersey dresses and coats collared and cuffed in cashmere rib knits woven of yarns dyed to match the rest of the garments.

It was a fur-thick collection from the French-born designer Pauline Trigere, New York based now for many years. Joseph Baker, the entertainer, watched as model after model paraded Trigere furs from Black Diamond mink coats, to black fox-collared coats for day and evening, and her "something new" fox worked to look liked it'd been marbelized in shades of beige, gray and offwhite.

EVENING DRESS — Model displays evening dress with black jersey top.

Women For are honored

Since last October Women For the Music Center have been soliciting contributions to the Music Center Arts and Education Fund.

On June 8 they gathered in The Founders Room at the Dorothy Chandler Pavilion to celebrate their achievement — over $225,000 — $40,000 more than they raised a year ago.

One hundred women, each of who had raised $500 or more, received scarves designed especially for them and donated by Cardinali.

Albert V. Casey, president of the Performing Arts Council, made the presentations. Charles I Schneider, overall chairman of the Arts and Education Fund thanked all the women for their support.

"Due in no small part to your efforts," Mr. Schneider told the gathering, "Campaign '73 has been a success. We have achieved our goal of $1.8 million dollars. So, enjoy your summer —. We'll see you next fall for Campaign '74.

Foothill Philharmonic Committee recipients of scarves for their solicitation of contributions were Mrs. Walker Downs, Mrs. Elbert Griffith and Mrs. Frederick Sontag.

WHY A MAN'S SKIN IS YOUNGER AND CLEARER THAN A WOMAN'S

It's the accumulation of dead cells that causes a woman's skin to age. Men shave, thereby removing the dead cells every day. That's why if you check in the areas where men shave they have:

• NO PITTING OR BLACKHEADS
• NO WRINKLES
• NO BLOTCHING
• NO LINES OVER THE LIPS
• NO CREPEY ROUGH SKIN

Since the dead cells are removed by shaving, their complexion is clearer and younger.

Peel O Matique creme process helps remove the dead cells quickly, safely and gently. In case of prior skin disorder, please consult your physician, he knows best.

Suzanne Swartz wed in Saturday ceremony

In a Saturday afternoon ceremony at Pilgrim Congregational Church, Miss Suzanne Shirley Swartz became the bride of Michael Richard Graeber.

Dr. Benton Gaskell performed the double-ring, candlelight rites. Acolytes were Kerry and Mark Graeber.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bret A. Swartz of Pomona, the bride was given in marriage by her father.

She wore a gown of silk organza and Swiss guipure lace fashioned with a scoop neckline, long cuffed bishop sleeves and a fitted bodice. The A-line skirt was detailed with a wide scalloped border of satin which swept to a cathedral train.

Her fingertip bridal veil of silk illusion was trimmed with lace and caught to a Juliet cap of lace. A cascade bouquet of pink cymbidiums with stephanotis and baby's breath was carried by the bride.

Miss Judy Davidson was maid of honor and Mrs. Steve Oetgen was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Douglas Swartz and Mrs. Paul Cosato Jr., sister of the groom.

Dee Joseph of Maui, Hawaii, was best man for the groom who is the son of Glenn Graeber of West Covina and Mrs. Walter Pietz of Pomona. Ushers were John Buzzanca, Ronald Stickel, Douglas Swartz, Dale Smith and Steve Oetgen.

The home of the bride's parents was the setting for the reception in honor of the newlyweds.

Mr. and Mrs. Graeber will honeymoon in Palm Springs and Las Vegas before returning to establish their home in Pomona.

Next time you see someone polluting, point it out.

It's a burning dump. It's a smoking car. It's litter in our parks.
You know what pollution is.
But not everyone does.
So the next time you see pollution, don't close your eyes to it.
Write a letter. Make a call. Point it out to someone who can do something about it.
People start pollution. People can stop it.

Claremont's Olympic star shows a bit of modesty

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

CLAREMONT — For a man of his accomplishments, Fortune Gordien is either very modest or forgetful.

Gordien, who lives in Claremont but coaches in San Bernardino, says, "I don't remember myself as anybody great. I just remember myself as an athlete who had some good days and some bad ones."

The "good days" that Gordien mentions far outnumbered the bad ones. He took part in three Olympics. In 1948 in the discus, he won a bronze medal, in 1952 he placed fourth, and in 1956 he finished second to Al Oerter although at 6-0¾ and 229 pounds, he gave away considerable height and poundage to the gigantic Oerter.

In Pasadena in 1953, he set a world discus record, 194-6, that stood for 10 years. Now he concentrates on teaching and developing others, but still possesses much of the skill he once exhibited regularly.

This spring, at the age of 50, he set a national record for men over 40 with a throw of 177-9 at the Mt. San Antonio Relays.

Gordien is track and field coach at San Bernardino Valley College in the Mission Conference. Right now he is making final preparations for Tuesday's track meet. "If there's anbody in the Pomona Valley area that would like to enter, they're more than welcome," he said.

The former Olympian is in his third year as head track and field coach at SBVC. "We were sixth this year and last the year before, but I look for an outstanding team next year," he remarked. "Interest in track and field in San Bernardino is growing."

Gordien's father was a professional magician and he is named after a close friend of his father's. Although Gordien did not follow in his father's steps, he is, or was, an accomplished magician.

At the University of Minnesota, he helped pay expenses by putting on shows in the student union and throughout the city of Minneapolis.

"You might say I'm still an expert manipulator of cards," he grinned. "I like to perform one-hand cuts, dealing, and I think I'm one of the few people who can do a one-handed shuffle."

Gordien is also adept at the Russian shuffle and waterfall among others.

Like any other proud parent, Gordien takes great delight in the achievements of his offspring. His 18-year old twin boys, Marcus and Mitchell, were both star performers for the track team.

Marcus already is 6-4 and 205 pounds. He threw the discus 184-3 for Claremont this spring. "He's 20 feet ahead of me," said the proud father. "My best in high school was 162-6."

Mitchell, 6-4¾ and 173 pounds, was a 6-6 high jumper. If I can get these guys into SBVC," Gordien said, "they'll be one-third of the track team. Both can triple jump 42 feet and Marcus was close to 60 feet with the prep shot put."

There's no doubt Gordien would rather talk about his sons than himself.

"Life has been good to me," he reflected. "I had a wonderful career as an athlete. I have a good job and I have a great family. What more could a man ask for?"

In addition to the twins, the Gordiens also have a 19-year-old daughter, Joli, who was on the John Muir High gymnastics team in Pasadena; and a 14-year old son, Kelly.

"Kelly's projected height is 6-8," beamed the proud father. He's 6-1 right now and I'd say he has a tremendous future in basketball."

But Kelly will make up his own mind.

"When your in one thing, you're influenced," he admitted. "I've made it very clear to the boys that I will never force them into anything."

The Gordien home is also a musical environment. The boys' mother plays the piano and has degrees in music education; and acting-directing.

"When my kids were young," related Gordien, "they wanted to play the guitar. So I bought them guitars and music. Although they never had a lesson, they play pretty good. Marcus is quite good on the guitar. Mitchell plays the guitar and also is accomplished on the drums. Kelly plays the trumpet and also has a set of drums."

The coach maintains a busy schedule. During the current school year, he had to be up at six in order to teach an 8 a.m. class. "We live in Claremont," he laughed, "because my wife didn't want to get too far away from Altadena where she was president of the PTA, is on the Library Board, and is active in marriage counseling. So we split the distance between Altadena and San Bernardino."

'DID YOU SEE THAT?'

It appears as though he's looking for something, but it's just John Schlee and his caddy Danny Liester looking over the green at the 15th hole during the third round of the U.S. Open.

Arnie, three others take U.S. Open lead

OAKMONT, Pa. (UPI) — The 73rd U.S. Open turned from just another tournament to a page of history Saturday . . . and it seems only fitting that the most historic golfer of the era was right smack in the middle of it all.

Arnold Palmer, playing on his home turf before his wildly cheering fans, put on a charge reminiscent of his chain-smoking, pants-hitching, tournament-winning days of a decade ago and charged into an unprecedented four-way tie for the 54-hole lead.

Palmer and Julius Boros, another member of golf's over-the-hill gang, were deadlocked at three-under-par 210 with younger lions John Schlee and Jerry Heard. Palmer and Boros had 68s Saturday while Schlee shot 67 and Heard fashioned a five-under-par 66, just a stroke off the day-old course record.

Channel 7, 12:30 p.m.

Four other players were within two strokes of the lead and Jack Nicklaus and Gary Player lurked just two shots further behind, and all kinds of interesting prospects were set up for what could be the most exciting Open windup ever on Sunday.

Palmer, who has been frustrated before in his bid for another major title —remember him blowing that seven-stroke lead with only nine holes to go in the '66 Open — refused to get too excited about it yet.

"As yet," he said, "I have nothing to be excited about. Just say I'm trying to slow down my swing on putts. Tomorrow, I'm going out to win. That's all that is on my mind."

Palmer, who joined the Oakmont Country Club little more than a week ago, owns Latrobe Country Club 40 miles down the Pennsylvania Turnpike and represents Laurel Valley Golf Club another 10 miles distant, insisted he "didn't play much differently from earlier rounds.

"The wet greens made the course play differently," he said. "There are 10 or 12 guys in position to win now and that's because of the rain."

Palmer gave himself a little pep talk before he went out on the course Saturday while he was trying to get his shirt to fit him more comfortably. He fidgeted for some time, tugging and pulling on the sleeves and shoulders and neck of his red-blocked shirt during an interview and then, unable to get comfortable, finally changed to a blue shirt.

Whether it was the shirt or the pep talk —"Arnold Palmer," he told himself, "go on out there, get off you dead — and do something" — that did it, there's no question this Open took on a dramatic, new look Saturday, because Palmer's 68 matched his best score in the Open since that dreadful 1966 tournament.

This is the first time four players ever shared the lead at this point in the Open and it's only the second time more than two players were deadlocked going into the final round.

Palmer, 43, sometimes called washed-up, and winless in major championships since the 1964 Masters, came within inches of taking the lead all by himself when a birdie putt slithered past the hole at No. 17. It seemed like nearly everyone in the western Pennsylvania gallery of 20,000 was pulling for him.

For this one day, at least, the old magic that has earned Palmer $1,740,102 in total purses since 1955 and victories in 61 U.S. tournaments and 16 overseas, returned.

It never was more evident than in the three-hole stretch between the ninth and the 11th holes when he rammed in three successive birdie putts.

Boros, 53, who has won two Opens and in 1963 became the second oldest man ever to capture this most prestigious of championships, was no less spectacular.

Playing with Palmer in one of the last twosomes on the course, Julius, who has put on an extra 10-15 pounds and creates the impression he's ready for a rocking chair, used that fluid stroke of his to salvage three successive pars near the end of his round.

Boros ran in a 15-footer to save par on the 15th hole after being given a free drop from a drainage ditch near a bunker where USGA officials ruled the area "ground under repair," then made a 10-foot second putt for par at No. 16. He also holed a 15-footer at the 17th hole after dumping his approach shot into a bunker.

"One thing about it, when you get older, you learn to putt," Palmer joked with the crowd around the 18th green, referring to Boros.

Gary Player, the leader after each of the first two rounds who was five under par at the start of the day, quickly faded when his putting touch deserted him, and three-time winner Jack Nicklaus simply never got started.

Scheinblum's HR peps Angels, 5-2

By BILL LANGLEY
P-B Sports Editor

ANAHEIM — Welcome back to the American League Richie Scheinblum.

In a surprise move, Angel manager Bobby Winkles put his newly acquired switch hitter into left field Saturday evening for his Anaheim Stadium debut.

Scheinblum rewarded Winkles by hitting a solo home run over the right field fence in the fifth inning off of Pat Dobson to ignite a 5-2 win for the Halos to even the weekend series against the New York Yankees.

In his first appearance since being dealt to the Angels from the Reds Friday morning, Scheinblum looked like the man who made the American League all-star team last summer while hitting .300 at Kansas City instead of the bitter player carrying a .207 average at Cincinnati.

Scheinblum, unhappy about his lack of playing time with the Reds, certainly made good immediately on his return to the American League.

"Cincinnati promised me a World Series check," Richie explained. "It was in my contract. Now I have to get one here."

It was a surprise for Scheinblum to start Saturday considering he just arrived in Southern California at 1:30 a.m.

But Winkles explained he put Richie in the lineup because of Ken Berry's trouble with his back. The Halo skipper added that he'll be back in the lineup for both games today when the Angels and Yanks conclude the home stand with a doubleheader.

"Scheinblum needs some pumping up because he has been down as indicated by his statements to the press," Winkles said.

Of course, Angel fans shouldn't expect homers every time Scheinblum is up.

"I'm a doubles hitter," grinned Richie when asked about his homer.

After Scheinblum's homer broke the scoreless deadlock the Angels scored a pair of runs in the sixth and seventh innings to give Nolan Ryan all the support he needed.

Ryan, who hasn't been blessed with much hitting from his teammates, picked up his eighth win in 15 decisions in a 10-strike out performance.

The Yankees, who are battling for the lead in the American League East, scored their runs in the seventh and eighth innings when Ryan lost his control, issuing four walks.

The Yanks had a great opportunity to get back in the game with designated hitter Jim Ray Hart at the plate but Ryan got him on a fly to right to end the threat.

ANGEL NOTES: Sam McDowell will make his Yankee debut today as he and Fritz Peterson (6-6) will face Clyde Wright (4-8) and whoever Winkles comes up with. The Halo skipper is still undecided as to the second game starter .

L.A. finally stops Expos

MONTREAL (UPI) — It rained here all day and if the Los Angeles Dodgers had any choice they would have even played the game in the snow.

"We've played in worse weather before" said manager Walter Alston after his team had defeated the Montreal Expos 6-3 on Ron Cey's three-run homer in a rain-shortened contest. The loss stopped the Expos' seven game winning streak.

"I have nothing to do with the decisions, but I think the umpires did a good job of sticking with the game as long as they did," Alston added.

The Expos had sold more than 20,000 tickets for the game but only 10,187 fans braved the rain, wind and cold weather to see the nationally televised contest.

Cey, the Dodgers' rookie third baseman was thrilled with his third inning performance. "And I'm happy we got the game in" he said. "The rain was only a steady mist but it sure slowed down the play in the infield although I must admit it certainly did not prevent me from hitting my home run."

Cey's home run off loser Bill Stoneman, now 1-3, followed a single by Joe Ferguson and a walk to Willie Crawford and gave the Dodgers a 6-1 lead. The Dodgers scored an earlier run in the third inning when Willie Davis singled, stole second and went to third on Stoneman's wild throw to the outfield.

When Ferguson singled, Davis scored.

Davis grounded out in the first inning but drove in Los Angeles' first run when Dave Lopes scored. Lopes had walked, stole second and moved to third on an infield groundout.

After the Expos tied the score on Clyde Mashore's sacrifice fly in the bottom of the first, Cey singled in the second and scored on Bill Russell's double.

Hal Breeden hit a two-run homer for Montreal in the third inning off Claude Osteen, who picked up his eighth win in 11 decisions. Osteen scattered seven hits.

Petty's Plymouth, Allison's Chevy duel today in Tuborg 400 field at Riverside

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (UPI) — Defending NASCAR Grand National driving champion Richard Petty will sit on the pole in his red and blue 1973 Plymouth for Sunday's $90,000 Tuborg 400.

Next to Petty at the head of the 40-car field will be his premier rival, Bobby Allison of Hueytown, Ala., in his '73 Chevelle.

The 35-year-old Petty, winner of last week's Alamo 500 at Texas World Speedway for his 154th Grand National victory, qualified in 110.027 miles per hour Friday around Riverside's 2.62-mile, eight-turn course. Allison was next in 109.983 m.p.h.

Buddy Baker of Charlotte, N.C., qualified third in a Dodge in 109.587 m.p.h., followed by Cale Yarborough of Timmonsville, S.C., in a Chevelle in 108.881.

It is the fourth time in 10 NASCAR road races here that Petty has won the pole.

The 400-miler will start at 11 a.m. PST.

The West's top three stock car drivers, Ray Elder, Dick Bown and Jack McCoy—qualified 21st, 22nd and 23rd in Saturday's qualifying session. All had mechanical problems Friday.

Elder, the defending race champion and four-time Grand National West titleholder from Caruthers, Calif., led the way with an average of 108.130 mph in his '73 Dodge. Bown, of Portland, Ore., and McCoy, of Modesto, Calif., both in Dodges, qualified in 108.009 mph and 104.969 mph, respectively.

Larry Smith of Lenoir, N.C., 1972 Grand National Rookie of the Year, also had mechanical problems on the opening day of qualifying and nearly didn't make the field Saturday.

The engine of his 1972 Chevelle was gutted by fire during a lap and Smith's crew barely got the car back on the track for the North Carolina driver, who qualified 34th in 100.872 mph.

Herschel McGriff, driving a 1969 Chevelle, won the California 100 NASCAR late model sportsman Stock Car race here Saturday with an average speed of 91.962 miles per hour.

McGriff, of Bridlevale, Ore., leader for all but nine of the laps, won $1,875. Ron Hornaday of Simi finished second in a '63 Thunderbird for $1,025.

The race, run as a preliminary to today's $90,000 Tuborg 400, fielded 40 drivers, of which 23 finished.

Warren Prosser of Agoura, driving a '68 Chevelle, plowed into a car driven by Robert Switzer of Van Nuys in a dust cloud created on the 20th lap when Switzer's '63 Ford went into a spin.

Royals plan tryout camp at Galvin Park

ONTARIO — The Kansas City Royals will conduct a tryout camp Monday morning beginning at 10 o'clock at John Galvin Park. The camp will be under the direction of scout Spider Jorgensen.

Athletes 16-19 are eligible to try out. Selected players will attend the Royals' Florida baseball academy this fall.

Williams, Wohlhuter highlight AAU meet

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (UPI) — Steve Williams became the first athlete to win the national sprint double in 13 years, Rick Wohlhuter defeated Dave Wottle in the half mile, Len Hilton led five others to a sub-four minute mile and Steve Prefontaine missed the American three-mile record by four-tenths of a second Saturday night to feature the windup of the AAU track and field championships.

Young Dwight Stones took the high jump at 7-5, the fourth best leap of all time; Doug Brown added the AAU steeplechase title to his NCAA victory with an 8:26.8 performance and John title with a leap of 55-8¾ in other top performances.

Williams, who won the 100 dash in 9.4 Friday night, added the 220 title with a 20.4 victory, while Wohlhuter, the world record holder, beat Olympic champ Wottle in the 880 in 1:45.6, Hilton turned back the combacking Marty Liquori in taking the mile in 3:55.9 and Prefontaine won the three-mile in 12:53.4.

Len Hilton, a 5,000 meter Olympian last year, led five other runners including the comebacking Marty Liquori across the finish line in under four minutes to win the mile in a sparkling 3:55.9.

Liquori, who gave way on the final turn after leading most of the last lap, was timed in 3:56.8. He was followed across in order by Chuck LaBenz in 3:58.0, NAIA champ Tommy Fulton, also in 3:58.0, Mark Feig in 3:59.4 and Britain's Bob Maplestone in 3:59.9.

The 220 final produced another typical Williams finish. As usual, he was well back in the early going, challenged for the lead after the final bend and closed with a burst to barely nip the wire ahead of Wardell Gilbreath with NCAA champ Marshall Dill close behind.

Wohlhuter, who took the 880 world mark to 1:44.6 at the Vons Classic last month, charged into the lead on the final turn, then held off Wottle's late bid to win in 1:45.6.

Wottle, last as usual at the start, didn't make his move until they were straightened out for the home stretch. By then, Wohlhuter had too big a lead and the Olympic champ couldn't do much about it and finished second in 1:46.2, with NCAA champ Skip Kent of Wisconsin third in 1:46.5.

John Gregorio from the Southern California Track Club placed sixth in the three-mile run in a time of 13:16.4 minutes.

Gregorio, formerly from Ganesha High and Mt. San Antonio College, is now eligible for the European tour.

The local distance star just came off a third place finish at the NCAA three-mile last week.

Jim Palmer almost perfect

American League roundup

Jim Palmer, coming within two outs of pitching the first perfect game in the major leagues in five years, settled for a two-hitter Saturday night as he pitched the Baltimore Orioles to a 9-1 victory over the Texas Rangers.

Palmer, who no-hit the Oakland A's in August of 1969, retired the first 25 batters he faced before Ken Suarez ended the string by grounding a single past shortstop Mark Belanger into left field. Palmer, obviously upset at losing the perfect game, then walked Jim Mason and moments later lost his shutout when Dave Nelson singled sharply to center.

It marked the second time this week that a major league pitcher lost a no-hit bid with two outs in the ninth inning. Rick Wise of St. Louis was two outs away from a no-hitter against Cincinnati last Wednesday when Joe Morgan spoiled things with a single.

In other American League action Saturday, Minnesota blanked Detroit, 5-0, Oakland nipped Boston, 4-3, Kansas City rallied to trip Cleveland, 5-2, and Milwaukee knocked off Chicago, 4-1.

Bert Blyleven pitched a four-hitter and Rod Carew opened the game with his sixth home run of the year in helping Minnesota defeat the faltering Detroit Tigers.

Blyleven improved his record to 8-7. He didn't walk a batter, struck out seven, and did not allow more than one base runner in any inning.

Deron Johnson stroked his second RBI single of the game with two out in the seventh inning to score Bill North with the winning run as the Oakland A's edged the Boston Red Sox.

North had singled off losing reliever Bob Bolin to open the seventh and then stole his league-leading 19th base before Johnson's key hit.

Milwaukee exploded for four runs in the first inning and romped to their eighth consecutive victory in the triumph over the Chicago White Sox. The game was called by rain in the bottom of the eighth inning.

The Brewers teed off on loser Steve Stone by collecting two singles, two doubles and a walk in the opening inning. Singles by Tim Johnson, Dave May and George Scott got the first run home, and Johnny Briggs walked to load the bases. Darrell Porter then hit a long drive to the left field wall that Carlos May failed to hold and all three runners raced home.

The Kansas City Royals pushed across three unearned runs in the 11th inning on two errors, a wild pitch and Kurt Bavacqua's single to defeat Cleveland.

Reliever Tom Hilgendorf, who came on in the ninth inning, helped himself to his second defeat of the year. After blanking the Royals for 2 1-3 innings, Hilgendorf walked Amos Otis with one out in the 11th. John Mayberry hit a bouncer back to Hilgendorf who threw wild to second trying to force Otis.

Aaron collects 691st homer

Hank Aaron continues to inch closer to Babe Ruth's career home run mark, and he's doing it at an amazing pace.

Aaron blasted his 18th home run of the year and his 691st of his career Saturday to come within only 23 home runs of reaching the Babe's record.

But his home run wasn't good enough as the Chicago Cubs nipped the Atlanta Braves, 4-3.

Jim Hickman slammed a two-run tie-breaking homer in the seventh inning, following a passed ball on a strikeout by catcher Johnny Oates which allowed Billy Williams to reach base safely, to help the Chicago cause.

Phil Niekro struck out Williams with two out in the seventh inning, but the ball got past catcher Oates and Williams took first. Hickman then hit the first pitch for a two-run homer to snap a 2-2 tie.

The Braves rallied to tie the score in the sixth on Aaron's home run and Dave Johnson's sacrifice fly.

In other National League action Saturday, Pittsburgh blanked Cincinnati, 5-0, Philadelphia trimmed San Francisco, 5-4, New York ripped San Diego, 10-2, and St. Louis downed Houston, 5-3.

Willie Stargell and Rennie Stennett slammed home runs to back up Nelson Briles' four-hit shutout pitching in Pittsburgh's victory.

Stennett homered with Gene Clines aboard for two runs in the fifth and Stargell cracked his 18th homer of the season in the eighth with Dave Tomlin aboard.

Greg Luzinski drove in three runs with two singles and a double to lead Philadelphia to its victory over San Francisco.

Luzinski singled home Del Unser with the winning run in the seventh inning to give relief pitcher Barry Lersch his second victory of the season.

Willie Mays and John Milner belted home runs and New York took advantage of six errors to defeat San Diego and hand the hapless Padres their eighth consecutive loss.

Milner got the Mets started in the first inning when he drilled his eighth homer of the year following singles by Felix Millan and Rusty Staub. Mays led off the sixth inning with his 656th career homer and the Mets final run came in the eighth on a double by Staub, an infield out and an error.

Bob Gibson pitched a seven-hitter and struck out 10

Scheckter gets L&M pole

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (UPI) — Gritty Jody Scheckter shrugged off a stiff neck and the uncertain handling of a new car Saturday to gain a pole position for Sunday's Formula 5000 L&M championship race with a time of one minute, 41.227 seconds for a lap around the 3.377-mile Watkins Glen Grand Prix course.

Scheckter wrecked his Winston Trojan during a practice session Friday and had just 24 hours for a cram course on the workings of a Lola T330 obtained from Bob Lazier of Vail, Colo.

The skilled hands of the 23-year-old South African ace were steady on the steering wheel of the yellow Lola as Scheckter knocked off 3.971 seconds from the old Watkins Glen Formula 5000 record of 1:45.198 set by John Cannon last year.

Scheckter's time was established in a morning qualifying session and stood up as rain covered the concrete racing strip during a final afternoon qualifying run. The local weather forecast for Sunday calls for a 50 per cent chance of precipitation.

There will be two preliminary heats of 74.294 miles on Sunday prior to the 101.31 mile championship race at 4:30 p.m. EDT. The top 10 finishers in each prelim qualify for the finale, with another four cars added to the field at the discretion of the Sports Car Club of America and circuit officials.

Bobby Muir of Australia clocked the second best qualifying time, 1:43.290, in a Lola to earn the pole position for the second prelim in Sunday's competition.

Brett Lunger, the ex-Marine from Pomona, Calif., turned in the best American time, 1:43.322, and defending L&M champion Gordon McRae of New Zealand had a 1:43.708. They will join Scheckter on the front row of the opening race on the basis of the third and fifth best qualifying times.

Brian Redman of England, 1:43.633, and countryman Peter Gethin, 1:44.397, form the vanguard of the second race as the fourth and sixth fastest drivers.

"After what happened Friday, I was worried about getting into a new car," Scheckter said. "My old familiar car wasn't behaving properly before suddenly it went out of control and hit a wall. I still don't know the cause."

Scheckter, a curly-haired driver with the impish grin of the young, said a backup engine he had for the Trojan was installed in the Lola so that he could have at least one piece of equipment with which he was familiar.

Carter wins Trans-Am at foggy Watkins Glen

WATKINS GLEN, N. Y. (UPI) — Maurice "Mo" Carter of Canada won the fog-shortened Trans-Am Auto Race Saturday and was lost in the mist for 20 minutes before his Camaro was led to the pits by the tail lights of an official car.

The fog swept across the Watkins Glen Grand Prix race across with 20 laps remaining in the 92-lap event and the red flag was immediately dropped. Officials waited 20 minutes after halting the race before calling off the event and declaring Carter the winner.

At first, it was thought that the millionaire auto dealer Peter Gregg of Jacksonville, Fla., was in the lead when the fog swept across the 3.3 mile course and blanketed the area.

The provisional standings when Joe Henderson, the sportscar club of America's trans-am's series chief stewart, called the race put Gregg's Porsche Carrera in second place and John Greenwood of Troy Mich., in third with his Corvette.

Carter covered 243.144 miles when the 72 laps were over. The race lasted two 2:43 minutes and 00.9 seconds with Carter's average reaching 89.493 miles an hour.

Carter, Canada's driver of the Year in 1971 and 1972, held the lead twice during the race. He moved in front briefly on the 50th lap before relinquishing command to J. Marshall Robins of Birmingham, Mich., in a Corvette. The Canadian driving ace regained command on the 58th lap and was in front until the fog halted the race.

"This is the worst weather for a race that I've been in", said Carter. "My wipers quit half way through the race, but a hand cleaner I rubbed on the inside of the windshield during a pit stop saved me for it kept the window from steaming.

"I was fortunate to have rain tires when the second downpour occurred on about the 50th lap. When the fog [illegible] in and I knew the race would have to be stopppd, even temporarily, I was hoping we wouldn't have to continue. I was in the lead and psyched up at that point and I don't know what my reaction would have been if the race had resumed."

Mark Donohue, the 1972 Indy winner, an entrant in Sunday's L and M championship series, was a surprise starter in the Trans Am as he handled the wheel of a Porsch Carrera owned by Al Holbert of Warrington, Pa.

Donohue started form the 29 position which was far back in the field but by the ninth lap he had wheeled his Porsch to sixth place. He was a contender through most of the race, but lost his chance for victory during the 65th lap when his stop for rain tires cost him 1:08 seconds.

Arnie's greatest golfers in a nutshell

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

OAKMONT, Pa. (UPI) — Arnold Palmer, his place already assured among the foremost golfers who ever lived, had the question thrown straight at him cold.

"Who's the greatest golfer you've ever seen?"

Standing in front of his locker at sedate old Oakmont Country Club before going out for Saturday's third round of the U.S. Open, Palmer didn't answer for a moment. You could almost see him running the names over in his mind.

"Jack Nicklaus," he said finally.

Palmer paused again, and you could see him thinking some more.

"When he's right," he threw in.

Generally, Arnold Palmer avoids being pinned down about the way he feels about those men he plays with now, or has played with before and he's usually somewhat sensitive about classifying any one of them above or below the other.

But it would be a good two hours yet before he was due to tee off with big Julius Boros. He had driven over from his home in nearby Youngstown, Pa., only 39 miles from the course. He was completely relaxed and his general mood was such that he didn't seem to mind chewing the fat at all.

"If you had to pattern your entire career after one golfer, who would it be?" was the next question thrown at him.

This time Palmer didn't take any time at all.

"Sam Snead," he came right back.

"I mean here's a man still playing golf at 61. How can you beat that? It's sure something I'd like to be doing when I get to be his age."

Palmer, who is 43, in fine shape and still has an outside chance in this Open, said if he had to name the three best players he personally has ever seen they would be Nicklaus, Snead and Ben Hogan "although not necessarily in that order."

"I never saw Walter Hagen play," he said. "I never saw Bobby Jones either although I have seen movies of him. I did see (Byron) Nelson play in 1942, and he had one of the finest swings I've ever seen."

Better than Snead's, one of the younger newsmen wanted to know?

"Different," said Palmer.

What about the best putter he ever saw?

"Bob Charles," replied Palmer. "Bobby Locke was just as good though."

The questions kept coming and Palmer kept answering them. He said Gary Player was one of the best sand players he had ever seen, and Nicklaus the longest driver.

"But I've got one coming up that I'm not telling anybody about yet," he said, smiling again and still talking about long drivers.

Cards can't score in 2-0 loss to Glendora

CLAREMONT — Claremont collected 10 hits including three doubles Saturday, but couldn't score a run in a 2-0 loss to Glendora in San Gabriel Valley Connie Mack League play.

Glendora scored both of its runs in the seventh inning, finally breaking the ice after Cardinal starter Henry Brown held them scoreless through six frames.

Brown went the distance to pick up his second loss against a single victory.

It was the third loss in a row for the Cardinals in league play and gives them a 3-3 record. Claremont is 5-4 overall going into today's 2 p.m. non-league game at Pomona College against Ontario Legion.

Recreation

Thousands of valley school children have already begun their summer vacations. As we mentioned last week, area park and recreation departments have planned activities designed for the leisure time pleasure of various age groups.

The cities of La Verne, San Dimas, Claremont, Chino, Montclair, Ontario, Glendora as well as Pomona have been putting their programs together for months. This is the time of year when not only the fortunate students, looking at 12 weeks of vacation, but the working adults find more time for recreational activities.

Again today the discussion will feature more of the programs offered in Pomona, however similar activities are being provided in your community. If you are unaware of what is planned just contact the department, they will be glad to provide you with complete information.

Bowling and golf instruction

Group bowling classes for youths and women begins tomorrow at Brunswick Pom Lanes. The registration fee for the entire program is $20. This includes the lessons, use of ball and shoes.

The Bantams, that's the young ones, ages 7-12 years, have their classes on Monday afternoon beginning at 1 p.m. The Juniors, 13-18, have instruction on Wednesdays at the same time. Registration for the first of two five week sessions is this week with classes starting on June 25. The second session begins on July 23.

Women's classes will register Monday at 1 p.m. Times for instruction will be determined by the majority preference. Free coffee and nursery service is an added feature. The program is six weeks long with the seventh set aside for a tournament.

Pom Lanes Manager, Mike Baker and his staff handle the coaching. There are two special events for the youth bowlers. Monday evening is teen night. Beginning at 7 p.m. bowlers can roll three games for $1.65 which includes cokes, hot dog, use of shoes and ball. The pre-teens get their turn on Wednesday afternoons from noon to 3 p.m.

Palm Lake classes

PGA professional Dick Rossman of Palm Lake Golf Course has put together a series of group lessons in cooperation with the Pomona department. Instruction includes the use of balls and clubs. Sessions begin the week of June 25 and August 6.

Juniors can get their introduction to golf on Monday afternoons. The 7-11 year olds have a class at 1 p.m. while 12-16 year olds meet at 2 p.m. Participants receive six lessons for a cost of $60.

Morning instruction for women is planned for Mondays and Friday's at 10 a.m. The series of six lessons cost $9 with the first session starting June 25. The use of balls and clubs are included.

Evening classes for adults, with the same $9 fee, have been set for Monday through Thursdays. Classes will be held at 7 and 8 p.m. each evening so there is an opportunity for everyone who desires instruction.

Teen Night activities

Six areas are open evenings for the young adults in the community. The activities vary from basketball and volleyball to music and records as well as table games.

Westmont Park and Fremont Junior High gym are open Monday and Wednesday evenings from 6-9 p.m. Pomona High's gym is open on the same evenings and Tuesdays.

Tuesday and Thursday locations include Marshall and Simons Junior High gyms along with Palomares Park. The time is 6-9:30 p.m.

Washington Park opens the doors on Wednesday and Friday evenings for the same hours.

Adult coed sports eveings are planned for the Palomares, Simons, Fremont and Marshall Junior High Gym. Volleyball is played for Simons on Monday and Wednesdays, and Palomares on Tuesday and Thursday. Basketball play is featured at Fremont on Tuesday and Thursday, and at Marshall on Monday and Wednesday. Times for the programs are 7-9:30 p.m.

People will find gyms available for play on weekends. Fremont is open on Saturday from 1-4:30 p.m. while Marshall and Pomona High are Open on Sunday at the same time.

If you desire more information about Pomona's summer program check the full page advertisement in last Friday's Progress-Bulletin. It's in the first section. You can also call 620-2321 daily between 8:15 a.m. and 5:15 p.m.

SLO coach on wrestling

POMONA — Vaughan Hitchcock, the very successful wrestling coach at Cal Poly San Luis Obispo will be one of the guest speakers at the second annual All-Sports Clinic beginning Wednesday at Cal Poly Pomona.

Hitchcock has guided his SLO wrestling teams to 11 consecutive California Collegiate Athletic Association (CCAA) championships. Including the 1972-73 campaign, his teams have piled up a string of 118 straight dual meet victories over California opponents and a dual meet record of 169-34-2.

In NCAA university competition he has guided his teams to three finishes among the top ten. His 1969 team placed fifth with 52 points, the most ever by a college division school. SLO tied for sixth in 1968 with 28 points and placed ninth in 1971 with 27 points.

In February of this year he became the 52nd coach to be voted into the prestigous United Savings Helms Hall Amateur Wrestling Hall of Fame.

Hitchcock will speak Wednesday at a morning session from 9-22 a.m. on the topics: "Cal Poly SLO wrestling programs" and "take downs." At the afternoon session from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. he will speak on "Reverses and Escapes" and "Pinning Combinations".

Spitzig moves up in drag boat racing

LONG BEACH — One of the major upsets on the 1972 drag boat racing scene was the mergence of Jeff Sptizig as the top point getter among the blown fuel flatbottom drivers. The 31-year old San Gabriel resident won the National Drag Boat Assn. title in his class by beating out two of the best drivers in the business, Larry Schwabenland Ray Caselli.

To prove it was no fluke, Spitzig, who is the national sales manager for Speedway Mag Wheels in Pomona, is out on top in the points race for 1973. Spitzig hopes to add to his points total today at Long Beach Marine Stadium during the running of the Pacific Challenge Drag Boat races.

Spitzig is the owner and driver of a Chrysler-powered Hondo named "Bad Moon Risin" and has proved to be one of the most consistent combinations in drag racing.

"Many of the flatbottom drivers are going to tunnel hull boats," said Spitzig, "But as long as my boat keeps running on top, I'm not going to change."

Champs crowned in spring v'ball leagues

POMONA — The Pomona Park and Recreation Department crowned four champions in their Spring Volleyball Leagues last week. Sixteen teams participated in both the six man and coed leagues.

Coach Laurey Houck produced two of the champs. His six-man squad, the Aggregates, and the YMCA Mixers team in the coed circuit were both winners. The Aggregates needed to beat Bemmel Pharmacy in a playoff for the championship after both squads had posted 13-5 marks.

Pomona First Baptist, coached by Bert Miller, won the division two men's title with a 16-2 record, the tops in the four leagues.

Three squads tied for top honors in the one coed league. Ron Foreman's Ducks defeated the Varmits 15-10 and the Guys and Dolls 15-6 to capture the title.

The four titlists received trophies for their efforts. Summer volleyball will be played Monday and Wednesday at Simons Junior High and Tuesday and Thursday at Palomares Junior High. The program begins Monday.

Orioles sell Orlando Pena

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The Baltimore Orioles Friday sold journeyman pitcher Orlando Pena to the St. Louis Cardinals and immediately brought up from their Rochester farm club Jesse Jefferson, a 23-year-old righthander.

Mike Rawlinson

Tee to Cup

Who will it be: Gary, Jack or Lee? Or will it be someone else who was close to Gary Player after his sizzling first round 67 Thursday in the 73rd annual U.S. Open at Oakmont, Pa.?

The final round of one of golf's biggies will be televised today on channel 7, beginning at 12:30 p.m.

Broadcasting shot-by-shot play on the final round today will be Jim McKay, Henry Linghurst and Chris Schenekel.

The purse this year is a tidy $200,000. About 30-grand goes to the winner.

Player practiced until his hands bled prior to the opening round of the event, which perhaps draws more spectator interest than any other major professional golf tournament.

One of four

Player is one of only four men ever to win all of the world's major golf championships, but he has not finished in the top 10 in the open since his 1965 victory.

His 67 matched the best round ever shot at Oakmont in four previous Opens.

Ben Hogan shot 67 in 1953 enroute to victory, and Deane Beman matched it in 1962.

The course record until Friday's second round was Jimmy Clark's 66 in 1965. Gene Borek, who made the field only because Dave Hill dropped out, shot a torrid 65 Friday, with the help of the greenskeepers who forgot to turn the sprinklers off Thursday night.

Softer greens

The treacherously slick Oakmont greens soaked up the moisture, and most of the pros noticed they were softer on the second round.

The greens were expected to give the pros trouble, but after 36 holes there were a surprising number of sub-par scores over the par-71, 6,921-yard layout.

Player, the diminutive South African who is famous for his basic black golfing togs, is one of the most popular pros on the tour.

He took time after answering every question newsmen threw at thim after Thursday's opening round to chat with a group of senior citizens who showed up late to meet some of the pros.

Stocks slip in aftermath of Nixon's Phase IV Talk

NEW YORK (UPI) — A halfpoint, one way or the other, usually doesn't mean much on Wall Street. But this week investors looking for Phase IV from President Nixon Wednesday night had to settle for Phase III ½, and stocks tumbled in light trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 31.45 points, more than wiping out the previous week's 26.04 advance which had been fueled largely by anticipation of a return to tough wage-price controls. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index dropped 1.93. The NYSE index declined 0.93 to 55.36.

Declines led advances this week, 992 to 704, among 1,945 issues traded.

Investors stayed on the sidelines, and volume dropped 64,666,515 shares compared with 66,615,440 shares the week before, and 77,379,070 shares the previous year.

High hopes for strong, long-term, wage-price controls, which had boosted stocks the week before, carried over, although trading was restrained. After the close Friday, June 8, the Federal Reserve had announced an unusually large ½-point increase in its discount rate, the interest it charges on loans to member banks. Some analysts said the rise was a calculated move by Fed Chairman Arthur Burns to spur President Nixon into taking an active role against inflation.

On Tuesday, stocks staged a strong rally, although on light volume, after White House sources hinted President Nixon soon would address the nation on television to unveil a new economic game plan. At that time, observers predicted mandatory, selective controls, some of which probably would be aimed at cooling the sharp price rises in heavy industry.

Word came during Wednesday's session the President would present that night his new strategy to beat inflation and many traders sold to nail down their profits.

The two sessions following Prsident Nixon's television address—in which he ordered a price freeze of up to 60 days on all consumer products and services, to be followed by an as yet unspecified "Phase IV" system of economic controls— were filled with disappointment, question marks, and stock declines.

Reaction on Wall Street to the Presidential order ranged from lukewarm to pessimistic. Some expressed the hope stocks would rally once investors realized the administration was concentrating on the economy. Others, like analyst Robert Johnson, felt "the reaction so far suggests the stock market isn't too entranced with the President's speech."

By week-end the list was faltering badly—losing over 14 points in the Dow Friday—as the investment community worried openly about a serious slump in corporate earnings as a result of the freeze. A more vague, but possibly more serious concern, centered on the question of what Nixon plans to do about inflation once the 60-day freeze is lifted. Many feared corporations would rush to boost prices as rapidly as the law permits.

McDonald's Corp. was the week's most active issue. It fell 6 to 59 ½ on 611,900 shares. The company attributed the stock's weakness to concern over future earnings performance.

International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. was second, off at 31 ½ on 577,800 shares. Gimbel Brothers followed adding 7¼ to 22⅝ on 573,700 shares. On Monday, Brown Williamson Tobacco Corp. said it plans a tender offer of $23 a share for all Gimbel stock.

Zapata Corp. gained 5 ½ during the week to 31, with trading in the stock halted from Wednesday through most of Friday. Hilmar Reksten, a Norwegian shipping operator considered to be one of the world's richest men, said he will make a tender offer of $38 a share for all outstanding Zapata stock.

Superior Oil rose 13 ½, but other oil issues were among the week's biggest losers. Kerr McGee fell 8 ⅜, Standard Oil of Ohio 7, and Getty 5 ¾.

Fairchild Camera fell 6 ¼, IBM 6, Sperry Rand 2 ¼, and General Electric 2 ⅞.

Glamors were mixed. Schlumberger tacked on 6 ¼, and ARA Services 2 ⅜, while Walt Disney dropped 4 ¾, and Corning Glass 2 ⅜.

General Motors declined 3 ⅜, Chrysler 1 ⅞.

Rails moved irregularly higher. Missouri Pacific gained 3 ¼, Burlington Northern 3.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — "The momentum behind tax reform is not nearly as strong this year as it was in 1969," when the credit-crunch occurred, says First National City Bank's "Sound of The Economy". The newsletter says the House Ways and Means Committee has pushed aside tax matters to consider the trade bill and the Senate probably will not be debating tax reform until next year. The fact that Congress is "willing to stretch out the process makes it unlikely that we'll get the same sweeping reforms we got in 1969," it adds.

Up until the breakdown of the Bretton Woods Agreement in August 1971, "it was almost unpatriotic to publicly recommend gold stocks," Walston & Co. says. After the suspension of converting the U.S. dollar into gold and the first 10 per cent devaluation of the greenback, "the trend of international financial developments not only removed the stigma from gold stocks but appears to have given them unusual appeal as long-term investments," says the firm.

Impertinence in Paris

American teaches wine course

PARIS (UPI) — The students of a new school in Paris find the clasroom work delightful and the homework downright giddy.

In fact, one student announced, "After the first lesson I was a bit high when I got home."

France's first "Academy of Wine" teaches pupils how to drink wine, smell it buy it, store it and look at it.

The first French wine school is not French at all. It was opened in April by an American, John Winroth, formerly of Rockford, Ill., 37, wine critic for the International Herald Tribune, and Englishman Steven Spurrier, 31, the only foreigner who runs a wine shop in Paris.

Winroth was studying at the Sorbonne in Paris to become a history professor but switched eight years ago to making a career out of his hobby of wine. Now he teaches wine instead of history in a remodeled locksmith's shop next to Spurrier's wine shop near the Madeleine church.

Includes Frenchman

The other evening the professor was holding forth behind his "school desk", a 19th Century marble bar. The students who signed up to sip eight wines with cheese per lesson for six lessons for a fee of $80 were a German, four Americans, an English woman and, of all things, a Frenchman.

The Frenchman agreed with Winroth that "the average Frenchman thinks he knows about wine but he really doesn't." The students said they enrolled because they wanted to learn about wines and "it's not a snob subject any more."

Those jokes about wine buffs calling wine "timid" or "buxom" or "impertinent" are serious in this school. Winroth intoned that a white Sancerre wine "is too aggressive to go with oysters."

Winroth's lessons on how to judge wine:

"—First look at it. It should be clear, not cloudy. Young wine should be pale, older wines darker. Bubbles mean acid which disappears with age.

"—Smell it. Swill the wine around in the glass. If there's anything bad in it the harshness will come in the odor.

"—Taste it. Roll it around in your mouth, gulp in air and gargle the wine in your mouth to increase evaporation and thus taste because your mouth has little to do with taste, you get it through your nose.

Sweet taste first

"A sweet taste comes on immediately. Then the acid taste comes up. The longer it takes the bitterness to come up determines the quality of the wine. A tingling on the tongue means the fermentation is not quite finished."

Student questions included:

—What makes the color of wine? ("White wine is strictly juice from either red or white grapes. Red wine is the juice, seeds, stem, skin from red grapes. The skin gives the color").

—How do you chill wine? ("Never put wine in the freezing compartment of your refrigerator before serving, that's brutal for it. Use an ice bucket. Never store wine in the refrigerator. You will damage it seriously.")

—Why do you get a headache after drinking wine? "All wine contains sulphur dioxide so it will not continue to ferment. If it's in too heavy amounts you get a headache."

The professor concluded: "The ultimate reason for tasting wine is not to learn what you should drink but to decide for yourself what is good."

Shields against creditors:

Declaring homestead has some advantages

POMONA — It is sometimes an advantage to a homeowner in California to declare his house a homestead.

This is a legal procedure intended to shield the home against certain types of creditors whose claims may be through judgment liens against the property, explained James Odom, president of the Pomona Valley Board of Realtors.

"In other words, those creditors may not force sale of the property to satisfy a debt, except under certain circumstances."

The homestead consists of the dwelling, outbulidings, and the land on which they are situated. There is no limiting amount of land that can be declared.

"As a Realtor, I find that people often vaguely associate this homestead declaration with the homesteading of federal land, where the person establishes right to title by living on it a certain length of time, putting up improvements, etc.

"The homestead I'm discussing may be claimed by the head of the family," said Odom. "It may be not more than $20,000 in value over and above liens and encumbrances existing against the property at time of declaration."

If a person has a house worth $25,000 with a mortgage yet to pay of $10,000, the remaining value of $15,000 comes under the homestead provisions. If, however, a person has a house, other buildings and land worth $35,000 with a mortgage balance of $10,000 yet to be paid, the remaining value is $25,000.

The homestead law would protect the owner against creditors only for $20,000 of that amount.

"To declare a homestead, the claimant must establish that he is the head of the family, or is the wife of one who has not made such a claim and it is in their joint behalf," he reported.

The name of the spouse must be declared, if the claimant is married. There must be a statement that the claimant resides on that property. There must be a description on the premises.

"All of these conditions must be met," said Odom. "The declaration must then be recorded with the county, that date becoming the effective date of the homestead."

Any judgments that created a lien against the property before that date may not be defeated by the declaration. Nor can claims by builders, architects, or contractors incurred afterward be blocked.

Mortgages and trust deeds executed by the claimant and spouse still have recourse against the property.

"Should there be a judgment againt someone whose house has been declared a homestead, the holder of the judgment may ask court to appoint appraisers to establish the value of the homestead.

"Should it exceed the $20,000 limitation, the court can declare that part of the propyrty may be sold to satisfy the judgment, some of the land making it up," he said.

Under court supervision, the total property may even be sold. No bid, however, may be less than the value of the homestead, plus the total of all the claims against it.

The proceeds go first to satisfy the liens and encumbrances, then to the homestead claim, then to satisfy costs of the sale, the balance, if any, going to the homestead claimant, said Odom.

"These are the principal features of the homestead. Special circumstances may vary their application, but not their effect."

Applications still accepted for rent subsidy

SAN BERNARDINO — Applications are still being accepted for a new federal rent subsidy program being conducted in San Bernardino County.

The project, titled Experimental Housing Allowance Program (EHAP), seeks to help 900 low income families improve their housing condition by providing them rent supplement payments.

Participants may choose to remain where they are or may look for housing in other areas.

Families will be selected on a random basis by computer. This will not be based on family need or the date the application was filed.

Applicants can file at various offices in the county. They are asked to take information about their annual income so staff members can help determine eligibility.

The two and three bedroom homes are priced from $19,900. They include wall-to-wall shag carpeting, decorator drapes, air conditioning, and color-coordinated kitchens with built-in dishwashers and gas ranges.

"Conventional financing will be tailored to enable buyers to take possession with minimum cash outlay," he added.

There will be wall-to-wall carpeting in the living and dining rooms, hallways and master bedrooms.

The close proximity to schools, shops and recreational facilities was a major factor in selecting this site, said Lewis. The development is a short distance from the Frank G. Bonelli Regional Park and its Puddingstone Lake.

Visitors may reach the site by turning south from Foothill Boulevard or north from Arrow Highway on White Avenue to Sixth Street, then east on Sixth Street.

FOR THE KIDDIES — While parents air their grievances in divorce court, their children now have a place to play at court facilities in Chicago's Civic Center. Mrs. Rhoda Bresler, founder of the daycare center, sits in the playroom with four children who are enjoying the activities.

Court day care center makes for quieter courtroom, happier kids

By GEORGETTE WAGNER

CHICAGO (UPI) — A courtroom is no place for a child, particularly when his home is being torn part in divorce action.

To spare children such emotional stress, Our Children Foundation (OCF) recently opened a courtroom childcare center here which its founders believe is the nation's first.

The supervised playroom in the Chicago Civic Center is free of charge to any child, 2 to 12 years old. During its first six weeks, 90 children showed up.

Painted a sprightly yellow and orange with children's drawings on the wall and child size furniture, the center contrasts with the austere courtrooms surrounding it.

On a recent Friday morning, six children were seated primly at two miniature tables, munching cookies and sipping soda. They soon abandoned their party behavior for the real fun. The room is filled with toys and the children bounced from one toy to another.

A 6-year-old hopped on a hobby horse. Three potential artists gleefully scribbled on tiny easels. A 4-year-old concocted "pretend" dinners. A little boy donned racer's goggles and hat to commandeer a plastic sanitation truck.

"It's like going on a Christmas shopping spree," Mrs. Beverly Steele, an administrative aide, said.

A 5-year-old breathlessly told her mother, "We had a party. Cookies and pop. And she read me a story. And ..."

"We find people bring children to many courts because they have no place to leave them safely," Circuit Court Chief Judge John S. Boyle said when he announced the playroom's opening. "The center will be a boon, not jut to divorce courts but to all the courts."

The energetic founder of the center and its supporting organization, Mrs. Rhoda Bresler, said, "I went into the Civic Center before the daycare faiility existed) and saw children sitting alone in the corridor. They looked frightened. I saw one child crying."

Spare the child

Some parents can't afford babysitters, some have nowhere to leave their children and others reject help from friends to conceal that they are in court, Mrs. Bresler said.

To use the facility, parents obtain a form from the presiding judge. The same parents must drop off and pick up his child, ensuring the parent can be located in emergency. The procedure is also a precaution in custody cases.

Mrs. Bresler expressed concern for children whose parents were getting a divorce. "We try to spare them the trauma of seeing their homes torn apart," she said.

"We realize we cannot erase whatever has been going on for two to five years," Mrs. Steele said. "The center is another side where people do care for kids. A bright side."

She stressed the center was strictly a child's playroom. "We don't question, apologize or quiz," she said.

Silence in court

While the children appeared to enjoy their daycare in court (one child cried when he had to leave), their parents seemed equally pleased. One mother, collecting her 4-and 6-year-olds, said,, "I think it's one of the greatest things that's happened. It's real convenient. And you can hear (in court). You don't have to say shhh."

The playroom is suported by dues-paying members and fundraising events.

"I want it to be free of taxpayer's money," Mrs. Bresler said. "If it isn't funded privately, they'll have to increase the public's taxes. I don't want children to be a pawn."

She said the foundation wants to establish childcare centers throughout Chicago and Illinois, and that a federal volunteer organization approached her to head a drive to open up courtroom daycare centers across the nation.

Police ordered to quit using foul language

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Policemen still may check the city's massage parlors for business licenses, but a Superior Court judge has ordered them to quit their alleged harassment of employes and customers and to quit using foul language.

Judge Charles Froelich refused, however, to grant a temporary restraining order that would have barred police from unreasonably checking the city's 100 massage parlors for the licenses.

An association of massage parlor owners sought the order, alleging police conduct was scaring customers away.

Froelich set a hearing for next Wednesday to further consider the matter. Owners said police abuse customers and employes and threaten them with jail if they refuse to cooperate during police inspections.

law in disguise Partner in crime

NEW YORK (UPI) — A 17-year-old boy recently asked a man wearing bermuda shorts to hold open a fence for him so he could steal one of several watchdogs at a car lot, police said.

Officers said the youth, who had made friends with five German shephards on duty, dragged out a caged Siberian huskie and walked off. He was soon arrested, however. The man in the shorts was a plainclothes cop.

Diabetic's sluggish feeling explained

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read your column faithfully and I want to thank you so much for your article on the double sugars. I am a 56-year-old obese diabetic with rheumatoid arthritis and hardening of the arteries, I have three diverticuli and have had diarrhea for 40 years or more.

I can't tell you the money I've spent with doctors trying to clear up my diarrhea and no one ever came up with the cause and with your article I stopped milk and all milk products and for the first time in recent memory I now have solid stools. It is such a pleasure not to have cramps in my abdomen all the time and at night especially. I had told doctors how I ran to the bathroom but I honestly believe because I didn't lose weight they didn't believe me, that I would go eight times a day and was always hungry. I have eaten until I vomited and was still hungry. Now I know why, the inability to absorb milk sugar acting as a chemical laxative. Anyway, I'm so much better. I can't thank you enough.

Dear Reader — Yes, there are many people who have digestive disturbances because they can't tolerate milk sugar. This has received a lot more attention in recent years. I didn't learn about it in medical school or during my specialty training but only afterward. X rays of the digestive tract from stem to stern won't solve the problem and that is one reason why doctors sometimes fail to make the diagnosis. I believe unawareness of the problems that undigested milk can cause and the bad effects of too much coffee on the digestive tract are two of the most frequent unrecognized causes of indigestion. Your letter speaks eloquently for the problem, and how much benefit a person can really get by correcting the diet.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of The Progress-Bulletin, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's new booklet on spastic colon, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for "Spastic Colon" booklet.

Drastic measure urged

Dogs and cats lead pet boom

By LOUIS CASSEL
UPI Senior Editor

American is undergoing a pet population explosion. It already is so seriously overdogged and over-catted, some experts say, that drastic measures must be taken to achieve canine and feline birth control..

The U. S. Census Bureau does not include household pets in its tabulations, so no one knows with precision how many dogs and cats now reside in U. S. homes — or roam the streets as strays.

The respected Humane Society of the United States, which has launched a nationwide campaign for pet birth control, estimates there now are about 120 million dogs and cats in the United States. It says 10,000 additional kittens and puppies are being born every hour. All that keeps us from being literally overrun, the Society says, is the sad fact that some 50 million unwanted animals are put to death each year.

The American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, which feels that the Humane Society may be a trifle overwrought about the pet problem, estimates the present dog and cat population at about 50 million — less than half the Humane Society figure. Other published estimates tend to split the difference, coming up with a total of 40 million dogs and 40 million cats.

Since none of the estimates are based on an actual nose-count, you can choose any one you like—or make up your own.

Despite wide variation on pet statistics, there seems to be general agreement among groups concerned with animal welfare that too many unwanted animals are being destroyed each year. The Humane Society says it costs about $50 million a year to exterminate dogs and cats which have been adjudged expendable.

Instead of permitting unrestricted procreation—and then killing off the surplus dogs and cats which result from it, the society favors bringing the pet birth rate under control through sterilization operations. It also is investigating the possibility that dogs and cats might be rendered infertile at birth through painless injections of hormones.

A California legislator, Assemblyman Mike Cullen of Long Beach, has carried this idea one step further. He has proposed that California impose a special tax on dog and cat food—but remit the tax if the food is laced with an animal version of the contraceptive pill.

Contraceptive pills already are available to pet owners through veterinarians. They greatly simplify the problems of getting a female dog or cat through her fertile season without an unwanted pregnancy. Some veterinarians also report a fairly brisk business in pet abortions.

So far, there is no evidence that any of these measures is having much effect on the overall growth rate of the U.S. dog and cat population. The Humane Society points out that while one well-cared-against impregnation by contraceptive pills or tight home security, her abstinence counts for little against the profligacy of a stray or loosely-tended dog or cat. A single female dog and her offspring, if permitted to remain fertile, can add more than 4,000 puppies to the nation's dog population in a period of seven years.

Economics and ecology also figure in the growing controversy over curbing pet population growth.

The Pet Food Institute reports that sales of commercially prepared dog and cat food have risen from $600 million in 1965 to more than $1.6 billion last year. A pet-owning family spends about four per cent of its total food budget on animal chow.

Huge sums also are spent annually on pet supplies, ranging from a humble feeding bowl to mink-lined jackets, and on boarding kennels, veterinary care and pet cemetaries, where the burial of a dog or cat may sometimes cost as much as a human funeral.

The ecology angle derives from the fact that dogs deposit an estimated 3,500 tons of feces and 9.5 million gallons of urine on America's lawns and sidewalks every day.

A new organization called "Children Before Dogs" says this is a health menace, because dogs stools often contains round worms which may get into the bodies of children playing on the streets.

Although dogs are easily treated for round worms, there is no known cure for a child who becomes infested.

Reinecke hits textbook on sex education

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The State Board of Education has adopted a sex education book for seventh and eighth graders that Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke says may cause experimentation that "could very easily lead to many unwed mothers."

The book, "Human Sexuality" by James L. McCary of Houston, Tex., was adopted on a 7-1 vote Thursday after it had been cut from the original 164 pages to about half.

A revision committee deleted entirely the discussions of masochism, sadism, transvestism, nymphomania, voyeurism, incest, satyriasis, impotency and frigidity.

The book does discuss homosexuality, promiscuity, prostitution and exhibitionism.

Reinecke voiced his objections in a letter hand delivered to Board President Newton Steward of Eureka at the opening of the meeting.

"The language in which the book is written suggests experimentation by describing in vivid detail the feelings one experiences as he goes through the acts," the lieutenant governor said. "Experimentation could very easily lead to many unwed mothers."

State Sen. John L. Harmer also objected through a presentation by his assistant, Ernest F. Schulzke.

He said the book belittled the family unit while defending "aberrant sexual behavior."

He said the book discussed abortion "in the same tone one would use in discussing extermination of rodents."

Harmer also said the book does not concentrate on instilling moral values.

Board member Dr. John Ford, a San Diego physician who has defended the book by the University of Houston professor of psychology, insisted the book does contain moral instructions. But, he admitted it "does not go as far with moral values as I'd like to see."

Ford and Mrs. Marion W. Drunker, both members of the revision committee, said the book was necessary because it was imperative to give the facts of sexual life to seventh and eighth graders.

Court says man may protect home

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — An appellate court has cleared a man who rigged a burglar trap and wounded a teen-ager.

The court reversed the 1971 assault with a deadly weapon conviction of Don L. Ceballos, 34, San Anselmo, Calif., who rigged the trap with a gun.

The State Court of Appeal ruled Thursday that Ceballos had a right to use necessary force to protect his home against burglary. He had been found guilty in Marin County Superior Court.

Company stops rationing gas for Hawaii

HONOLULU (UPI) — Standard Oil of California has Hawaii.

Mark W. Allen, Standard's Hawaii division manager, said Wednesday the company's shortage of gasoline, reported last month, ended soon after the first of this month.

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR SLOAN WILSON, author of "The Man in the Gray Flannel Suit," "A Summer Place," and other novels

Have you ever regretted your decision to become a novelist?—K. O. D., Stockton, Calif.

● Being a novelist is something like walking down Fifth Avenue naked while people throw flowers and bricks at you. This is true even when you publish a successful book, because high praise almost always brings with it an echo of bitter criticism. I love my profession and take the risks and bricks it involves gladly. A writer's business is sticking his neck out. The bricks occasionally hurt, but the flowers smell good.

FOR MRS. PAT NIXON

Have you ever seen any ghosts of the past Presidents and past First Ladies in the White House?—Mrs. Susan Williams, Santa Ana, Calif.

● We haven't seen any ghosts of past members of First Families in the White House, but my daughters and I do tell visitors that those who have stayed in the Lincoln Bedroom have heard strange sounds. We laughingly perpetuate the theory that perhaps a ghost does haunt the room.

FOR JACQUELINE SUSANN, actress and author

Josephine, your poodle, should be 19 by now. Is she still well?—N. Thoen, Vermilion, Ohio

● Josephine died in 1970, four days before her sixteenth birthday. She was in my arms. She kissed me, coughed suddenly, and died. The next day, a friend arrived with a carrying case. He said, "I spent all night going to kennels to find one with Josephine's face. And so you wouldn't make comparisons, I got you a boy." His name is Joseph Ian. He has not replaced Josephine, but I love him for himself.

FOR JOHNNY BENCH of the Cincinnati Reds

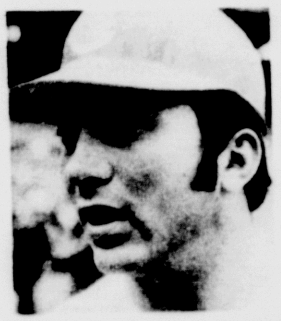
In 1971, you had a bad year. What was the biggest lesson you learned that year?—Dave Wallace, Dayton, Ohio

● My biggest lesson was that fans are really fickle. Most ballplayers say let them boo. But it really does hurt.



FOR MEADOWLARK LEMON
of the Harlem Globetrotters

Did the Harlem Globetrotters start in Harlem?—Nick Horstman, Cloverdale, Ohio

● No, the team started in Chicago and none of the first five players was from anywhere near Harlem. Abe Saperstein, the founder of the club, thought the name "Harlem" would get across the message that it was an all-black team.

FOR GUNTHER GEBEL-WILLIAMS, animal trainer

Which animal is the most difficult to train?—Mrs. Ruth Steck, Dunedin, Fla.

● A horse. Elephants and tigers are much easier to train. Horses have a huge stubborn streak. They need tremendous hours of rehearsal to perfect their tricks.

FOR JOHN DENVER

Whose songs influence you the most, and whose songs do you like the most?—A. N. Johnson, Ventura, Calif.

● Tom Paxton's more than anybody's. When I started getting into folk music, the songs that got to me were "Can't Help But Wonder Where I'm Bound" and "Ramblin' Boy"—things like that. I also went for the Kingston Trio, Peter, Paul and Mary, the Beatles, James Taylor and Kris Kristofferson—all the people you would think I'd be interested in. Judy Collins was also a big influence.

FOR PETULA CLARK

I understand that Geneva, Switzerland, where you live, has become a kind of second Hollywood. True?—D. Stevens, Menosha, Wis.

● There are a lot of well-known people living in Geneva and nearby, like Charles Boyer, Audrey Hepburn, Charles Chaplin, Stewart Granger, David Niven--and right next door to me, Jean-Claude Killy. But except for Jean-Claude, who keeps coming over to use our swimming pool, we don't associate much. We go to Switzerland to have privacy.

FOR DORIS DAY

What is the most difficult thing about acting?—Anthony Shelton, Fairforest, S.C.

● The repetition can sometimes be trying. In the case of films, it's doing the same scene several times for the camera. And I'm sure the actors in a long-running play can find it tedious to repeat their performances night after night. However, I don't think I've heard any actor ever complain that acting, in the general sense, is a drag.

Bing Crosby Talks to Fathers:

"After Two Sets of Children—Here's How I Feel About Strictness"

Bing and Kathryn Crosby are happily surrounded by Bing's "second batch" — Harry, Mary Frances and Nathaniel—in this photograph.

Bing and his first wife, Dixie Lee, with three of their four sons, Dennis, Gary and Philip. This was snapped back in 1936.

By Bing Crosby

In conversation with Helen Dorsey

Father's Day is kind of an offshoot of Mother's Day. I've always thought it ran second. But around our house, it gives the youngsters a chance to lay something on old Dad.

Mary Frances used to make things, little doodads, thingamabobs, a clay model of an animal or a bird. Now, she generally gives me a necktie. The boys give me golf balls or a couple of golf tees, something athletic. Last year they gave me some trout flies they bought. (They aren't quite old enough to make them yet.)

Sometimes people ask how I've raised Harry, Nathaniel and Mary Frances compared to my first batch of children. Actually there's been very little basic difference. When we raised my first batch of children I was a lot busier, had to travel much more, be on location for several months and didn't spend as much time with them as I do this group. Also, we sent the first group away to boarding school, whereas this group goes to a public high school down the street. But otherwise, the methods, the discipline and regime are the same.

I think in this day, more so than when my first children were growing up, it's especially important for parents to be as close as they can to their children and see something of them every day. We take all our meals together except lunch, when they're at school. There's so much permissiveness today—all children have to do is spend five minutes with the wrong companion and all the good work you've done can be undone. Today you have these groups who believe they can break the law and otherwise misbehave. If your kid gets into a group like that and doesn't participate, they call him "chicken." It's tough for a child to cope with that. So, if you can keep as close a relationship as possible with the children at this stage, I'm sure it's helpful. You need authority and discipline if you want any respect from your children for your beliefs, opinions and ideas.

I try to be a strict father, but there are certain limits. Kathryn wants them to do a lot of homework, and I do too; but sometimes if there's a good football, baseball or basketball game on—say, the play-off games—and they're on at night, I'm for letting the boys watch it on TV. But I'm strict in other things. Harry's 14 now. He's allowed one night a week, preferably on the weekend, when he can stay out on a date until 10:30 or 11 p.m. Mary Frances is 13, and she's not allowed that privilege yet. I suppose that's kind of strict for these times, but they don't seem to mind.

Our kids are in so many activities. Harry plays the piano and guitar, studies harmony and composition, plays golf and tennis and loves to shoot and go boating. The boys have even cooked up a little business with some other kids publishing a dining guide of San Francisco and Los Angeles. United Air Lines has agreed to take it if they're able to sell the restaurants on the idea. All three children have a wide, wide variety of interests and never seem to be just sitting around doing nothing.

We find withdrawing privileges the most effective way to maintain discipline with our children—withdrawing recreation pleasures, trips they've been looking forward to. They're too old to lick! Mary Frances is 13—I can't imagine myself bending her over my knee and paddling her. Harry is as tall as I am. I still lick Nathaniel—just bend him over my knee and hit him on the fanny—but that's not too often. We've always believed in a little physical reminder on the bottom. At least that worked when they were little. We spanked them all.

My own father was never very strict. He let us do anything in the world. My mother was very strict, and we all had to cooperate and conform. We were a large family and anyone who got out of line was really asking for trouble from Mom! But we never resented having that kind of discipline, and I've followed much the same thinking with my children.

I also think children who have affluent parents are a special problem. They have to be taught how to cope with this situation. I've explained to my kids that they have a special responsibility because they have some affluence to enjoy a lot of things other kids can't enjoy. The result, I believe, is that they are unusually generous and open.

Then there are problems like the drug scene. Kathryn, being in the nursing profession, had all the literature on drugs and has always seen to it that the kids are kept up to date on the whole thing—what drugs can do to your health, etc. There haven't been any instances in our neighborhood, or with people with whom we are personally acquainted, but Mary Frances is very well posted and so is Harry. What will happen to them if they get with the wrong group, if they are dared and called "chicken"? I don't know—all I can do is pray.

Don't forget to take your dog to your veterinarian periodically for a check-up.

Introducing the best thing that ever happened to dry dog food.

New Recipe Mixing Chunks. As far as we know, it's the first and only product made especially for mixing with dry dog food. In fact, we don't suggest that you serve it any other way. (Dogs do need more than meat.)

When you open your first can you'll see why it's so perfect for mixing! Each is chuck full of nutritious meat or chicken chunks, cooked in a special gravy.

It's a great way to turn that dry dog food your dog's been eating into a mouth-watering dinner.

Mixing Chunks varieties look and smell as appetizing as our completely balanced Recipe brand dinners, too!

How much you mix each day depends largely on how much dry dog food your dog eats. (In some cases, we've found that half a can or less will be plenty.)

But no matter how much you serve, one thing's for sure–your dog will be glad you did!

WHY PLANT A GROUND COVER?

In many areas and situations, ground covers are more appropriate and more satisfactory than turf. They are able to grow and thrive in sun OR shade, and in poor soil.

On steep slopes where mowing is difficult, ground cover is much more effective and much less laborious to maintain than grass. Ground covers hold the soil as well as turf and the textures are far more interesting.

Small areas of grass are a continual chore to keep mown and trimmed but ground covers require almost no care. They are excellent protection and soil conditioners. They hold the fallen leaves from blowing away, thus helping to add annually to the humus content.

WHY CREEPING RED SEDUM?

One of Sedum's most valuable assets is its full time beauty. Lush foliage begins in early spring, and star-shaped wine red flowers delight the viewer from late June through September. The attractive semi-evergreen foliage lasts well into winter, maintaining its rich green and bronze color nearly all year round.

Besides being one of the loveliest of the ground covers, Sedum also rates high on the other requirements. It is hardy, grows well in sun or partial shade, in sandy soil, clay soil, or good soil.

Its thick foliage and root system hold the soil on slopes or banks. The neat 3-4" cover forms a dense perennial mat to bring green and wine red beauty to slopes, borders, rocky areas, anywhere beauty and durability are needed.

Each plant will easily and quickly spread to fill one sq. ft. Sedum spreads evenly, maintains its uniform smooth beauty at all stages of growth. Unlike some other ground covers, Sedum, also called "Dragon's Blood," stays where you put it — does not straggle out into places where it doesn't belong. Sedum is almost indestructible, enduring and persisting against heavy climatic and nutritional odds.

FULLY GUARANTEED

All items guaranteed to be of high quality, exactly as advertised and to arrive in good healthy condition or purchase price will be refunded. RETURN SHIPPING LABEL ONLY —you may keep the plants. (One year limit).

SEND this Special Offer Coupon TODAY to receive your Red Sedum and Peonies!

Now is a Good Time to Order RED SEDUM!

Your young Sedum plants will establish themselves and begin to spread a few days after planting. In a month or so they will already be 3-4 inches in diameter. They may lose their foliage as the first winter progresses but will leaf out again in early spring. During a long growing season they may reach 12" in diameter, always maintaining their neat regulated shape.

Margaret Mead on Home, Childhood—and the Parting That May Be Forever

"In all my years of fieldwork, each place I have lived has become home. Each small object I have brought with me, each arrangement on a shelf of tin cans holding beads or salt for trade, or crayons for the children to draw with, becomes a mark of home. When it is dismantled on the last morning . . . I weep."

By Margaret Mead

The world is full of homes in which I have lived for a day, a month, a year, or much longer. How much I care about a home is not measured by the length of time I have lived there. One night in a room with a leaping fire may mean more to me than many months in a room without a fireplace, a room in which my life has been paced less excitingly.

In Hammonton, N.J., where we lived when I was a child, we had five whole acres, a good part of which was second-growth bush, studded with blueberries. However far away we moved and however often, we always came home again to Hammonton and the familiar and loved things that were too fragile to take with us—although Mother was very permissive about allowing us to carry along all the objects each of us wanted.

In Hammonton there was the same blueberry thicket in which to wander along old paths and make new ones, the same surrey, which we hired from a livery stable, and the same door which was never opened—a second door on the front porch which was used only on one occasion, on the night the neighbors pounded on it to tell us that our chimney had caught fire.

There was the well with a pump that we used to prime with hot water, until one day my five-year-old brother and a desperado friend a year younger threw everything detachable down the well, and then it was never used again. There was an old dinghy in which we grew flowers until the boys tore it up. And once, when the barn had been reshingled and the old shingles had been piled in the barn for the winter, the two little boys threw all of them out. Grandma said it just showed how two children, each one quite good by himself, could get into mischief. You never could tell, when you put two children together, what the outcome would be. (Perhaps—but it certainly enlarged my picture of what boys were like!)

It's strange how one always remembers certain objects—certain things—from childhood. There were treasures on Mother's dressing table, for example—a Wedgwood pin dish, a little porcelain Mary and her lamb, the pale green, flowered top of a rose bowl that had broken, and Mother's silver-backed comb and brush and mirror. All these things held meaning for me. Each was—and still is—capable of evoking a rush of memories.

Taken altogether, the things that mattered a great deal to me when I was a child are very few when I compare them to the overloaded tables and overcrowded shelves through which children today have to thread their way. Only if they are very fortunate will they be able to weave together into memories the ill-assorted mass of gadgets, toys, and easily forgotten objects, objects without a past or a future, and piles of snapshots that will be replaced by new, brightly colored snapshots next year.

The difficulty, it seems to me, is not—as so many older people claim—that in the past life was simpler and there were fewer things, and so people were somehow better, as well as more frugal. It is, rather, that today's children have to find new ways of anchoring the changing moments of their lives, and they have to try to do this with very little help from their elders, who grew up in an extraordinarily different world. How many of the young people who are rebelling against the tyranny of things, who want to strip their lives down to the contents of a rucksack, can remember and name the things that lay on their mothers' dressing tables or can describe every toy and book they had as a child?

It has been found that when desperate, unhappy youngsters are preparing to break away from a disordered, drug-ridden commune in which they have been living for months, they first gather together in one spot their few possessions and introduce a semblance of order among them. The need to define who you are by the place in which you live remains intact, even when that place is defined by a single object, like the small blue vase that used to mean home to one of my friends, the daughter of a widowed trained nurse who continually moved from one place to another.

I realized how few things are needed to make a "home" when I took my seven-year-old daughter on her first sea voyage. The ship—the "Marine Jumper," an unrenovated troopship with iron decks—was crowded with over a thousand students. They were bunked below where the troops had slept, while Cathy and I shared one cabin with six other members of the staff. Cathy climbed into her upper berth, opened the little packages that had been given to her as going-away presents, and arranged them in a circle around her. Then

"The difficulty, it seems to me . . . is, rather, that today's children have to find new ways of anchoring the changing moments of their lives."

she leaned over the side of the berth and said, "Now I am ready to see the ship."

Home, I learned, can be anywhere you make it. Home is also the place to which you come back again and again. The really poignant parting is the parting that may be forever. It is this sense that every sailing may be a point of no return that haunts the people of the Pacific islands. On the very day I arrived in Samoa, people began to ask, "When will you leave?" When I replied, "In a year," they sighed, "Alas, talofai"—our love to you—with the sadness of a thousand partings in their voices. These people knew that even when a fishing canoe goes out there is a chance that it will upset on the dangerous reef and that someone will be drowned. The smallest journey may be forever.

I have seen something similar on the seacoast of Portugal, where every year for four hundred years fishermen set out in their frail boats for the fishing banks across the treacherous Atlantic and no one could tell when—or whether—they would return. Portugal is still a widow's walk. The old women, dressed in black, still seem to be looking out to sea for the men who disappeared into the distance and an unknown fate.

In all my years of fieldwork, each place where I have lived has become home. Each small object I have brought with me, each arrangement on a shelf of tin cans holding beads or salt for trade, or crayons for the children to draw with, becomes the mark of home. When it is dismantled on the last morning—a morning that is marked by the greed of those who have little and hope for a share of whatever is left behind, as well as by the grief of feeling that someone is leaving forever—on that morning, I weep. I, too, know that this departure, unlike my forays from home as a child, is likely to be forever.

Make this your summer to remember

Your laughs seem to linger on sea waves, roll out to deep blue water and echo in the calls of distant ships.

Laughter, games, fun. And you're always a part of it when you depend on the internal protection of Tampax tampons.

"Natural" Is the Next Look for Hair!

"The proper conditioner can replace the oils and proteins your hair may need." And here's how to choose the proper conditioner!

By Joan Rattner Heilman

The "no-fuss" hairdo is the one to have now and into summer—in a natural one-process permanent color like Flaxen Blonde, a Miss Clairol Hair Color Bath.

This is a time when hairstyles are completely individual, reflecting your hair's natural abilities, your personality and your life-style. Whatever looks and works best for you. And, generally speaking, except for special occasions, that means a "no fuss" look accomplished with only a little effort.

Especially for summer, you'll want a style that's easy to cope with, no matter what the humidity or the temperature or the situation. The answer is a terrific haircut, one that cuts the style right into your hair, versatile enough to wear a few different ways. Go to the best hair cutter you can find at least every four to six weeks to keep the shape and eliminate the broken ends. Hair that's basically wash-and-wear will look good combed into place and dried, blown dry with a hair dryer, or turned into a line with the help of a couple of pincurls or rollers, heated or otherwise. Of course, there will still be times when you'll want to do more. But the quick no-fuss look is definitely today.

Almost everyone today wants to be able to do her own hair between visits to the hairdresser. To keep your hair (literally) in good shape means you must nurture it, pamper it, give it what it needs and avoid what it doesn't. What it needs is scrupulous shampooing and conditioning. Plus great natural-looking coloring, your own or acquired. Wash it whenever it needs it, even if that's every day. Choose your shampoo carefully, avoiding the harsh ones that can dry it out and fade your color. Some shampoos are buffered with conditioners or body-builders. And keep a spray-in dry shampoo handy for emergencies.

The proper conditioner can replace the oils and proteins your hair may need. Corrective conditioners, used two or three times a month, will help out damaged hair. Instant conditioners applied after each shampoo will give shine and control.

Decide whether your own hair color does all it can for you. If it doesn't, change it a little or a lot and get the color you want.

Treat your hair gently. Don't brush too strenuously. Don't handle it more than you must. Protect it from the sun, especially if you color it. Use a non-lacquer spray and a non-stiff setting lotion.

How to Color Your Hair– Step by Step

There's absolutely no reason today for anyone to feel stuck with dull, drab, no-color hair. Hair coloring has become so simple and so varied that you can choose a new shade and have it in an easy afternoon. You can ease into hair coloring with a temporary shampoo-to-shampoo color refresher or a semipermanent tint that lasts through four or five shampoos. Or you can go all the way with a permanent color that stays with you till it's cut off.

Here, in abbreviated form, are the ways to apply color to your hair. The first rule of hair coloring is always to read the directions all the way through and very carefully. The second is to follow them exactly as they're given.

Temporary Color or Rinse

(This is applied after every shampoo. It coats the hair shaft but does not change the natural color pigment.)

1. Wash your hair and towel-dry it. 2. Shake product well. 3. Starting at the front of the head, work the rinse through the hair and comb through to distribute evenly. 4. You are finished.

Semipermanent Color

(This lasts through a few shampoos, penetrates the hair slightly, but does not change the natural pigment.)

If you use the lotion form: 1. Apply the coloring to dry hair. Work in like a shampoo. 2. Pile your hair on top of your head and put on the plastic cap. 3. Prepare the after-rinse. 4. After 30 or 45 minutes, remove cap and add enough water to hair for a lather. 5. Rinse color from hair. 6. Apply after-rinse and leave it in the hair.

If you use color foam: 1. Shampoo and towel-dry your hair. 2. Apply the foam and work through. 3. Don the plastic cap and leave it on 15 to 20 minutes. 4. Remove cap, add lukewarm water to hair and work into a lather. 5. Rinse thoroughly.

Permanent Color

(Permanent color actually changes the color of your hair, and it can't be washed away. A one-process product will lighten or darken your hair, add highlights or depth to your natural color. But a two-process product is needed if you want to lighten your hair dramatically. First the hair must be lightened and then toned.)

One-process permanent color: 1. Prepare the tint mixture. 2. Apply it to dry hair as directed. 3. After indicated length of time add lukewarm water, work up a lather and rinse thoroughly. 4. Wash quickly and thoroughly with a color-fast shampoo. 5. Rinse thoroughly with water.

Two-process color:

Lightening: 1. Prepare lightener. 2. Divide your hair into four sections. 3. Starting at the back, apply mixture to separate strands of hair every half inch. 4. Now continue parting the hair and applying mixture until the entire head is completed. 5. Work remaining mixture through the hair and pile hair on top of your head. 6. Start your timing. 7. Test frequently for results. 8. When your hair has reached the desired degree of lightness, rinse and shampoo it immediately.

Now it is ready for the toning process: 1. Towel-dry. 2. Prepare toner. 3. Apply to the hair and work through. 4. Allow color to develop according to directions. 5. Add warm water and work into a lather. 6. Rinse thoroughly with warm water until the water runs clear. 7. Shampoo.

How do you put life into your hair when you don't want to change the basic color? Is a special shampoo needed for color-treated hair? Check above. The shade shown is True Brunette Light Golden Brown, by Clairol.

Strand test: Always be sure to test for color when using a permanent coloring.

Working in the color: The coloring product must always be thoroughly worked into your hair for complete coverage.

Towel-drying: For most (but not all) methods of coloring, towel-dry your hair after shampooing.

Questions & Answers About Your Hair*

*Yes, It Can Be More Beautiful

Q. If I want to keep my own basic hair color, but would like to give it more life, what should I use? I've never colored my hair and I admit I'm rather afraid of starting now.
A. Try a semipermanent shampoo-in or foam-in hair color in a shade that's close to your own. You'll get the richness and depth of color you're looking for. It will last through four or five shampoos, then fade away. If you like the results, do it again. Or you can forget it or try another kind of coloring.

Q. Are there special products to cover gray?
A. Yes, there are, both in semipermanent and permanent coloring. The simplest solution is to use a semipermanent coloring that will cover the gray and enrich the natural tones too. But if you've got a lot of gray or you prefer to change your basic color, perhaps to a more flattering shade, choose a permanent color either close to your own natural shade, or lighter or darker.

Q. What can I do for my very oily hair?
A. You can't do much to make it less oily, but you can wash it a lot. As soon as the oil becomes noticeable, shampoo your hair with a product made especially for your problem. Hair coloring often helps to remove some of the excess oiliness for a while. Don't brush or handle your hair too much, as this will stimulate more oil production and bring the oil down from the scalp. Don't use extremely hot water or sit under a very hot dryer because these, too, will stimulate the oil glands. Because of the frequent washing, choose a hairstyle that's easy to cope with. Try to stay away from fatty foods.

Q. How fast does hair grow?
A. From ⅛-inch to ¼-inch a month.

Q. If I want to go from brunette to ash blonde, can I use a temporary or semipermanent color?
A. No, you'll need a permanent coloring of the two-process variety. Make sure you're willing to retouch frequently to keep the color looking good.

Q. Are there any known cures for dandruff yet?
A. Unfortunately, no, but a special dandruff-control shampoo can be a big help if you use it regularly. Keep your hair equipment clean and try to stay in good physical condition. Poor health, tiredness, stress, etc., tend to intensify the dandruff problem.

Q. Is it safe to straighten your hair and color it at the same time? My hair is very curly and an uninteresting color.
A. It's best to wait at least a week after the straightening—or a permanent—before coloring. Use a product especially designed for colored hair.

Q. What can be done about hair that's getting thinner?
A. Handle it as little as possible, never setting it too tight or pulling it back too taut. If you're abusing it in any way, stop. Keep it clean to make it look as full as possible, using a body-building shampoo. And check with your doctor to be sure the situation isn't due to a reparable physical condition.

Q. After I've acquired colored hair, should I use a special shampoo?
A. There are shampoos containing conditioners that are made especially to pamper hair that's been tinted. They'll help keep your hair from fading and losing its depth of color.

Q. How many hairs are there on my head?
A. Between 90,000 and 150,000. Redheads have the fewest and natural blondes the most.

Q. Is frosting the answer for me? I'd like a blonde look (my hair is light brown) without coloring it all over.
A. You've got the perfect hair color for frosting, tipping or highlighting. Any of these will give you a subtle blonde effect by lightening hair here and there over your head and especially around the face. It's pretty and easy to maintain. You won't have to do it again for three or four months, as new growth is usually not noticeable until then.

Q. What are the advantages of a blow-dry set?
A. It's quite quick and it produces shape as well as a certain amount of volume. It does take some practice and it's tiring until you get the hang of it. Best thing to do is ask your hairdresser to give you a demonstration lesson. You'll need a lightweight hand dryer and a round or curved brush, or an air brush, which is a hand dryer with an attachable brush. The idea is to blow your hair dry as you brush it into the shape you want.

Q. And a "place set"?
A. Placing is the simplest way of setting the hair. You comb your hair into place, using a setting lotion, clip it there and let it dry. It works well if you want a close-to-the-head shape. For a bit more lift, place the hair over wads of cotton.

Q. How should I get rid of my split ends?
A. Cut them off. Trim your hair at least every six or eight weeks, even if only a quarter of an inch. And use a conditioner regularly.

3 New Styles— Which One Is You?

Curly yet controlled, this hairstyle conforms to the smaller silhouette forecast for summer. Soft bangs and curls frame the face, and the smooth semi-shingled nape is a new feature for '73.

A touch of the Great Gatsby . . . The small head, wide waves, the shingled back add up to fashion pure and simple. This coif will be the perfect "final touch" to the softer look in fashion.

For those who prefer more length, the hair is still brushed smooth and close to the head, but curled at the ends to achieve a new wider look. This coif shows to perfect advantage hair that gleams with a lively sheen.

And Last but Not Least... Some Professional Tips for More Beautiful Hair

By Kenneth
Internationally Famous Hair Stylist

Summer Care

It has always seemed madness to me that women spend their summers neglecting their hair or tormenting it with sun, wind, salt water and chlorine. Then after Labor Day they rush out to buy lotions, potions and magic elixirs they hope will bring it back to its glorious natural condition in one easy swoop.

It just doesn't work. You can help your hair once you've abused it, but it won't really recover until you've grown a whole new crop.

Why not avoid all the problems and take care of it during the summer instead?

Cover your hair in the sun, especially if it's been tinted, bleached, permanented or straightened. The sun can lighten natural hair, and completely change the color of color-treated hair, turning it brassy or dull or red. The sun will also dry your hair out, causing split ends and breakage as well as turning it into a reasonable facsimile of straw, particularly if it's been chemically treated. Wear a scarf over it or a brimmed hat whenever you're outside.

Don't leave salt water, chlorinated pool water or suntan lotions in your hair. When you come in from the beach or the pool and rinse yourself off, rinse your hair out too. A shampoo is even better, along with an instant conditioner which you leave on for a minute before washing out.

Conditioners are particularly important in the summertime—I suggest using them with every shampoo if your hair is dry. And why not, if you lead a concentrated beach life, put a conditioner on your hair before you go to the beach? Your hair will get wet anyway, and under the head covering, it won't be seen.

Cut your hair regularly in summer, at least once every four weeks—it grows faster in warm weather.

Try to avoid excessive hair spray. In humid air it tends to get sticky.

Obviously, the simplest, easiest hairstyle is best for summer. Just about every client I see wants one that requires minimum care and won't look awful when it isn't set. To me, that means short wash-and-wear hair, or long wash-and-wear hair, perhaps with the help of a hairpiece.

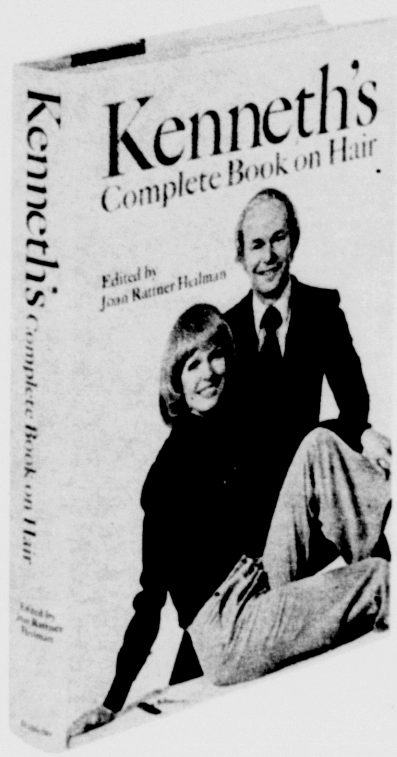
The ideal short drip-dry hair doesn't need setting at all, but can be combed into place. Comb some setting lotion through your hair after you've towel-dried it, just for body to hold it in line while it dries completely. Or blow it dry, using a brush and a hand dryer to create a bit of volume. Or put a few rollers on the top if you want some bounce.

Wash-and-wear styles have to be very simple and you can't always expect to get the most flattering look for yourself. But that's not too important when you think about the convenience of hair that looks neat and is easy to cope with at the beach. You don't want to have to run for the hairdresser or your curlers every time you climb out of the water.

If you don't look good in a short style, why not a long one, just as easy to cope with? When I talk about long hair, I don't mean way down to there. Hair longer than three or four inches below the shoulders is difficult to handle until you have the knack for it. The hair length I think looks best ranges from an inch below the chin to four inches below the shoulders. It should be essentially all one length, or a little longer in front, so you can contain it in some way in the back.

You can wear this length free, in braids or pulled back in a ponytail. Longer hair makes it easier to add simple hairpieces, such as an extra braid or a wiglet done in curls. If you want a dressier look for evening, the classic French twist is quite elegant.

And don't forget wigs for summer. They can be your answer.



Of himself, Kenneth writes: "I've been at this business of hairdressing for almost 25 years. I've never been known for up-to-the-minute styles, but rather for up-to-the-minute clients. By that I mean that real hair fashion comes from what women will wear on their heads—they are the final authorities. But there must be something I do that's right because I have a very large regular clientele—some of them the most famous women in the world, some of them the richest women in the world; the rest, career girls, suburban housewives, teenagers, society women. And I have many transient clients, people who visit New York once a year and want to have a marvelous time. Part of their trip is a trip to Kenneth's. I welcome them."

Winter Care

If you're an avid skier, you've probably got a hair problem unless you wear your hair in a wash-and-wear style—short and shaped so it will look presentable when there is no set at all. Or long, so you can hold it back in some way. Skiing is very rough on the hair. Usually you wear a cap or a hood which is guaranteed to destroy any coiffure in half an hour. Your hair either gets stuck to your head or it turns dry and electric and stands on end when you take off your hat. If you can't just comb it, I suggest you carry a kerchief in your pocket to put on when you go in for lunch. Then wash your hair before you go to dinner.

At night, when you want to look pretty, give yourself a quick hairdo with heated rollers, or a curling iron, or a wig, a wiglet or other hairpiece, if wash-and-wear doesn't work for you.

Even non-sportswomen have winter troubles. If you keep your head under cover all the time, your hair may become too oily too soon—you'll have to wash it whenever it needs it. If your hair suffers from static electricity, a cream rinse might be helpful along with a light film of hair spray.

The author and his father.

Robert Holland is 13. He mailed FAMILY WEEKLY this essay, which he calls "A Trucker's Son," from his home in Pomona, Calif. He sent it not for Father's Day, but out of love for his father. Isn't that what Father's Day is all about?

A Trucker's Son

A trucker's son is a regular boy. Some are fat, slim, tall and short. Some are happy and some are sad. But when his dad is leaving for a run he keeps a stiff upper lip. There are some good things about being a trucker's son, and there are some bad things about being a trucker's son. First let me tell you the good things. The good things are that in summer you might be able to go on a run or two with him, and that you can clean his truck up when he gets in. Why is it fun to clean up a truck? It is the feeling I get of being in a rig, it's a nice feeling. Also the feeling of being the man of the house while Dad's away. Also pumping gas when Mom goes to a self-service gas station.

Now there are some bad things about being a trucker's son also. Like feeling left out with the Boy Scouts because of the father-son events. Also never being able to go fishing because he's never there to take you.

But a trucker feels that driving a truck is the best occupation in the whole world. Someday I will probably be a truck driver and my son will probably be writing something about me—like he wishes I would stay home more often. And I will, because I know what it is like to have something planned and the office or the dispatcher call and say get your bags packed you're going to Chicago, or New York, or maybe Dallas. And he has to say OK because he knows he's got to make a living. I know what it's like. It has happened to me before. Because my dad drives a truck coast to coast, in a 72 Pete with a 375 Cat and can turn Chicago in six days. Sometimes I will guess what time he will be in and sometimes I am right and sometimes I am wrong. I am a trucker's son. And my dad is the best trucker in the whole world.

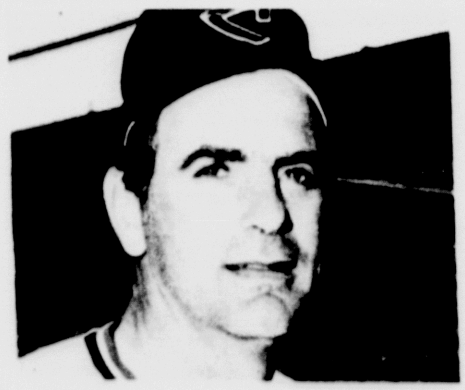
GAYLORD PERRY:
Hey!—What's That Sinker Pitch Got on It?



Gaylord Perry, the 6-4, 220-pound pitcher for the Cleveland Indians, is the first man to win the Cy Young Award as the outstanding pitcher in the American League in his first year after switching from the National League. He and his brother Jim, the Detroit pitcher, are also the only brother duo in baseball history to cop Cy Young awards. Gaylord Perry won 24 games in 1972 and had a brilliant earned-run average of 1.92. He also earned the enmity of opposing batters, who claimed he was throwing a spitball. No one's been able to prove that, however, and American League president Joe Cronin explains: "Perry's very skilled at throwing a sinker, which takes an unusual downward dip like a spitball would do. But it is not a spitball." Gaylord, 34, and his brother, 36, are the sons of a poor tenant farmer from Williamston, N.C. They learned their marksmanship by throwing rubber balls against a barn door. Gaylord's victories in 1972 were second only to an all-time Cleveland record set by Bob Feller 27 years ago. Gaylord and his brother maintain a friendly rivalry, but so far have avoided pitching against each other. Perry and his wife Blanche have four children and live in the off-season in Portola Valley, Calif.—By Barry Abramson

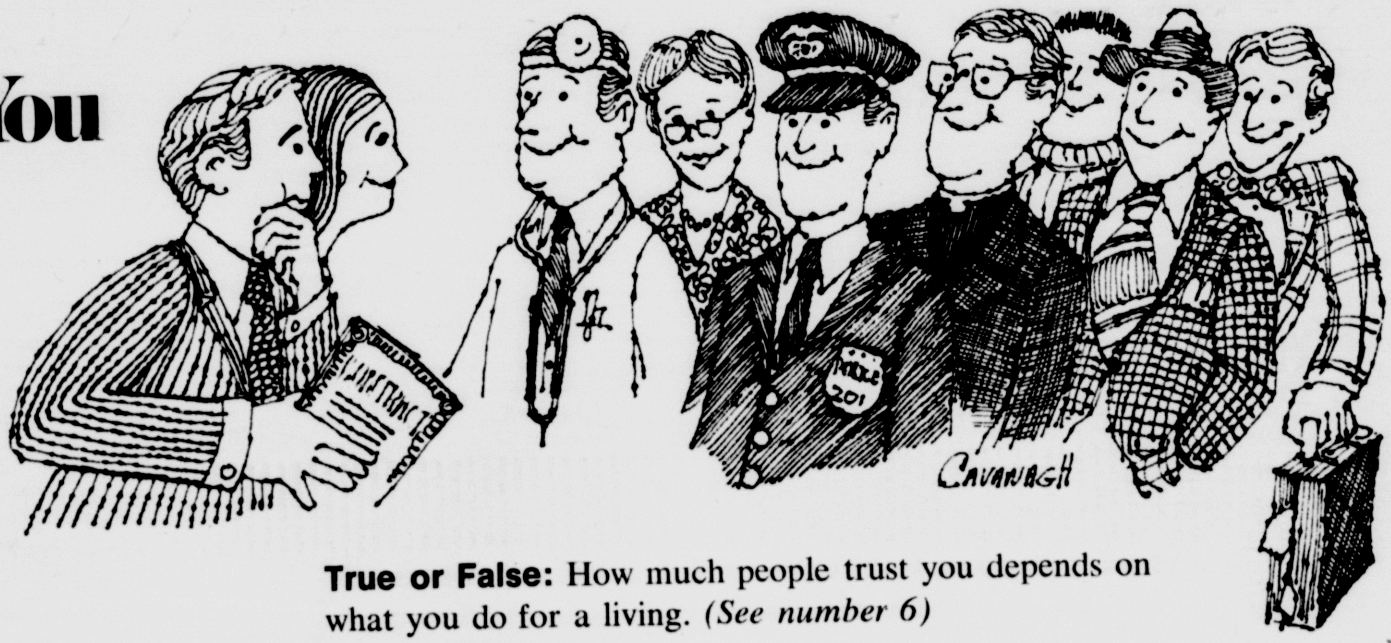
How Much Do You Trust Other People?

By John E. Gibson



True or False: How much people trust you depends on what you do for a living. (See number 6)

Most of us would like to be as trusting as possible, but nobody wants to be taken advantage of. In this True-False quiz, we take a look at just where in the spectrum, ranging from naïve to downright cynical, you fall.

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. People who trust others are themselves the most trustworthy.

2. The outgoing extrovert has more contacts than the introvert with people from all walks of life, and as a result he is more suspicious and distrustful of their motives.

3. There is no easy way to tell how trusting a person is by his attitude toward his fellowmen.

4. A person who doesn't trust you isn't likely to be completely truthful in his dealings with you.

5. Whether a person is of a trusting or suspicious nature depends to a large extent on the kind of childhood he had.

6. How much people trust you depends on what you do for a living.

ANSWERS

1. True. Psychological studies have demonstrated that "people who are trusting tend to be trustworthy, and persons who are suspicious tend to be untrustworthy." It was also found that suspicious people tended to be dogmatic and narrow-minded in their beliefs, as well as cynical concerning human nature, and to have experienced—and favor—a very strict child-parent relationship.

2. False. Psychological studies at the University of London have shown that the introvert tends to regard his fellowmen with a much more jaundiced and suspicious eye than the more carefree, easygoing and sociable extrovert, who likes people, needs them around him—and is often inclined to be more trusting of them than circumstances seem to warrant.

3. False. One team of research psychologists used this simple method to determine the degree of trust or suspicion in an experimental subject: They simply observed him when he parked his car. If he locked his car "in the absence of any realistic threat," he tended to view his fellowmen with distrust and suspicion. If he didn't, he was trustful. (Note: If someone leaves his car unlocked in the face of realistic threat, he's a trusting soul all right—but he's either stupid or absentminded; or else he secretly wants to get rid of his car.)

4. True. Psychological studies have shown that when one person distrusts another, he tends to conceal his real motives and attitudes and to be evasive in any dealings or relations he may have with him. For, it's pointed out, "a person who is distrusted is likely to be regarded as potentially threatening."

5. True—according to psychiatric findings that show that "if a child meets with consistent understanding and love, he develops basic trust; if not, basic mistrust. . . ." It is pointed out, incidentally, that chronic suspicion of others' motives tends to go hand in hand with loneliness.

6. True. Studies have been conducted by psychologists at two leading universities to determine the attitude of men and women toward the trustworthiness of 20 leading occupations. Subjects were asked to evaluate each profession or calling and rate it in terms of "Truthfulness, Competence and Altruism." Scoring at the top of the list for Truthfulness were: physicians, clergymen, dentists and judges. Highest ratings for Competence went to: physicians, dentists, lawyers and judges. Occupations that scored the highest for Altruism—or concern for the welfare of others—included: clergymen, physicians, psychologists and psychiatrists. Of all of the occupations, used-car salesmen were trusted the least. They scored at the very bottom of the list on each of the three virtues.

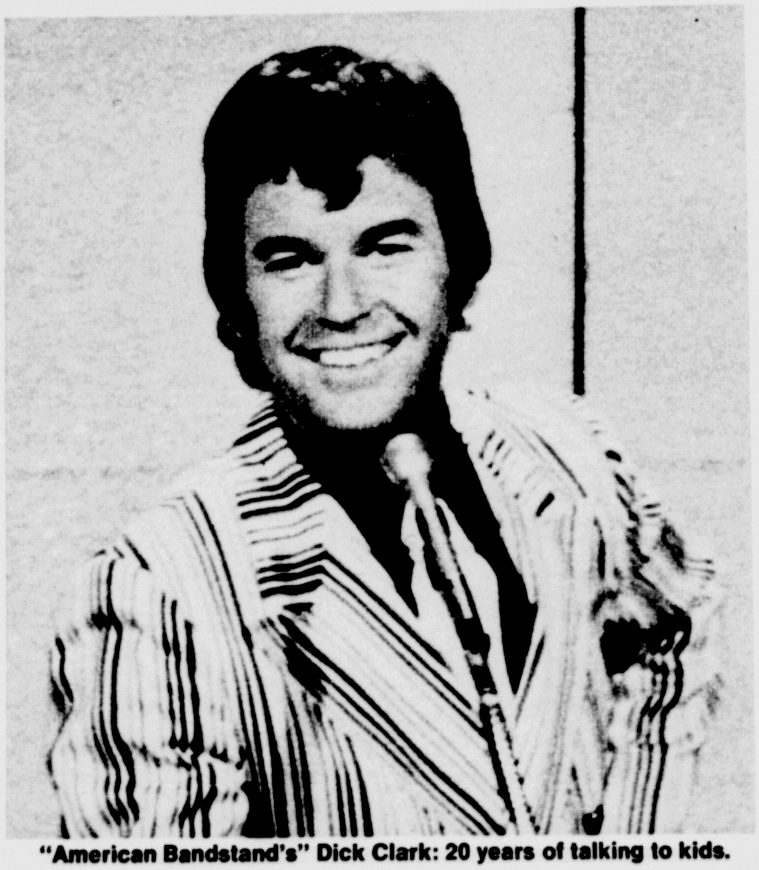
Dick Clark on Our Kids: Back to the Calmer Mood of the 1950's?



"American Bandstand's" Dick Clark: 20 years of talking to kids.

By Dick Clark
Especially for FAMILY WEEKLY

What do these young people really want? Bewildered parents have been asking me that question for the 20 years I've been hosting "American Bandstand." During those years, I've spent most of my time thinking about and working with young people, both those who appear on "Bandstand" and those who watch it.

If the parental question hasn't changed, the answer to it certainly has.

In the early '60's, the stars may not have been squeaky-clean, but most of them were well-scrubbed and clear-eyed. The typical star never smoked, drank or ran around—at least, not in public. He was part of a kind of make-believe world.

The star of the '70's is different. He lets it all hang out. He makes no secret of his unorthodox living arrangements, and hardly a week goes by that we don't read a headline about one rock star or another being "busted" for using or possessing illegal drugs. Another interesting difference is that today's rock star is more likely to be a multimillionaire. There's a list of 50 rock soloists and groups who earn from two to six million dollars a year. Compare that with Frank Sinatra or Johnny Mathis, who never pulled in more than a million dollars annually.

We've also heard a lot of talk about a sexual revolution. Certainly, rock stars are in its vanguard but, in this highly personal area, no survey can give us a decimal-point accuracy on what young people are up to. My private estimate is that there is more premarital sex going on than there used to be, but that there is probably less than many parents fear.

"The teenager we once knew is gone. People now go from being little children to being young adults. They live in a youth culture that ranges from age seven to almost 30."

The biggest difference is that, with the pressures of the mass media and the tragedy of the Vietnam war, today's generation is more mature. In the '50's, we invented the "teenager" and the special life-style that went with that label. Today, there are people in their teens, of course, but the teenager we once knew is gone. People now go from being little children to being young adults. They live in a youth culture that ranges from age seven to almost 30. It's a segmented culture, with a bubble-gum set that squeals for Donny Osmond and an older group that may prefer Three Dog Night. Yet in spite of all its divisions, it's united by the same trends and the same thoughts, passed along by an underground intelligence network that the CIA might envy.

What are some of the other differences?

Kids and their parents:

The generation gap is a bit narrower but it is still with us. Both sides of the gap are at fault. Young people don't give their parents credit for having lived and learned; older people wonder why they can't be more like us.

My own sons are now age 16 and ten, and my daughter is eight. I find myself in the position of having to put into practice the advice I've been preaching to other parents all these years. So far, it seems to work. On television and at home, my attitude is: "You're my friend but I'm not one of you. I'm too old for that. But we can enjoy each other because I like you and I respect you."

Kids and school:

In the '70's, we're seeing a sharp drop in the number of young people who want to go to college, and that's healthy. In the '50's and '60's, the feeling was that if you didn't go to college, you weren't as valuable a human being. Today's young people don't think that way. They have more respect for work that a man does with his hands, and they're not likely to make the same foolish mistake that a good friend of mine made. He was a genius as a carpenter and mechanic, and he had begun to build his own business in restoring and rebuilding old houses. Yet he felt embarrassed to do work that got his hands dirty. He gave up the business. Today, he works as a used-car salesman and tells me: "I go to work in a white shirt and tie."

Kids and religion:

The youthful religious revival that was known as the "Jesus Freak" movement is fading. It was, of course, a fad. But the faith behind the fad—a faith that has lasted 2,000 years—that still endures. It may no longer be "in" to be a Jesus Freak, but that doesn't mean that the young no longer believe in Jesus. Today's young people continue to have a deep, abiding, personal faith.

Young people have changed in these three decades because the pressures on them have changed. In the '50's, when the young still followed the old, adults used to push them to their own goals: "get married, get kids, get a mortgage." In the late '50's and early '60's, there was the new pressure of the nuclear bomb. That was the first generation to grow up with the sure knowledge that the world could end at the push of a button. They grew up, too, in the shadow of the draft and Vietnam.

Now, in the '70's, many of the pressures have been turned off. We're approaching an era not unlike the '50's. Today's young people are even reviving some of the looks and the sounds of the '50's. They're even turning away from illegal drugs. The college beer bust has made a comeback.

In a deeper way, they're returning to the spirit of the '50's by moving away from politics and social consciousness. There are a number of reasons why protest, that youthful badge of the '60's, is disappearing. To begin, it became a fad, and that meant its life-span was limited. The protest movement began with genuine commitment, but it petered out when marching and rallying became the chic thing to do.

Young people were trying to change the world around them, to right civil wrongs, to make their schools more relevant, to end the war. They had a genuine impact on our institutions, but they also found that changes didn't come as fast as they had hoped. When the system didn't change overnight, they began to feel it was unchangeable. Enthusiasm waned. I think the old sense of injustice is still bubbling underneath, but now that the heat is off and the war is over, the few protesters who are left find they can't raise a big crowd any longer.

From the bright-red lipstick of the flapper to the no-bra look of today, fads have always been started by the extremes of our society—the very rich and the very poor. Those are the groups that tend to have the least parental supervision and thus the most freedom to experiment. When the darlings of society and the kids on the street hit on a new idea at the same time, the people in the middle get caught in a pincer movement. A fad has arrived.

Young people are my favorite people, and I like to listen to them talk about "doing their own thing." Still, there's no denying that young people are the most conformist group in American society. They think alike, talk alike, look alike. They pick up their new fads in the same way young people always have.

A youthful fad disappears when grown-ups start playing the same game. When adults learned to do the twist (remember that one?), the kids went on to other dances. Today, with Madison Avenue executives and Midwestern insurance salesmen wearing muttonchops and long hair, the kids are moving on again.

"Fads have always been started by the extremes of our society—the very rich and the very poor. Those are the groups that tend to have the least parental supervision."

Shorter hair is the wave of the future. It's part of our return to the '50's, a quieter, calmer, perhaps duller era. Young people seem to want a rest and it may be what the entire country needs, a healing time to come together again.

We can't turn back the clock, of course, and the '70's will have their own fads and foibles and joys and sorrows. But older people can relax a bit now. The young appear to be leading us into a time when, once again, it will be safe to ask, "What's happening?"

At this moment, it looks as though the answer will be a reassuring "Nothing much."

A fatal disease spreads like wildfire striking one roach after another—until each and every roach nest and egg is killed off. None escapes alive in the entire nest!

5 YEAR TREATMENT IN EVERY CAN

PHANTOM never evaporates or decays, because it's inorganic. Odorless. Stainproof. No spraying. No DDT fumes. Powerful! One single treatment clears out an average 6 or 7 room house. And just one GIANT CAN contains enough treatments for 5 full years.

HELEN KLINTRUP
A "window" shortage

Eye-bank problem: There are never enough corneas donated for transplants. Even the first and largest such bank in the U.S.—The Eye Bank for Sight Restoration in New York—has never had enough, says its executive director, Helen Klintrup. Why? These perishable "windows" must be banked within three hours of the donor's death—so donating corneas in a will just doesn't work: it takes too long for the will to be read. And some prospective donors worry about disfigurement, but there is none. The term "eye bank" is confusing, as whole eyes can't be transplanted, only certain eye-parts. Becoming a donor is easy. Just fill out a card, carry half in your wallet, and send the other half back to the eye bank. Ask The Eye Bank Association of America, 3195 Maryland Ave., Winston-Salem, N.C., about one near you. Write for a card—it'll make things look a little brighter.

Baseball's big wait: "Election to the Hall is so difficult—obtaining a majority of 75 percent in an election of any kind may be unrealistic—that only one or two players exposed to the full vote of the association can possibly make it in any given election. That means that such guys as Slaughter, Snider, Schoendienst, Mize, Newhouser, Reynolds, Rizzuto, Marion, Lemon, Kell, Henrich, and Gordon are likely to be dead or doddering old men by the time they pass through the doors of the shrine. Why should they be forced to wait so long? . . . We believe the solution is to lower the percentage of votes required." From "Major League Baseball 1973," compiled by Cord Communications Corp. (Pocket Books, $1.25).

SUE JENNINGS AND HER TRIPLETS
Search for a three-seater

Expecting twins is great—except when the bouncing bundle turns out to be triplets! The biggest triplet problem for the Jennings family, of England, was finding a stroller that could seat all three babies—Simon, Richard and David. Just when they'd about given up hope, a company offered to build a special stroller, with an extra seat behind twin front seats. Now Sue Jennings' only problem is, whose turn is it to ride in the back seat?

"Study Line": Kids in San Antonio now dial a telephone number when they need help with their homework, and their parents relax. The setup, similar to a "Hot Line," is called "Study Line." It was thought up by the director of the San Antonio Jewish Community Center, Dr. Shimshon Zeevi, who believes it's the only system of its kind. Congratulations, San Antonio, for a useful, clever idea!

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour

NO BELT PRIZE

Though mostly I'm well dressed and svelte,
Some mornings I forget my belt.
I may be late, I may be hurried,
About the world I may be worried.
I put my pants on, that I do.
I put on, one by one, each shoe.
It's just my belt I fail to see,
And what a lot that means to me.

All day I give my pants a hitch,
A full-fledged tug or tidy twitch.
All day I have the feel of slipping
And do some sudden grabbing, gripping . . .
Let me forget my cash, my keys,
But not my belt—not that, oh please!

THROUGH A CHILD'S EYES

Kids see life differently. Send original contributions to "Child," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., N.Y., N.Y. 10022. $10 if used—none returned.

The other night I was making up my little girl's bed and she had left her puzzle on the bed. I told Cindi to pick it up and move it so I could finish the bed. She told me that she didn't have to move it if she didn't want to and that she didn't have to mind me. I went around the bed and spanked her and told her that she always had to mind me and do as I said. She then put her hand on her seat and with dry eyes looked up at me very seriously and said, "Well, if that is the way you're going to act about it, I guess I will."

To Mrs. Jackie Onassis, Very Personal (To be delivered to Mrs. Onassis, not to her Secretary)

Dear Mrs. Onassis:

To what schools do John and Caroline go? I have a son and a daughter too and I'd like to send my children to the same schools that your Children go to. Because then you and I could meet at a PTA Meeting or something and that meeting could lead to a friendship between us. I shall look forward to hearing from you.

MEET HARRISON PAGE

Harrison Page, who costars on ABC's summer series, Love Thy Neighbor, Fridays at 9:30PM, was born in Atlanta, Georgia. After graduating high school there, Harrison moved to Hollywood, where he enrolled as a Drama major in Los Angeles City College. During this time, he played leads in "Detective Story" and "The Dutchman" at that school. As a result of his performing professionally in the Los Angeles area, in such plays as "Purlie Victorious" and "A Taste of Honey," Michael Landon gave him his first television job . . . on Bonanza.

The ball was rolling. In a short period of time, Harrison had performed leads on such shows as Mannix, That Girl, Bracken's World, Ironside, The FBI, Cannon and a Movie of the Week, Sandcastles.

Harrison likes all sports, but his favorite one is horseback riding. He enjoys writing and is currently working on a feature-length script for motion pictures. He resides in Encino, California. The actor enjoys playing comedy and admits that doing his new series, "Love Thy Neighbor," is actually more fun than work.

'mystique of fatherhood'

Jackie Cooper, Roosevelt Grier and Eddie Albert star, respectively, as a swinging bachelor who becomes a temporary foster father ("Keep An Eye On Denise"), a football hero who turns gourmet chef ("Big Daddy") and a New England widower who assumes a double parental role in the guidance of a young daughter ("Daddy's Girl") in a trilogy of comedy dramas concerned with the mystique of fatherhood on The New CBS Tuesday Night Movie at 9:30PM.

As a favor to a Korean War buddy who once saved his life, Bill Nulty (Jackie Cooper) (not pictured) takes on the guardianship of a lovely English teen-ager (Lynne Frederick) and finds his sophisticated life style summarily disrupted in "Keep an Eye on Denise."

Former Los Angeles Rams football great Roosevelt Grier stars as Rosey Barker, a retired gridiron hero who chooses a new career as a gourmet chef with his own television show in "Big Daddy."

"Daddy's Girl" stars Eddie Albert as a conservative widower with a young daughter (Dawn Lyn), who finds the challenge of being both father and mother to a budding junior miss requires both skill and patience. Della Reese co-stars as Dianne Walters, the concerned and warm-hearted housekeeper.

INSIDE the tube & OUTSIDE hollywood

I'm certain that inequities of all kinds are found in all types of businesses. However, there is one outstanding inequity to be found in the motion picture and television business. All employees in all phases of filmmaking are members of unions or guilds. This is mandatory. Writers, directors, producers and actors are guild members, while technicians such as film editors, cameramen, makeup men, wardrobe men, etc., are members of unions. Each union is separate, but all the unions are members of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees. When it comes time for contracts to be re-negotiated, all the unions and crafts are represented by the IATSE. It is the IATSE that negotiates with the producers and all crafts and unions are forced to take whatever the IATSE agrees to.

With the guilds, however, it is a different story. They are not affiliated with the IATSE and they are allowed to negotiate independently with the producers. If any one of them feels the new contract isn't fair, they are allowed to strike independently. That's exactly what is happening today with the writers. They have been on strike for several weeks and many feature motion pictures and almost all television series are at a standstill. No writer is allowed to work until the Writers Guild and the Producers come to some kind of agreement. Even though I am a member of the Writers Guild, all the reasons for the strike aren't clear to me. The thing that is clear is that the writers, like the actors and directors, want some kind of residual cut from cassettes when they finally hit the market. Now comes the unfair part. If writers, directors and actors get further pay for their efforts from cassettes, pay TV, or other future outlets for the films they have worked on, why shouldn't all the crafts and unions receive further remuneration, too? It would be difficult, but possible, for the producers to continue to make film—television or feature motion pictures—without Guild writers. Colleges and universities abound with talented new writers and they could be recruited very quickly. True, the quality of their work might not be as professional as that of experienced Guild writers, but nevertheless production could continue. Not so if some of the unions or crafts went on strike. Take the film editors or cameramen. These are jobs that take years and years of experience before they can be executed at all. There would be absolutely no way to substitute students, or anyone else for that matter, to perform these jobs. The film editors and cameramen could virtually shut down Hollywood until their demands were met.

But unfortunately, the unions and crafts must go on accepting wages that are nowhere near in line with their talents, skills and experience. They can't break away from the IATSE and they see no additional money for their work than what they're paid weekly. In addition to the Writers Guild, I am also a member of the Film Editors' Union, so I feel I can speak with authority on this subject.

THE DAY OF THE JACKAL just opened at The Pacific Cinerama Dome in Hollywood. Adapted to film from the best-selling novel by Frederick Forsyth, the movie seems to suffer for the first 20 minutes or so by confusion, but if you stay with it the intrigue gets better and more exciting by the minute and all confusion clears up. Even though the novel stayed on the best-seller list for six months, and held first position for ten weeks, and even though the film's director was Fred Zinnemann, who also directed A MAN FOR ALL SEASONS, HIGH NOON, FROM HERE TO ETERNITY, and THE MEN, JACKAL belongs almost exclusively to Edward Fox, a reasonably unknown English actor who is so good that it's worth the price of a ticket just to watch his performance. He is the personification of evil, yet he is so charming that you're with him almost to the end of the picture.

In person, Fox is the antithesis of his role in JACKAL. Shy, gentle and unassuming, he reminds one more of a young English teacher than an accomplished actor. The reason he is so accomplished is his dedication to his craft. JACKAL shot all over Europe for five months and during that time Fox didn't go out one evening. He said he didn't feel he could waste any time socially while he was working. Self-discipline, he feels, is one of the most important qualities an actor needs if he wants to be successful.

Born in London, Edward Fox was educated at the exclusive Harrow School where Winston Churchill also received his education. "As a matter of fact, I don't remember that much about it," he said. "I don't think I really liked it. I left at 17, wasn't very bright and had no idea what to do. Someone or other whispered in my ear that it was desirable to have a trade." He took the advice literally and found a job at one of Mark and Spencer's chain stores as a porter. The government had other plans for him, however, and he was drafted into the Colstream Guards—part of the Brigade of Guards, official escort of the Monarch—and successfully survived an officers' training course.

"I loathed it," he said. "As a Guards Officer you are required to do more socializing than soldiering. Very expensive too. The best thing that could happen did. As soon as I was gazetted they kicked me out—into the North Lancashire Regiment, which was glorious." Upon discharge he was back at the department store as an apprentice department manager.

"I think I actually preferred the portering," he said. "One busy Saturday I turned up at the shop wearing a Prince of Wales checked suit, a very loud affair that I thought was somewhat smart. It had last been worn, I understand, by a late uncle in about 1911. The store manager was stunned. 'This is the last straw, Fox,' he said, reaching for the ultimate insult. 'For heaven's sake, why don't you buzz off and be an actor or something?' " Which is precisely what Edward Fox did. "What a nice man," he said, "he sent me off on a career I had had no intention of taking up."

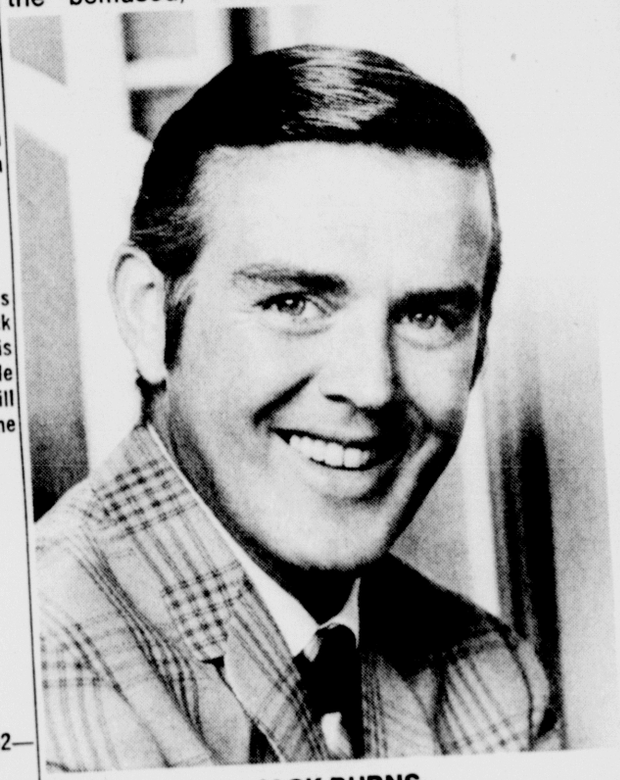
COVER CLOSE-UP

'THE CABBY & THE SQUARE'

In their most famous sketch, Jack Burns is the loud, pompous square, riding in the back seat of a taxi driven by Avery Schreiber as the bemused, bone-tired cabby with dark curly hair and a big mustache. The Cabby and the Square were last seen a month ago kicking off the Emmy Awards Show in a hilarious routine in whch Burns came on as a totally incompetent network vice president expounding on his own importance while Schreiber drove him to the Awards ceremonies.



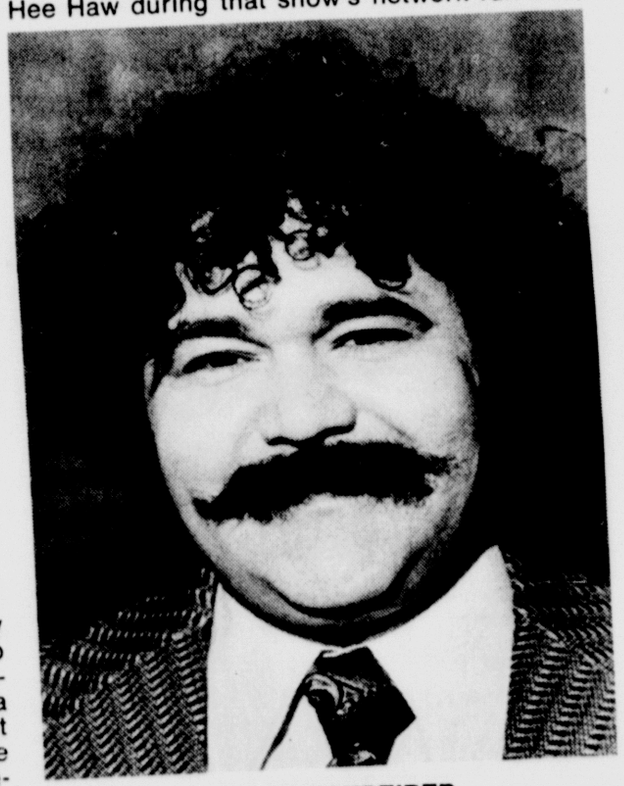
JACK BURNS

They will next be seen on ABC, Friday at 10PM in a prime-time special, The Burns and Schrieber Comedy Hour. Their guest stars will be 1973 Emmy-winners Jack Klugman (The Odd Couple) and Valerie Harper (The Mary Tyler Moore Show), along with Richard Shaal and the Ike & Tina Turner Revue.

Eight days later, on Saturday, June 30 (9-10 PM) The Burns and Schreiber Comedy Hour premieres on ABC as a weekly summer comedy series. Juliet Prowse and Martin Landau will guest star.

Jack Burns and Avery Schreiber met nearly ten years ago when they were members of Chicago's famous Second City, the improvisational workshop that turned out such talents as Barbara Harris, Alan Arkin and Bob Dishy. It was at The Second City that Jack and Avery created The Cabby and the Square (then known as Cab Driver and Bigot), a routine on which they have since devised dozens of variations. In 1965, when The Second City company was appearing in New York, Jack Paar caught Burns and Schreiber's act and immediately booked them on his late night show. Ed Sullivan was the next to sign them, followed by Perry Como.

The team became comedy favorites and starred in their own revue on Broadway before going on a national tour of colleges and nightclubs. Then, in 1967, the team split up when Schreiber landed a continuing role in My Mother the Car and Burns became a regular on The Andy Griffith Show. Later, Jack decided to pursue an off-camera career as a writer on such shows as Hullabaloo, The Kraft Music Hall, Kopy Kats and The Flip Wilson Show. (It was Jack Burns who persuaded Flip to do his "Geraldine" character "in drag"). Burns was also head writer on Hee Haw during that show's network run and, more recently, wrote sketches for The Julie Andrews Show.



AVERY SCHREIBER

While Jack was piling up writing credits, Avery continued as an actor, guest starring in hundreds of television shows and appearing on commercials, including one in which he makes a great noise with corn chips.

Late last year, Jack and Avery re-united for a benefit appearance at a school in Southern California. The audience reaction nearly overwhelmed them. Then and there, they decided to team up again . . . this time for keeps. When word got out that Burns and Schreiber were back in business, they were promptly signed for three appearances on The Flip Wilson Show and five shots on The Tonight Show starring Johnny Carson.

The incredible demand for the team inspired the American Broadcasting Company to sign Burns and Schreiber to an exclusive contract which allows them to write and produce their own shows.

The Burns and Schreiber Comedy Hour is being billed as a summer series, but there is every possibility that they will still be on the air when the air grows cool and the leaves begin to fall.

'ROBERTA FLACK . . . THE FIRST TIME EVER'

Roberta Flack, one of the music world's brightest stars.

One of the most exciting and creative young singing teams of today, Seals and Crofts, will join Roberta Flack in the Grammy Award-winner's first television special, "Roberta Flack . . . The First Time Ever," Tuesday, at 8PM. Jimmy Seals and Dash Crofts are rapidly becoming the country's most popular duo. Their last album, "Summer Breeze," sold a million copies, and their newest release, "Diamond Girl," is on the way up.

"Roberta Flack . . . The First Time Ever," taped at many different California locations, shifts from a lush forest to a river bank, to an amphitheatre, to a rooftop in a ghetto area. Each setting captures a different musical mood, with an accent on the kind of piano Miss Flack plays. In the forest, for instance, the singer will use a baby grand piano, while on the rooftop she will play a beat-up old upright, the kind she used at the beginning of her career.

Miss Flack's songs in the special include her Grammy-winning rendition of "The First Time Ever I Saw Your Face," plus her latest recording, "Killing Me Softly with His Song," described by one record company executive as "the biggest record in the pop musical history," and a blues number, "Jessie."

JANICE DOESN'T LIKE TO LOSE

Janice Lynde has never been a loser and she is now awaiting the verdict on her audition with a symphony orchestra as eagerly as are several million television viewers. Janice portrays Leslie Brooks, an aspiring concert pianist in Screen Gems' The Young And The Restless daytime serial for CBS. As Leslie, she recently auditioned for the position of concert pianist with the Mid-America Symphony Orchestra and it will be another four weeks before she and the viewers will know the results.

Although scripts are written well in advance, one of the keys is to let the characters develop their own situations and "never, never do we divulge the information to the actors," according to producer John Conboy. "That way the cast looks forward to each week's scripts as eagerly as does the audience at home watching the story enfold," explains Conboy. "I can hardly wait to find out what happens," laughs the lovely Janice. "I hate to lose anything even if it's on the show."

Janice, who draws an unusual amount of fan mail, has had a thorough education in music and is one of the few concert pianists to turn actress and portray a concert pianist on television. She is one of the few actresses in the business who has to learn her lines and rehearse music at the same time each day.

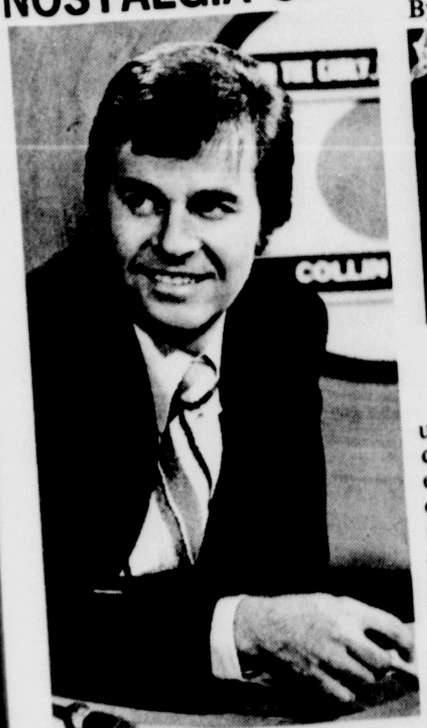
Janice started piano studies at the age of five in her home town of Lake Charles, La., desiring some day to be a concert pianist. But when she was 15, Janice started studying voice, hoping to be a dramatic coloratura in grand opera. She returned to the piano for a while when she lost her voice following a tonsillectomy. She was so good that she often soloed with the symphony orchestras of Dallas, New Orleans, Houston and others.

"My voice finally returned," recalls Janice. "I was majoring in opera at the University of Indiana and had a scholarship to the Julliard School of Music when a talent scout for Fred Waring and the Pennsylvanians persuaded me to leave school. They made me an offer of soloist with the group which I couldn't turn down." Janice admits that although she still studies she had become bored with opera and piano.

"There was a lack of freedom and creativity in opera. It must be done exactly the way it had been done for 200 years. And piano was too one dimensional. I really wanted to be singing and dancing. And I've become a big 'belter,' singing the pop thing my way." Following her stint with Waring and success as a background singer and dancer in New York, Janice struck out on her own. Then came television and her current "type casting" as a concert pianist. If Janice, as Leslie, wins the audition, producer Conboy is considering having her play with a real symphony orchestra on the air in The Young And The Restless.

NOSTALGIA ON THE UPSWING . . . OR, THEY'RE PLAYING OUR SONG

By Dick Clark



Dick Clark (as he is today) is shown in a composite interviewing the top recording stars through the years on "American Bandstand." The show's success will be celebrated with two special programs entitled "American Bandstand 20th Anniversary" on ABC's Wide World of Entertainment" Tuesday at 11:30 PM and the second on Saturday (June 23) at 11:30AM.

Interviews pictured clockwise are Dick Clark and Bobby Rydell in 1960, Dick Clark with Annette Funicello and Dick Clark chatting with Johnny Mathis in 1958.

Perhaps this would be a column better written by a sociologist or by a psychologist. However, due to the fact that for over 20 years I have been earning my livelihood observing and analyzing the nation's young people, I feel that via this column I can perhaps say something of value. In the two decades that American Bandstand has been on-the-air, we've seen some pretty extraordinary events occur. I often compare the program to a window on the world, with the sights outside that window changing daily; while outside, much is basically the same. Look about you—and you'll see many signs of the good old days—in men's and women's clothing, in the revival of interest in old television and radio programs, old Coke machines, almost anything that relates back to the 50's. We seem to be hungering for—and enjoying—recollections of years gone by, and out youngsters . . . even those who can't recall "the good old days" because they weren't even born then . . . are fascinated and delighted by such bits of nostalgia.

One of the prime areas of interest in nostalgia is the 50's rock'n'roll live concerts that are currently in vogue. I recently viewed a video tape of Chuck Berry performing in one of ABC's In Concert programs, and at the same time, out of the other eye, I was watching Chuck on a 1957 kinescope of American Bandstand. The audience reaction . . . the spark . . . the rapport between Chuck and the two audiences were the same. The only discernible difference was that today's audience was dressed in a more flamboyant fashion.

Parenthetically, I should say how amused I was at the two audiences' reactions, and at some of the aspects of the thirst for nostalgia. I recall that when rock and roll music first began to assert itself more than 20 years ago there was a sarcastic joke going the round among the adults that went something like this: "Can you imagine 20 years from now, some of these kids will be listening to "Blue Suede Shoes" on the radio, and the boy will turn to the girl saying, "Listen, Sue, they're playing our song."

POLLY'S POINTERS

DEAR POLLY—When pouring medicine from a bottle always pour from the side OPPOSITE the label to avoid getting the label smeared as the prescription number may be needed for a refill. Also, transparent gummed tape may be applied over the label.—VIOLET

DEAR POLLY—My solution to the annoying problem of keeping ash trays clean is that after washing them I spray some furniture polish into them and then polish. Next time they are emptied they wipe clean just as if they had been washed.—SUSAN

DEAR POLLY—If you are conservation-minded and efficiency-conscious, instead of filling cooking containers with water so they are easier to wash simply put the lids on after serving, so all the moisture stays inside and keeps them from drying out.—E. P. D.

DEAR POLLY—There are so many children in our neighborhood we make it a point always to walk around the back of the car prior to leaving the driveway. At the same time we count the children playing in the area and, after getting in the car, they are recounted. This way we are assured there are no children back of the car when we back out.—JEANNINE

DEAR POLLY—Since starting to wear glasses (wire frames) I have found the small screws tend to become loose. To prevent this I apply a bit of clear nail polish on the screws so they stay tight and with no build-up.—SYLVIA

DEAR POLLY—The children's coloring books will provide excellent patterns for felt decorations. The print is bold and they are very easy to cut out.—MARCIE

DEAR POLLY—To remove that ring around the collar of your husband's shirt without wasting detergent, use a small plastic bottle with a sponge top (the kind used to moisten glue on envelopes for sealing). Fill with liquid detergent and gently squeeze and rub the sponge along the dirty line. This way the job is done well and you use only a very small amount of detergent.—MRS. A. T. K.

DEAR POLLY—When our baby outgrew his plastic bathtub he was frightened of the big tub. To make this transition easier for both of us I placed the little tub inside the big one and bathed her in it two or three times until she became used to the big tub and did not mind being in it.—BONNIE

THIS WEEK'S TOP PRIZE QUESTION:

THERESA RAGSDALE OF FT. SMITH, ARK, ASKS:

" WHAT CAUSES THUNDER ?"

LIGHTNING CAUSES THUNDER. A FLASH OF LIGHTNING IS A GIANT ELECTRIC SPARK. THE SPARK IS HOT. AS LIGHTNING JUMPS ACROSS THE SKY, IT HEATS THE AIR IN ITS PATH. THE AIR GROWS HOT SO SUDDENLY THAT IT EXPANDS AND RUSHS OUTWARD JUST AS VIOLENTLY AS IF THERE HAD BEEN AN EXPLOSION. THIS CAUSES A GREAT SOUND WAVE, WHICH WE HEAR AS THUNDER. THUNDER CRACKLES WHEN LIGHTNING FORKS OUT INTO MANY BRANCHES. IT ROLLS AND RUMBLES BECAUSE THE THUNDER ECHOES BACK AND FORTH FROM HILLS AND VALLEYS AND FROM THE CLOUDS THEMSELVES.
